FRED WELSH PLANS COMEBACK—LIKE A BEAR

Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champ, plans a come-back, and he hopes it will be "like a bear—like a bear." At least this new picture from his training camp indicates such, for the champion, who lost his crown to the present title-holder, Benny Leonard, has this young cub as one of his sparring partners.

Immigration Now Swamps Post-War Records

New York—The tide of immigrants continues to swamp all post-war records. Five thousand landed a day at Ellis Island is a common occurrence.

Lack of shipping prevents pre-war records from being smashed, officials say, for each week sees a new high mark for the period since 1914.

What kind of immigrants are coming? Why are they coming? From what countries are they coming?

Returned travelers say that the entire population of Poland is ready to emigrate to America; that Spaniards and Jugo-Slavs, Czechs and Ruthenians and Slovaks are all looking once more to this country as a promised land, where wages are high and where work is plentiful, where taxes are low and food abundant, where there is neither oppression nor war nor revolution.

If you want to find out what kind of people live in Cincinnati or Memphis or El Paso a pretty good way to find out would be just to talk to the people in those cities; go into a barber shop and a grocery store and a wholesale establishment and a bootblack parlor and see what the people there are like and what they are thinking about.

Sixty-Two Cases Studied.

One newspaper adopted a method of that sort in attempting to learn a little about immigrants who are coming to this country. Through interpreters it approached them in various places—away from official influences of all kinds—and asked them a few simple questions. It found them at South Ferry, where they landed from Ellis Island, in the Pennsylvania and other depots on the Jersey side, where they take trains to the west; it found them in immigrant homes and at the headquarters of charitable organizations, where they are sheltered until relatives call for them. In all 62 cases were studied.

And what stories they unfold! Each holds a tragedy or comedy of its own, from Elias Atias, who came here from Galicia to escape "war, starvation and pogroms" at home, to G. Cerniglio of Palermo, Italy, who comes here at the age of 62, ill and without a trade, "to make a living."

Gedelia Goldberg, 19, arrives from Odessa, because her father is "opposed to the Bolshevik," who control that city. C. Minicemi, a laborer, is on his way to Butler, Pa., on "a pleasure trip." L. Imacel succinctly sums up the troublous state of Indian industry by saying that "conditions are unsettled at home." C. Marozzo thinks, as well he may, that he will have a "better chance" here. The wants of J. Regis, 43, from Vincenza, are simple; he desires "to make a living."

He's "Tired of War at Home."

Eugene Shevts, here from Russia, gives the conventional excuse of the married man for going to the club—he is "tired of war at home." J. Di-Pigilo, who has reached 20 without acquiring an occupation, was sent for by his father. Jacob Mirski evidently regarded his aims as none of the interpreter's business, while T. Palets, a Russian farmer, wants "peace and a chance to make a living."

The majority of the men and women questioned were Italians as are the majority of the immigrants who are arriving here today. Most of them are laborers and they are impelled to come here for economic reasons; they know that conditions in the United States are better and wages higher. Political reasons, pogrom persecution, play a part in sending to this country many immigrants from central and eastern Europe.

AMERICAN RED CROSS TO GIVE RURAL HELP

Program for Public Health and Community Welfare Is Now Well Under Way.

Rural communities and towns of less than 8,000 population benefit in a very large part by the public health and community welfare work of the American Red Cross. Almost all of the 8,600 Red Cross chapters have some rural sections in their territory. There are the Red Cross Rural Service.

Briefly, the purpose of Rural Service is to assist people to get out of life more health, wealth and happiness. In this purpose public health instruction and general educational progress of both children and adults play a big part.

Recreation is found to be one of the biggest needs in rural life. There is lack of sufficient play-life for the children and social life for the adults. Picnics, pageants, debating clubs, baseball leagues, community singing and other social events which bring the people of surrounding communities together have been organized and carried on under the guidance of Red Cross rural workers to great advantage. In many instances solving recreational problems and getting people together proves to be the awakening of the community to other conditions which may be improved by united action.

As a result of community organization, townships in which there had been neither plans nor interest in community progress have been organized to work together with the unified purpose of bringing their community up to the most enlightened standards. Lecture and musical entertainment courses have been started as a result of community meetings, as well as circulating libraries, Red Cross schools of instruction in Home Nursing, Care of the Sick and First Aid. In the larger towns the need for restrooms and public comfort stations is being met. Playgrounds for the children have been established and recreational activities worked out for the year.

In order that there may be concerted effort in carrying on the programs of the various welfare agencies in the rural districts, Red Cross Rural Service helps the organizations already on the ground. The main object of the service is to lend a hand everywhere and take the lead only where necessary.

JUNIOR RED CROSS ACTIVE IN EUROPE

Garden seeds for Polish orphans, milk for anaemic Greek babies, carpenters' tools for Czecho-Slovakian cripples—these are only a few of the gifts that young Americans are sending to the war-crushed children of the Old World.

Through the Junior Red Cross the boys and girls of the United States are giving a fresh start in life to little war orphans scattered all over Europe. They have set up orphans' homes in France, school colonies in Belgium and Montenegro, and day schools in Albania.

They are sending dozens of young Syrians, Montenegrins, and Albanians to American colleges in Constantinople and Beirut, and maintaining more than a hundred orphans of French soldiers at colleges and trade schools. In orphanages and farm schools up and down the peninsula of Italy there are nearly 500 wards of American Juniors.

Last winter a thousand French children from the inadequate shelters of the devasted regions were sent by the Junior Red Cross to spend the cold months in warmer parts of France. At the same time five thousand little Belgians were having a hot lunch every day at Junior Red Cross school canteens.

American school children have already raised something like a million dollars for these enterprises, and they are still hard at work.

Two Men Wanted Money

A well to do farmer went to his banker one day to borrow money—but the banker turned him down without a cent.

A young married man who was just starting out for himself heard the banker's refusal and wondered—for he also wanted to borrow money.

The banker quickly agreed to his request and told him to come again when he needed more money for the bank wanted to see him make a success of his farm work.

When the young farmer expressed surprise at getting money when the well to do farmer failed, the old banker said:

"Well, Charley, it makes a lot of difference what you want money for. That fellow wants to gamble on the Chicago Board of Trade. He will probably go broke and we do not want to be mixed up in a mess like that—but we are glad to help you with your farming."

Did you ever think of it in that way?

Concerning the Situation On Hard Coal---

Many people are wondering why it is impossible to secure hard coal and we are taking this method to inform them of the existing conditions and why it is difficult for us to secure hard coal.

We have been advised by the dock companies, from which practically all the coal of the northwest is received, that if we will take four cars of soft coal, we will be allowed one car of hard coal, and the soft coal offered us is priced at a severe advance so that in order to break even it would necessitate the raising of the price of hard coal from three to four and possibly five dollars per ton.

Most of the dealers are well stocked with soft coal and to buy more at an advanced price in order to secure a small allotment of hard coal would prove foolhardy in the extreme.

It is simply a move on the part of the dock companies to force the dealers to buy soft coal at an advanced price in order to secure a small shipment of hard coal, and this company believes the public will agree with us in the stand we are taking. It is the only way in which prices can be forced down and we are doing our part to help offset this uncalled for manipulation of prices.

PRODUCERS GAIN $274,000 THRU ACTION OF MINNESOTA EXCHANGE.

Minnesota co-operative associations and the Minnesota Potato Exchange saved $274,000 for its farmer members in potato sales this year, J. H. Hughes, marketing director of the Minnesota department of agriculture, has announced. Reports from 35 county agents in all potato producing areas of Minnesota were taken as the basis for the statement.

Twenty co-operative exchanges reported an average price of $1.03 1-3 a hundred pounds. Thirty-five non-co-operative sales agents reported an average price of 91 4-5 cents a hundred pounds. The total crop is estimated at 1,200,000,000 pounds.

In some localities a difference of 30 cents a hundred in the price of potatoes was reported.

Co-operative Price $1.05.

The co-operative price in Kittson count November 1 was $1.05 for sacked potatoes. Non-co-operative farmers were receiving 75 cents for the potatoes in bulk, according to Mr. Hughes.

The price for Early Ohios offered by the co-operatives at Lancaster was $1.40 and the price offered by the non-co-operatives at Bronson, near by, was 95 cents.

The grading of potatoes into Minnesota select, grades one, two, three and field has made it possible for consumers to demand a standardized product and has increased the income to the farmers.

Minneapolis and St. Paul pay the highest prices and get the poorest grades of potatoes because the consumers have not forced the retailers to handle graded potatoes, J. H. Hay, deputy commissioner of agriculture, recently pointed out. Most of the potatoes sold in the twin cities come from nearby farms.

The Co-operative Potato Exchange plans to expand next year to handle cabbage, onions and other products. Seed potatoes were handled this year.

"This method of handling products means the assumption by the farmers of the loss as well as the chance for profit," Mr. Hughes said. "The object is not to lower the price to the consumer but to stabilize the market and prevent wild fluctuations in prices. It also will reduce the number of middlemen and reduce distribution costs."

Formation of co-operative distribution agencies for the benefit of the consumer was advocated by Mr. Hughes.

"The potato exchange will sell in carload lots to consumers and much of the overhead expense can be reduced," he said.

RED CROSS ACTIVE IN DISASTER RELIEF

When disaster hits a community—fire, flood, earthquake, explosion, bad wreck or tornado—the American Red Cross can be depended upon to follow right at its heels with help for the stricken people. Red Cross relief is almost immediately forthcoming—food, clothing, shelter and funds; doctors, nurses and special workers with long experience in handling similar trouble elsewhere.

During the last year, ending June 30, there was an average of four disasters a month in the United States. One hundred and fifty communities in twenty-seven states suffered. The largest and most destructive of these was the tidal wave at Corpus Christi, Texas, and tornadoes in Mississippi, Louisiana, Alobama, Georgio, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

In these events of horror 850 persons were killed, 1,500 were injured, 15,000 were made homeless, about 30,000 families needed help, the property loss was nearly $100,000,000 and almost $1,000,000 in relief funds, not including emergency supplies was expended.

To the sufferers from all disasters during the year, the American Red Cross sent $120,000 worth of supplies, 110 Red Cross nurses and seven special relief trains. To meet the needs of the stricken, the organization set up ten relief stations, operated thirty food cantoens and as many emergency hospitals. One hundred and twenty-five Red Cross chapters gave disaster relief service.

If disaster ever strikes this town or county, the citizens can be absolutely sure the Red Cross will be right on hand to help them in every way.

The Tribune $2 a year, and worth it.

Official Paper of Pennington County

FARM BUREAU VOTES TO JOIN STATE BUREAU

WILL AFFILIATE WITH STATE AND NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS—OTHER MATTERS

The Pennington County Farm Bureau at a called meeting Saturday night voted to affiliate with the State Federation of Farm Bureaus and the National Federation of Farm Bureaus, a step which at once places the local organization in the front ranks and gives them the united support of the state and national organizations.

The meeting to be held at St. Paul on November 19 and 20 will be attended by J. H. Hay of Minneapolis, J. J. McCann, county farm bureau agent, and Ben Rosendal.

Mr. Rosendal was appointed county director and will attend all called meetings of the state association and affiliate with the state federation in every way possible as a representative of the local farm bureau.

It will be the duty of Mr. Rosendal to attend any and all called meetings and to report back to the local farm bureau the action taken and to give a clear and concise report of every session he attends.

The decision of the local organization to affiliate with the state and national organizations is a big step in the right direction and one that should meet with the approval of every member of the local farm bureau. At a very little extra cost a member of the Pennington County Farm Bureau is at once a member of the state and national farm bureaus and receives the united co-operation and support in every measure that comes up pertaining to farming and farming methods. It is one of the best moves possible for the local organization to take and will result in much good for the entire membership.

At the meeting Saturday evening, it was also decided to put on a membership drive this winter, the exact date to be determined later. It is thought the drive for membership will not be held until after the first of the year, and a committee consisting of Harry Woolson, Ben Rosendal, L. A. Lampert and Paul Engelstad was appointed to make the necessary arrangements and to fix the date as to when the drive shall take place.

The membership drive which is being held in a number of counties in the state at the present time is meeting with splendid success and is adding many new members to the farm bureau. The membership drives are arranged by the state organization and they attend to every detail of conducting the drive. It is thought that here in Pennington county the local farm bureaus will attend to the drive themselves, selecting the men they wish to use in soliciting new members and not relying on the state for this assistance. It is felt that better results will be obtained in the county if men are selected for the soliciting of members who are well known the county over and who stand well among the men to be solicited. It is thought by the board of directors that many more new members will be gained in this manner than would otherwise be gained if the state federation were to send their crews into the field, many of whom would be strangers and who would naturally be unable to approach the men in this county as will those men who have lived here and who know practically every man by his first name. In this we believe the local bureau shows good judgment and will consequently be able to reach many men that otherwise would not listen to outside solicitors.

The date for the drive will be announced in a few weeks and preparations made for an intensive drive among the farmers of the county, with the hope of increasing the membership of the farm bureau one hundred per cent and perhaps more.

Birthday Party.

About seventy-five of the neighbors and friends of Mrs. J. J. Weeks agreeably surprised her last Wednesday, the occasion being her birthday. The afternoon was spent in sewing, following which a delicious lunch was served. Mrs. Weeks received a beautiful parlor lamp from her friends, which also served as a wedding anniversary gift. Mr. and Mrs. Weeks have been married thirty-five years, celebrating the event just a few days before her birthday.

To Minneapolis.

Mrs. J. J. Richter leaves this evening for Minneapolis as a delegate to the state meeting of the Public Health Association. While in the city Mrs. Richter will call on Mrs. Fosseen, Governor Elect Preus and other notables.

...OR BIG GAME HUNTING OPENED ON MONDAY OF THIS WEEK

The open season for the hunting of big game opened Monday and many of the local hunters are missing when inquiries are called in many Thief River Falls homes at the present time, and many more will be missing in the course of a few days.

The county auditor issued seventy-five licenses up to last night, which means there will be at least seventy-five deer missing when the final count is taken among the herds of Northwestern Minnesota. The past season there were 450 licenses issued for the hunting of small game, which is a record breaker and due no doubt to the open season on partridges which has been closed until this year.

The law this year provides that moose calves must not be killed and that only one deer or one male antlered moose may be killed. Deer and moose without license coupons attached are contraband and are subject to seizure wherever found. Therefore it is necessary for those who desire to hunt big game to secure a license which may be obtained at the office of the county auditor. At the close of the season all licenses are required to report to the state game and fish commissioner the kind and number of each bird or quadruped taken. The season for netting white fish and tullibees opened Nov. 1 and will continue until December 10.

FIRST AND SECOND PLACE WON SHOW AT CROOKSTON

GUERNSEY CALVES EASILY CAPTURE ALL HONORS—WILL BE SHOWN AT ST. PAUL

Pennington county will have two prize winners at the Junior Live Stock Show in St. Paul on the 17th, 18th and 19th of this month, Misses Pearl and Ruby Conklin winning first and second in the Crookston show last week, which entitles them to a free trip to the live stock show at St. Paul.

The calves on which first and second prize was received by the Conklin girls were both sired by Mr Conklin and which have been taking prizes wherever and whenever shown. The judge at the Crookston show did not even hesitate when it came time to award the prizes and after very little deliberation placed first and second on the two calves exhibited.

It is felt that the calf which took first prize will eventually be shown at the International show at Chicago and that another blue ribbon will be awarded the pure breds of Pennington county.

The trip to the Junior Live Stock show which the two young ladies have thus earned will be worth many dollars to them. Much of an educational nature will be received and the trip will prove valuable from a great many standpoints.

A state wide exhibition of young live stock second only to that seen at the state fair will be exhibited at the Junior Live Stock Show. Boys and girls from about thirty counties are feeding about 700 calves for this contest. The two best yearlings and the two best calves from each county will be shown at South St. Paul on Nov. 19th more than 100 head of the finest beef stock ever produced in Minnesota will be sold at auction. Juniors of 32 Minnesota counties are feeding about 600 calves for the dairy calf contest. Hundreds of other boys and girls are getting pigs and lambs in the best of condition to exhibit at South St. Paul. The annual live stock judging contest for juniors will be held at Twin City Farm on November 17, the opening day of the show.

FIRST DEER OF SEASON

Sig Myrom and Ole Ihle are the first to bring home a deer since the season opened. The deer was sighted about thirty miles northeast of Gryglen and was shot by Mr. Myrom. Mr. Ihle states there were two of the deer together, but it was impossible to get close enough to shoot the other and as a result they were forced to come home with only the one. He says there were plenty of tracks and evidences of many deer in that part of the country and expects there will be many brought in from that section before the season ends.

FAIR DIRECTORS ELECT SECRETARY FROM THE BOARD

ACTING PRESIDENT FULLER TO ATTEND TO DUTIES FOR THE PRESENT.

The directors of the Pennington County Agricultural Society met on Saturday evening for the purpose of electing a secretary for the coming year and to attend to such other business as was necessary.

The election of a secretary to succeed G. Howard Smith was the first matter of consideration that came up and after much discussion pro and con the board decided to get along for the present time without the aid of a secretary and for the present the president of the board, Herbert Fuller, will act in that capacity and the selection of the secretary will lay over until such time as the board finds they are in need of the services of a secretary.

It was the intention of the board to adopt a budget system with reference to the fair for next year, but this was also postponed and nothing along this line will be attempted at the present.

In the erection of a new women's building and the other necessary matters that came up for discussion along this line, the board decided to take no action whatever, letting the matter rest where it is until conditions loosen up a trifle and conditions to "normal." They fully realize the need of new buildings, but believe it the better plan to let matters stand as they are for the present and later on take up the most important matters and straighten them out as they should be.

For the time being the association will rock along as it now exists and nothing new will be undertaken for at least another year.

EXCELLENT MENU FOR THURSDAY LUNCHEON HAS BEEN PREPARED

Pot Roast.
Mashed Potatoes.
Brown Gravy. Creamed Onions
Hot Rolls.
Coffee.
Baked Appla Dumplings
With Cream Sauce.

The above appetizing menu will be served tomorrow noon at the Commercial Club lunch and should prove a drawing card for all men who enjoy just such a meal when it is all homecooked—and that is what the dinners at the club are.

Reports of two important committees recently named are expected to be made at the business meeting following the lunch and undoubtedly other important matters will be up for discussion.

Members of the club are generally well pleased with the noonday meetings instead of having to come down town evenings during the winter as a rule lasted so long as to be rather a detriment to the club than an advantage. The short snappy meetings always are more welcome and in the end a better spirit seems to be the result.

To Test Fire Whistle During Winter Months

In case the fire whistle happens to blow at six o'clock during the winter months, do not become alarmed, as this step is taken by Fire Chief Middaugh to see that the whistle is in working order and that it will be on the job in case a fire breaks out in the winter and will not be frozen up when needed most.

The experience of last winter has caused the fire department to play safe as to the working order of the siren and to be absolutely sure that it is not frozen up and will blow when it should and not emit a sickly wheeze hardly loud enough to be heard around the corner.

The step is a wise one and will insure the local department against any trouble during the cold weather. When the whistle blows at six o'clock just remember that it is being tested and that there is no fire.

Ribbon Social.

A ribbon social will be held Saturday, November 20, in school district No. 194, known as Peter Ness district. Ladies to bring two ribbons and lunch for two.

St. John's Lutheran Ladies' Aid.

The Ladies' Aid meets Wednesday afternoon in the church basement. Several of the ladies will join in serving the lunch.

SELECTING HIS TIMBER

LYCEUM NUMBER WILL BE GIVEN THURSDAY EVE

FIRST NUMBER OF COURSE WILL BE GIVEN AT AUDITORIUM NOVEMBER 18.

The coming of the Redpath concert orchestra with Edward Barrow, tenor, on Thursday, November 18th, is being looked forward to by local lyceumites as one of the stellar attractions of the year.

The Redpath orchestra is one of the feature companies produced by the nation-wide Redpath organization, having been so named because of its excellence. The artists are men and women of long and careful training and experience as concert artists, soloists, as members of big orchestras and light operas and in musical comedy.

Mr. Barrow, tenor soloist, on tour with the orchestra, is an artist of international reputation. He has a robust tenor voice with a splendid range and his work is equally effective in sweetness and tenderness as well as in volume of sound. He has alternated in concert with Schumann-Heink, Evan Williams, David Bispham and Lambardi Nordica. While a student in the Royal Academy of Music, London, he won the gold medal, awarded annually to the students who give promise of the greatest achievements in the field of music.

Perhaps no better idea could be give of the extent and value of his experience and the esteem in which Mr. Barrow is held by musical people than to furnish a list of some of his engagements. Without a doubt these are the best concert appearances an artist can make: Queen's Hall, London; Albert Hall, London; Syracuse Music Festivals; Maine Music Festivals; Boston Apollo Club.

The attraction will be given at the auditorium on Thursday evening of this week, starting promptly at 8:15 o'clock.

PROSPECTS FOR HIGH CLASS BASKETBALL TEAM ARE EXCELLENT

The Legion basketball team is getting into shape for one of the fastest seasons of all and are practicing hard with the idea of getting together one of the best teams in the history of the old town.

There are at present fifteen or twenty trying out for the team this year and rigid practice will determine who is to be classed as one of the regulars on the all-star team. It is expected the team will start booking games about the first of December and they are already confident that a team will be selected from the material available that will make opposing teams step some to keep in sight of. It is certain that the Legion team will deliver the goods, as the team selected last year made matters mighty interesting for all opponents in this section of the state, winning games from some of the best teams possible to get together.

MUCH INTEREST BEING SHOWN IN COMING EXHIBIT

POULTRY SHOW, WHICH OPENS NEXT MONDAY, GIVES PROMISE OF BEING BEST YET.

Next Monday the fourth annual poultry show of the Pennington County Poultry Association will open in the Auditorium in this city, and the exhibits this years are going to be many and varied and of sufficient number to practically fill the large building.

The officers in charge of the show this year feel that this is going to be one of the best shows held by the association from the interest being manifested at this time. Inquiries from several distant points have been received and it is certain there will be entries from all sections.

The premium lists have been distributed and a great many valuable prizes are being offered this year for the best exhibits. The prize list is equal to any offered by cities three times the size of Thief River Falls and is one that will be well worth the effort spent.

The Pennington County Poultry show is considered one of the best in Northwestern Minnesota and without a question ranks as high as any held in the entire state. Many compliments were given the officers on the show held last year and it is commonly agreed that the exhibits were as fine as could be found anywhere. The exhibits this year are expected to be fully as good as last year and more of them, which will make this year's show one of supreme importance to the fanciers of Northwestern Minnesota.

LOCAL CHAPTER OF RED CROSS ELECTS OFFICERS

WILL ALSO MAKE DRIVE FOR MEMBERS, STARTING FRIDAY AND SATURDAY THIS WEEK

The called meeting of the directors of the local branch of the Red Cross last Friday afternoon at the auditor's office at the court house, was well attended and many matters of importance were taken up and quickly disposed of. The first matter for consideration was the election of officers for the coming year, with the following result: President, Mrs. W. H. Froelich; vice president, T. P. Anderson; secretary, Mrs. E. M. Stanton; treasurer, T. L. Melgard. The board of directors consists of Daniel Shaw, John Batrud, Dr. W. H. Froelich, John Morgan, Mrs. A. W. Swedenburg, T. H. Austad and Mrs. Andrew Craik.

Mrs. H. W. Froelich was appointed roll call chairman and it is her intention to start the campaign for membership in the local chapter on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Mrs. Andrew Craik has been appointed chairman of the city and will supervise the work of making a house to house canvas. Miss Elaine Swanson, field representative of the northern division, is in the city and will assist the chairmen in conducting the roll call and offer every assistance in the campaign. She spoke at the meeting held by the Women's Club yesterday afternoon and to the Community Girls in the evening. She meets with the chapter at Goodridge today, Hazel on Wednesday and St. Hilaire on Thursday, holding meetings at each place and getting the chapters under way for the roll call.

T. P. Anderson was retained for next year as chairman of the home service section. Mr. Anderson has done much in the past year in this line of work and has been called upon to assist people in all the adjoining counties, not alone Pennington, but every county that borders this. He has found this branch of the service to be one of the most important of all, especially since the war has ceased and there are so many former service men in need of advice and assistance. It is also true of the parents of service men and not a day goes by that Mr. Anderson does not receive from one to a dozen calls for help in the solution of some problem with reference to a former service man. And the fact that they do not come only from those of Pennington county but from all the surrounding counties, adds greatly to the work and makes it one of real importance and a hard one to fill. Mr. Anderson was selected as the best man possible to fill this place and he is more than willing to devote his time to this work of helping others.

Christmas Shopping Should Be Started Soon--32 Days

Anticipation and forethought provide the real joy of Christmas shopping. Last minute rushes, hasty, ill advised selections and limited assortments fall to the lot of the late Christmas shopper.

In every family, in every circle of friends, there are certain gifts which all know will please beyond any others. Now is the time to have them reserved or purchased from the complete holiday stocks which are abundant in nearly every store in the city at this time.

Many of the local business institutions have been holding sales and which are still in force. People are cautioned against waiting too long to make selections, for there is already a shrinkage in shipments which are coming into the city, due in part to heavy demands on jobbers in the large centers by merchants in those cities. Again the increased freight rates are soaring some merchants from heavy purchases.

One out-of-town shopper this week commented that he was thru with mail order houses for he had a small parcel come from Chicago and the freight thereon was $1.39, nearly 50 per cent more than the cost of the article.

Patronize your home merchants and they will be glad to tell you what they can save you on just such contemplated purchases as the above referred to party, had secured.

Last of all, do not forget that there are but 32 more shopping days to Christmas.

It was such confidential testimony from one of my rough acquaintances there on London's great docks that made me feel that my disguise and my hard luck story were "getting over."

Earlier that morning I had figuratively held my breath as I took my place in the line of a dozen near-down- and-outers waiting for a job at one of the dock gates. Even there, however, courage to start the summer's line of questions of my workmen pals came to me when the third of them had come up, reached behind his ear for the inch or so of cigaret carefully preserved there and, with perhaps nothing more than a friendly "Rainin' quite tidy, sprut it?" taking my cigaret out of my mouth for a fraternal light.

English Workers Are Friendly.

So it is easy—and pleasant— to report that the Johnnie Bull a fellow finds on the rough jobs of England, Wales or Scotland is a friendly chap. Perhaps it would be proper to add, friendly with care—with reservations —at least at first.

"Yer awsked me ter 'awve a pint with yer aw'ile bawck, didn't yer?" a steel mill laborer said one night after I had been asking him about my getting a job in his famous iron and steel town. "Awnd I says to yer 'No,' didn't I? Wull, yes see, I wuz considerin'—I alius mikes it a rule never to drink with a stryngger without considerin', like. Wull—er wull, now I've considered."

When it was finally possible to land a job working "at the face" down 900 feet at the bottom of a great mine in South Wales, the second day brought greetings of "Hello, Charlie" from the friendly, though very husky, comrades in the dark heading. How they can call out a hearty Welsh "How be ?" or "Shumsi?" to a friend and call him by name when all they can see of him is the swing of his lantern is an amazing thing.

Another amazing thing is to see how close men can come to each other's minds and hearts as they talk things over as they rip the "coals" from the bulging "face" and carry it to the "drams" or trams in the dishpan shaped "curlin" box" or later walk out together the few miles and more of darkness up hill and down dale, back to the "bottom" where the "onsetter" puts us onto the hoists and rings for the "winder" to set us again into the glory of sunshine.

Perhaps it is the ever-present feeling of danger that draws men together in such places. It's a certainty that I walked closer to my "buddy" after he had raised his lantern to disclose that gray stretcher of a box just the size of a coffin with the shadows of dark possibilities hiding behind it from his lamp.

"Ye'll be knowin' the meanin' of this?" he inquired as he lifted the lid and showed the stretcher inside. He had been 40 years at work in this same mine. Experience had taught him when to caution silence while we went thru places where the vibration of even a voice might bring a piece of "top" down upon us both.

More probably it is because men do their realest living on their jobs—or want to—that you come to know men best when you meet them at their work. Still, just because jobs represent the most valuable piece of property that most men have, it is fairly serious business for an outsider to appear as too much of a competitor in that connection.

"Wot abaht this 'ere American foreigner as comes to take our jobs w'ilst we fight for our rights?" angrily demanded one of the "bolshie" strikers after he had heard me asking for one of the "graffers" on the hundreds of hectic morning when the hundreds of us gathered at the mine's main "split" or "parting" to vote not to go further in toward the working places.

Finds It Rather a Thick Moment.

The crowd had been smashing some windows up outside." It was not in good mood. So I found it rather a thick moment. Luckily the leader turned and saw me standing there and was able to give his questioner the proper reassurance.

That evening the asker of the question came to me in the "pub" with his apology "as 'avin' spoke in 'aste an' anger, sir."

With the rest of his friends that man has doubtless been playing his part in the great coal-strike. That in turn has helped out man over here in America. In spite of that, John Bull, workman, wants to be a good fellow —and is. Personally, I'm glad to have met him.

DEMPSEY AND CARPENTIER SIGN THE PAPERS

They've really done it—they've signed the papers, those fatal papers—fatal to one of the two, but we can only stand by until next March and do our prophesying, as the contract reads that the bout in which Dempsey will defend his title, shall take place in the United States, Canada or Cuba between next March and July. Fourth, the promoter to get $200,000 and Carpentier $200,000. Tiompsey is fatal giving "Carp" the "once over" as he is affixing his John

PRICES AND WAGE SHOW ADDITIONAL DOWNWARD TREND

Chicago.—Prices are doing a Humpty Dumpty fall. Employment is still slackening. Evidences of this have been noticed in several sections of the country.

In St. Louis several wholesale companies announced reductions in dry goods prices—in some instances as much as 50 per cent. Declines in the cost of materials at the mills and a general price readjustment were the reasons ascribed. As examples of the St. Louis cuts, gingham, which recently sold at 35 cents a yard, wholesale now is offered at 17 cents; percale, which at the peak struck 30 cents a yard, now is going at 123 cents or 21 cents below the prevailing mail prices. As to silks, goods which at the peak brought $5 a yard are now marked as low as $1.50. These, it should be remembered, are wholesale prices, not retail.

At Greenville, S. C., several large cotton mills, following the example of New England plants, announced reductions of 10 to 20 per cent in wages in order to keep going.

New York, thru the department of justice, announced reductions in the prices of hotels and restaurants. In the "white light" sector specializing d'hote dinners were cut from $1.50 to $2.50. Sounds like old stuff from Attorney General Palmer's conversational experts.

In Chicago one significant touch was the blossoming of new signs in some of the loop tailors' shops. Windows which for months have exhibited suitings marked $100 a suit now display goods marked $80 and $85. The goods may be different, but the emphasis is on lower prices.

Signs of growing unemployment cropped up in many quarters. One large department store reported that more than 200 applicants for clerical jobs had lined up at its employment office one morning. It had not experienced any such rush in the last 18 months.

At Ware, Mass., the Otis Company announced its cloth department with 1,000 employes would operate only four days a week because of lack of orders. Some other concerns are going to half time or less. Word from New England is that workers in the textile industry are now working, on an average, not more than half time.

On the west side in Chicago slackness of employment in the garment indnstry is growing, while in New York it has reached large proportions.

In the lumber industry mills are closing down because of stagnation in building construction, due to high prices. The mills in the last few months have made cuts in mill prices, in some instances, it is claimed, going below the actual cost of production in an effort to make sales. But no proportionate reduction has come as yet in retail prices.

Memphis reports that 95 per cent of the hardwood mills in the southern territory will be closed by Nov. 1. Helena, Ark., a hardwood producting center, says only one of its 27 lumber mills was operating Nov 1. Some of this is seasonal, but much more is caused by lack of orders. The slump in building, in furniture factories, in phonograph plants and other lines using hardwood is now backing up until it reaches the logger himself and throws him out of work—so close is the economic fabric built.

On the Pacific coast saw mill production is expected to be curtailed 50 per cent by the end of the month. Despite low prices stock is piling up at the mills, the retail yards not buying in usual volume because of the uncertainty and also because of high cost stuff already in the yards.

AMERICANS ABROAD IN RED CROSS WORK

United States Citizens Far Away Enthusiastic Members of the "Fourteenth" Division.

Among the most enthusiastic and energetic members of the American Red Cross are those citizens of the United States who live outside the continental boundaries of their country—sons and daughters of the Stars and Stripes residing at the far corners of the earth.

These people compose the Insular and Foreign Division of the parent organization, generally known as the "Fourteenth" Division, which has jurisdiction of all territory outside the country proper; that is, Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii, Virgin Islands, the Philippines, Guam, and even the island of Yap, which came under our flag as a result of the world war. For the year 1920 the division reported 20,808 paid up members.

The main object of this division is to give our citizens everywhere the opportunity to participate in the work of the organization which stands for the best national ideals. Americans in far places intensely loyal and patriotic, treasure their membership in the Red Cross as the outward expression of their citizenship. It is another tie to the homeland and to each other. There are chapters of this division in Argentine, Bellyia, Brazil, Canal zone, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, England, France, Guam, Guatemala, Haiti, Hawaii, Honduras, Japan, Manchuria, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Pern, Philippines, Porto Rico, Siberia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Syria, Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela and Virgin Islands.

During the war these scattered members of the Red Cross contributed millions in money, and millions of dollars' worth of necessary articles for the men in service, and sent many doctors and nurses to France. At the same time they carried on an excellent Home Service in their respective communities for the families of those who had gone to war, and in some regions gave large sums of money and immensurable personal service to the relief of disaster and disease victims.

The division is now establishing service clubs in foreign ports for the benefit of sailors in the American Merchant Marine, making plans to aid Americans in trouble in foreign lands, and completing arrangements for giving immediate adequate relief in case of disaster.

RED CROSS ASSISTS DISABLED VETERANS

The American Red Cross is carrying on a wide program of service for the disabled World War veterans receiving treatment in United States Public Health hospitals, and those being trained through agencies of the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

In each of the Public Health Service hospitals Red Cross workers devote their time to the general welfare of the service men from the day they enter the receiving ward until they are discharged. After the soldier's discharge the Red Cross continues its friendly service through the Home Service Section in his own community.

The Red Cross maintains a convalescent house at all of the hospitals, where patients can amuse themselves after they are well enough to be up and around. Parties and picture shows in the wards are also furnished, with occasional excursions when convalescence comes.

Great service has been rendered by the Red Cross in mental cases in identifying those who have appeared in state hospitals for the insane, and helping them secure compensation due from the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

In the Federal Board's various district offices the Red Cross workers, acting with the Home Service Section, makes necessary loans to the men, arranges suitable living conditions, helps collect evidence and supply facts to the Board, assists in "appealing cases" and settles various personal difficulties for the men. The workers also follow up and aid all men who discontinue training.

The Red Cross agents find men "lost" to the Board, help clear up delayed cases and aid the college counsellor in their friendly work with the men. Many Red Cross chapters have set up recreation facilities, and in some instances living clubs, so these victims of war may have attractive surroundings and the fun which must go with effective school work.

To the American Red Cross Institute for the Blind near Baltimore, Md., more than half of all the Americans blinded in the World War have come for training. The Institute, through the Red Cross, long ago conducted an exhaustive industrial survey to determine the vocations for which blind men could be fitted. As a result it is putting forth well trained men equipped to meet the social, civic and economic requirements of their respective communities.

Aid for Spanish Red Cross.

The Iberian chapter of the American Red Cross, composed of Americans resident in Spain, has just contributed $480 to a fund being raised by the Spanish Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies for the purpose of fighting malaria.

IRISH HOME RULE BILL PASSED BY BRITISH COMMONS

PROVIDES TWO PARLIAMENTS, ONE FOR ULSTER AND ONE FOR NATIONALISTS.

London.—The Irish home rule bill has passed the house of commons on its third reading after a motion for rejection of the measure, proposed by William C. Anderson, the labor opposition leader, had been defeated by 183 to 52.

The measure passed without any noteworthy incident on a rather tame debate. The liberal and labor members who have boycotted it though most of its stages as a sign of their conviction of its hopelessness as a settlement of the Irish problem, were again absent. The final stage was reached in a small and rather listless gathering of members of the house.

Former Premier Asquith appealed for advantage to be taken of the associations and emotions aroused by the anniversary of Armistice day, which could not be put to worthier use than an endeavor to find a basis of real settlement for Ireland.

Lloyd George Defends Bill.

Premier Lloyd George, replying, contended that the present bill was a generous measure, but the Irish people were not in a temper to give it proper understanding and consideration.

He declared that documents to be published at an early date, found in the possession of Sinn Fein leaders in 1918, proving they were involved in a German plot, would show the necessity of England maintaining complete control of Irish harbors.

To give Ireland the power to raise a conscript army, he said, would be a dangerous menace to Great Britain and he warned the Irishmen that with an army of that kind in Ireland, under full powers of Irish dominion, conscription in England would become inevitable.

The premier contended that it was equally impossible to allow Ireland her own navy, which was quite needless for her national life and could only be used for the peril of Great Britain and her own destruction. He argued that it was fruitless to talk of granting fiscal autonomy as the people still demanding a republic. Expressing a fervent hope for the removal of misunderstandings which would make the future so dark, the premier closed with a note of emotion:

"It may be that it was an Irish soldier who hanged today. Ireland has had a great and brilliant share in the empire. Some of her greatest and most gallant warriors helped to fight for the empire. Some of her great statesmen—the shining wisdom of Burke, and the stern leadership of Wellington—all contributed to build up the empire.

"All we say is that Ireland should not in a moment of anger cast away an inheritance which is as much hers as ours, but join in the empire it helped to build and adorn."

The fundamental principles laid down by the British government in the home rule bill are:

First—That the people of the nine Ulster counties shall not be brought administratively under an outside parliament in Ireland.

Second—that there shall not be any weakening of the reservations which have been made by the government for the purpose of safeguarding the vital interests of the United Kingdom.

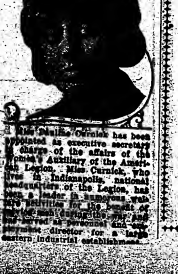
At the time of the introduction of the measure it was stated that the home rule the government intended to give Ireland was based primarily on the declaration of Premier Lloyd George in a speech last December that Great Britain cannot accept separation.

Under the bill two legislatures with upper and lower houses would be set up, one for the north of Ireland and the other for the south.

If less than half the members of either legislature are validly elected or fail to swear allegiance to the king, the king may dissolve the parliament and place the government in the hands of a commitee appointed by the lord lieutenant.

A "council for Ireland," composed of forty members, half of whom would be selected by each parliament, also is provided for. The powers of the council would be limited to those granted it by the two legislatures.

Tha farmers of the bill, it was said, hoped the council would form the nucleus around which could be built one parliament for the whole of Ireland.



The two legislatures would have full control of education, local government and land policy, transportation, old age pensions, insurance and other matters. A court of appeals for the whole of Ireland, presided over by the lord chancellor, is provided for. Neither body may establish any particular religious denomination.

Control of the royal Irish constabulary and the metropolitan police of Dublin would be transferred by the imperial parliament to the Irish parliament three years after the act goes into operation.

Powers reserved to the imeprial parliament embrace the crown, peace and war, foreign affairs, army and navy, coinage, defense, treason, trade outside of Ireland, postoffices, navigation, including merchant shipping, wireless and cables and collection of income and excess profits taxes.

Both north and south Ireland would contribute for two years to the support of the empire.

MANY KILLED BY RAILWAY TRAINS AT CROSSINGS

CARELESSNESS OF AUTOISTS IN CROSSING TRACKS RESULTS IN LARGE DEATH LIST.

Seventy per cent of those killed or injured at grade crossings in a three-year period were motorists, according to figures compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission and just given publicity by the American Automobile Association, which thru its touring, good roads and legislative boards, is preparing a nation-wide agitation on this vital phase of highway travel and transportation.

"Three times as many American citizens were killed or injured at grade crosisngs in 1917, 1918 and 1919 as were killed and injured during the Revolutionary war," states M. O. Eldridge, the A. A. A. director of roads, who gives the American casualties in the principal battles as 6,500 and places the grade crossing killed or injured for the three year period as 19,668 men, women and children, of whom 5,606 died of their injuries within 24 hours of the accident.

In spite of the combined efforts of railroad and highway officials and automobile clubs, the total number of accidents continues annually at about the same rate. The number of such accidents and deaths for the calendar years 1917-1918 and 1918 as compiled by the Interstate Commerce Commission, is indicated as follows:

| Year | Killed | Injured | Total |
| 1917 | 1,969 | 4,764 | 6,733 |
| 1918 | 1,862 | 4,683 | 6,535 |
| 1919 | 5,605 | 4,616 | 5,400 |
| For 3 years | 5,606 | 14,063 | 19,668 |

These accidents include all persons who were injured or killed by railroad trains striking them or being struck by trolly cars, automobiles or other vehicles and by trains striking pedestrians. A great majority of the accidents have occurred to motorists as will be seen from the following figures:

| Year | Killed | Injured | Total |
| 1917 | 1,083 | 3,000 | 4,083 |
| 1918 | 1,131 | 3,109 | 4,240 |
| 1919 | 1,232 | 3,588 | 4,790 |
| Total 3 years | 3,446 | 9,767 | 13,213 |

Thus it appears that nearly 70 per cent of those injured and killed during the three year period were motorists and that such deaths and accidents are steadily increasing from year to year. In fact, there were nearly 14 per cent more motorists killed in 1919 at grade crossings than in 1917.

During the year ending June 30, 1920, there were 1,302 motorists killed at grade crossings in the United States.

That preventive measures are becoming more effective in some states than in others because of grade crossing elimination, more cautious driving and the protection of crossings by gates, bells, etc., is indicated by the fact that the deaths occurring are not always in direct proportion tot the number of machines registered in those states. For instance, while New York gained first place in registrations, more motorists were killed in Ohio. Likewise Pennsylvania, running third in 1919 registrations, has fifth place on the death list. Massachusetts was tenth in registrations, but twenty-fourth in fatality matters. Connecticut was twenty-third in registration but thirty-fourth in fatalities.

More people were killed in Delaware in proportion to the number of cars registered than in any other state. Florida occupies second place on this unenviable list.

1, Delaware; 2 Florida; 3 Arkansas; 4, Mississippi; 5, Indiana; 6, New Mexico; 7, South Carolina; 8, New Jersey; 9, Oklahomas; 10, West Virginia; 11, Louisiana; 12, Virginia; 13, North Carolina; 14, Utah, 15 Vermont, 16, Kentucky; 17, Illinois; 18, Michigan; 19, Montana; 10, Georgia; 21, Nevada; 22, Ohio; 23, California.

In South Dakota there were fewer motorists killed in proportion to the number of machines registered than in any other state. Massachusetts occupies the second place on this list with Maryland third.

1, South Dakota; 2, Massachusetts; 3, Maryland; 4, Texas; 5, North Dakota; 6, Connecticut; 7, Colorado; 8, Rhode Island; 9, Iowa; 10, New York; 11, Washington; 12, Utah; 10, Kansas; 14, Tennessee; 15, Idaho; 16, Pennsylvania; 17, Minnesota; 18, Missouri, 19, Wisconsin; 20, Wyoming; 21, Alabama; 22, Maine; 23, District of Columbia; 24, New Hampshire.

It is practically impossible to eliminate all grade crossings on account of the expense involved. The Pennsylvania railroad has already spent $66,000,000 in grade crossing elimination and it is estimated that it would cost $600,000,000 to wipe out the remaining 13,000 grade crossings.

"There are thousands of grade crossings( however, that could be eliminated by relocating the main highways and by confining the bulk of the traffic to one side of the railroad," comments Mr. Eldridge. "Frequently the highway will wind back and forth across the railroad tracks without any apparent reason.

"I have in mind a highway in Arkansas which crosses the main line of an important railroad nine times in a distance of less than thirty miles.

"The great majority of accidents occur at unprotected crossings over double track railroads where one train may prevent motorists from observing the approach of another train, or where the railroad tracks are obscured by embankments, buildings, trees or shrubbery. On the other hand, many accidents occur where the track is clearly visible in both directions. Such accidents may be attributed to plain carelessness or foolhardiness on the part of the drivers.

"It would seem that since the elimination of grade crossings is the only sure method of preventing accidents, this work should be contained as rapidly as finds can be secured," concludes the A. A. A. official, who urges that "every possible effort be made to protect the public from accidents and to impress upon the drivers of all motor vehicles the necessity for extreme caution."

Mrs. J. M. Bishop and Mrs. J. H. Hardisty went to St. Paul last night to attend the meeting of the State Association of Legion, Mothers, Daughters and Sisters. Mrs. Bishop will attend several political conferences. Mrs. Hardisty has matters at the state capitol for attention. Both ladies will meet Governor-elect Preus by special invitations and for a conference on legislative matters.

The election of Daniel Shaw as a member of the Pennington County Fair Association is the result of a long continued campaign, upon the part of Mr. Shaw and his political adherents to gain this place, with the idea that he will, as a director of the fair association here, have some prestige in getting on the state fair board and possibly become one of the officers or something of a badge wearing rank. Mr. Shaw will be very helpful in handling any department of the local fair work to which he may be assigned.

Mr. Kelsey Chase, former bank examiner, authority on things fiduciary, autocrat in his position as examiner, the man who "told" the country bankers and other state bankers what they could do and must do, a man conspicuous in the public print in Minnesota for many years and touted as a great financier, is now designated by one of his principal customers, Forger Schaeffer, of the Stillwater penitentiary, as a shylock and a shark. Incidentally, Schaeffer gave Chase a new Winton Twin Six on the side as a commission for placing certain deposit certificates issued irregularly for loans. Mr. Chase has been retired from his banking connections, shorn of his false plumage and is just a discredited citizen, county treasurer of Ramsey county and waiting for the axe to fall.

We note by the Minneapolis papers that an ordinance has been passed prohibiting carnival and street fair attractions. Carnival companies in many cases are nothing but an aggregation of low brows and degenerates. Their shows are vulgar and disgusting. They carry imbeciles, snakes, gamblers. At the last fair in Thief River Falls more than forty games of chance were running openly. License is given to these degenerates to do acts that would be a crime down town. The time to kick on demoralizing attractions is now. If the Woman's Club or other organizations are interested in these matters, now is the time to get in and work to raise the standard of the fair. We are against gambling, snake charmers and worse at the fair, but when the program is settled and agreed upon, we are going to support the board in their efforts to make a fair. Kick now, effectively, or keep still after you have had a fair chance.

Pennington county, where Preus and Collins opened their fall campaign, certainly showed some waking up. In June it was the worst Nonpartisan county in the state. But while Shipstead carried the county then by nearly four to one, he did not get it by quite two to one this time. The vote in June was 876 for Preus and 1,413 for Shipstead. In November it was 1,267 for Preus and 2,607 for Shipstead. In percentages, the republican vote increased 238 per cent, the league vote 77 per cent.—Charles B. Cheney in Minneapolis Journal.

The above is a very fine compliment for Chairman Michelet and Miss Hamry of the Republican County Committee. Mr. Cheney was here during the campaign. He was promised results and he notes the delivery. An increase of 238 per cent is exceedingly fine and a splendid record for our most estimable chairman. We are pleased to see the result noted in high places. Mr. Cheney is the best political writer authority in the state.

The following is a quotation from an interview with Mr. Harding by Edwin C. Hill, which was published in the New York Herald October 31, two days before election:

"Is it fair to ask what you think of Wilson?"

Harding hesitated and well he might. I happened to know that no one of the senate had been treated with more deliberate contempt in the meetings between the president and the foreign relations committee. I was prepared for a sharp comment.

"You want my honest opinion, don't you? Well, here it is: Woodrow Wilson will have his place in history as one of the most intellectual figures of a century and a half, a man of wonderful mentality, a man of fine ideas usually. But the trouble with Wilson is that he has never understood the people. That has not been his fault altogether. Lacking real understanding of the people, he let his personal ideals carry him to impossible lengths. He failed to understand that in this world of ours great good is only obtainable by harmonious action, by good understanding, by compromising differences and getting to something like a practical working basis of action. The American people can never be driven, although they are willing to be led. There's has been Wilson's great blunder.—Outlook.

We would most respectfully recommend the appointment of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis for attorney general in President Harding's cabinet. If we could have Landis for attorney general, we could get some real action. He would find the profiteers, name them, tell them where to get off at and get a result. They are up at the top. The are grafting the public for millions per day. Will a Republican administration do something to help the producer and consumer and will they make an example of the profiteers? We hope so.

The value of farm crops this year—to the farmers—has declined to the extent of several millions, involving the farmers in difficulties upon the right solution of which, according to the secretary of agriculture himself, the ultimate prosperity of the nation depends. In such circumstances, the farmers ask for further credits from the federal reserve board. These are denied. Yet at the same time, the treasury agrees to provide $100,000,000 for the aid of the Cuban sugar planters, $50,000,000 for the railroads and other odd millions for other needy applicants. Perhaps it is right; but it will be difficult to convince farmers of the fact. It would be very different if the great decline in the prices received by farmers were accompanied, as of course it should be, by a corresponding decline in the cost of farm products to the consumers. But such is not the case. The farmers are getting much less than they did, but the consumers are paying about as much as ever. That apparently means that the middlemen and speculators are making cent per cent profits or more. And the Hon. Alexander M. Palmer has talked so much about putting a stop to profiteering!—Harvey's Weekly.

Some of the largest business adorning our cities are mail-order businesses. In fact, dozens of retail stores in the cities have their mail-order departments. Why not the small-town merchant? The mail-order scheme of doing business serves a legitimate purpose, or it would not be so flourishing.

In Thief River Falls, Minnesota, there is a country merchant who saved his business by using the mail-order idea. His town has a population of 3,714 people. His business was drawn almost entirely from the surrounding country.

During the winter months trade always fell off, due to the heavy snows and rigorous weather which made it impossible for country customers and those living in the outlying districts to come to the store. He felt certain that during this season of the year money was getting thru his fingers and going to the mail-order concerns.

So he bought a printing press and commenced to send out circulars carrying announcements from his "mail order department." Later he issued a catalogue. He offered to take orders by mail and deliver by parcel post. Last year he did a business from his town of thirty-seven hundred people in excess of one million dollars!

It wasn't merely a matter of printing a circular or a catalogue and mailing them—of course not! But the point is the opportunity was there for business that any city would be proud to claim for its own.—Leslie's.

Thief River Falls, 3714 people? We hope when our merchants "go east" the old home town, the Power City," the live wire burg of the northwest, does not seem so small as that.

WORLD MARKET FOR POTATOES

Speaking of the benefits of the proposed St. Lawrence river outlet to the sea, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin made a remark the other day that will be enlightening to a lot of Minnesota farmers. "Farmers who raise 30,000,000 bushels of potatoes and who, if the price were remunerative, might raise 100,000,000 bushels.

Said Senator Lenroot: "Potatoes will furnish an illustration. The rate to New York is 50 cents per 100 pounds, which, added to the ocean rate, is prohibitive. We have all seen the time when potatoes were such a glut on the market in the west that they were scarcely worth the digging, although shortage existed in other parts of the world. Given a deep water route our farmers will have the benefits of the world's markets for potatoes. What is true of this product is true of many other products as well. Every city upon the lakes will become an ocean port and will do business with every part of the world."—Farmstead.

PROTECTING THE AMERICAN?

The Czecho-Slovaks want to make wool and cotton goods and ship them to the United States. They want to buy the raw cotton and wool in this country. They have bought the cotton, 300,000 bales of it. Is there any reason why they should not be permitted to buy the wool and—make up the woolen goods? Our own manufacturers refuse either to buy the wool or make us clothing. Is there and reason why we should not let the folks buy who are willing to buy and work if they are willing to work. Or should we shut them out "to protect the American"—Woolen Mills Company?—Farmstead.

"DEMOCRACY IN DANGER" AGAIN.

The poor old United States is always in danger of being knocked into a cocked hat. The latest discovery of a "plot" along this line has been made by John H. McMillan of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce. He was discussing the plan of the American Farm Bureau Federation to get higher prices for grain and told the assembled National Association of Grain Dealers that: "Agitators urging farmers to co-operate and fix prices are advocating the overthrow of democracy."

Northwest Farmstead is of the opinion that the ship of state will continue to float even if farmers insist on setting the price of what they have to sell, and gamblers have to go to work.—Northwest Farmstead.

The Board of Trade was organized, not to help the farmer, but because of the "gamblers chance" in grain. Because of the farmer and because of his necessity for marketing facilities. The farmers took what was handed to them for many years. Now they are going to hand some of it back. The Board of Trade is only a capitalized gambling house, recommended by Big Business because it pays its bills.

LETTING IN THE LIGHT.

"How would the farmers, selling their wheat directly to the mill and setting their own price, benefit the consumer? Could they set the price at which the four must be sold?"

"No!" answered Mr. Sapiro. "Under the supreme court's decision in the Victor Talking Machine case, it is illegal for any firm to set the resale price of its goods.

"But there is one thing we could do legally, a thing that the raisin growers are considering: We can make it a part of the contract with the wholesaler that there shall appear on the carton along with the retail price a statement something like this: 'The producer received for this package of raisins 5 cents a pound.'"

The idead is a good one. Northwest Farmstead would like to see it a law that the price at which goods were sold by the wholesaler must be plainly printed on each article sold at retail. Let us have a "truth in fabrics" law that will keep shoddy out of the wool, forbid the sale of wood pulp and oxide of zinc as silk, and discourage speculation in necessities. —Farmstead.

Not Automatic, but Shows Momentum

It was very gratifying to the general manager as he lay in a hospital unable to do much but to study the J. H. mark which adorned the pole in front of the window, to have the assurance reach him from remote parts of the territory that various classes of highway work were proceeding according to program as evidenced by the following correspondence:

E. P. Modin, cashier of the Security State Bank at Middle River, Minn., wrote:

"With an abundance of faith in the Jefferson Highway and with a desire to be of service, as well as to be permitted to boost the J. H., the citizens of the villages of Middle River and Holt in Marshall county, Minn., are glad to have been permitted through your office to become individual members of the association.

"In accord with the above, you will find enclosed two membership lists, one from Holt and the other from Middle River. Each of the lists contains a subscribed membership of fifteen, a total of thirty in the two towns. Accompanying enclosed you will find also our draft on Minneapolis, Minn., to your order in the amount of $180, being at the annual rate of $6 for each member to include a year's subscription to "The Modern Highway."

"Will you kindly acknowledge receipt to the writer of the enclosed and if you will at the same time give us suggestions as to farming and carrying on the local organization, I shall be most thankful. Will you also say if it is your desire that a permanent association be formed at once and that officers be named?"—Modern Highway.

Let's see, wasn't there a little unfinished business between President Wilson of Washington, D. C., and Senator Spencer, of Missouri? And when Senator Spencer became annoying in his persistency, did not the Great Woodrow refer said Spencer to the voters of Missouri? Didn't he? The returns are in and Missouri by a majority of 80,000 votes sustains Senator Spencer and vouches for his veracity.

GREATER PRODUCTION

Greater production is the cry to the farmers. Greater production, we are told, will reduce the cost of living and the farmer, obediently, has produced.

It is said we have 1,000,000,000 pounds of wool in storages. Then president Wood of the American Woolen Mill Company, controlling 30 per cent of the manufacture of woolen goods in the United States, closes his mills, shuts them up tight, throwing 40,000 employes out of work. This when the price of woolen goods is almost prohibitive.

Unquestionably he will be before the next session of congress asking that a tariff be placed upon manufactures of wool "in order to protect the American working man" and it is dollars to doughnuts that 90 per cent of the 40,000 thrown out of work in order that the price of woolen goods might not be reduced will vote to put in congress men who will give him a high tariff strangle hold in the way of a monopoly in the manufacture of woolen goods.

Is nobody to produce but the farmer—except at a profiteer's margin?—Farmstead.

MINNESOTA'S FUEL MINES.

The high price of coal may yet prove a blessing in disguise in the state of Minnesota. The state has 7,000,000 acres of peat, and anyone who have tried to put out a fire in a stove knows that peat will burn. In fact, ton for ton, it is nearly as good as the best soft coal.

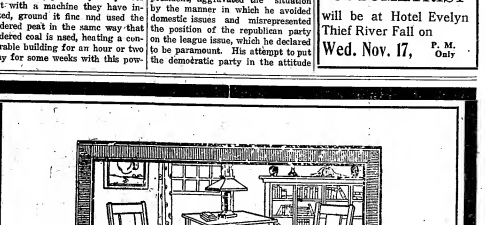
Coal profiteering has promoted experiments along the line of burning peat. Several companies and state experimenters are working on the problem of making it a commercial proposition.

One company plowed up many acres of it with a machine they have invented, ground it fine and used the powdered peat in the same way that powdered coal is used, heating a considerable building for an hour or two a day for some weeks with this powdered fuel. Others are handling it in various ways.

Over in Ireland and in Austria and in Russian peat is burned after it has been dried in blocks taken from the bogs with spades. That would be too slow in the United States, but certainly if there is anything calculated to promote experiments with cheap fuels it is the conscsicless price that has been charged for coal the last few months. If the experimenters or any of them are successful, Minnsota may be taken off the map of the coal profiteers as a market for coal.—Farmstead.

MR. BRYAN EXPLAINS.

Sioux Falls Press: Post mortems are now in order and Mr. Bryan, less stunned by the result than other leaders of his party, due perhaps to his "campaign of silence," is the first to offer an explanation. He divides the blame between President Wilson and Mr. Cox and does not mince his words much either when he says:



The president attempted to drive out of public life every democrat who dared to differ from him, even in minute details, while he made no effort to strengthen the democrats who made him the keeper of their conscience. He alienated all republican support and invited partisan opposition by his appeal, just before the election of 1918 for a congress that would support his personal leadership and then, knowing full well that the majority of the nation was against him, he refused to deal with the senate as a co-ordinate branch of the government. Instead of recognizing that the constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds majority for ratification compelled compromise, he insisted upon dictating the terms upon which ratification could be had, and then, on the 19th of March, stubbornly refused ratification with reservations, even when Senator Harding and some 35 other republicans were willing to accept the league as he wrote it, with the few changes upon which they insisted. By thus preventing ratification the president assumed responsibility for the nation's failure to enter the league and thrust the league into the campaign as a partisan issue. Governor Cox, instead of repairing the injury done by the president, aggravated the situation by the manner in which he avoided domestic issues and misrepresented the position of the republican party on the league issue, which he declared to be paramount. His attempt to put the democratic party in the attitude of being the sole guardian of peace was ridiculous and his assaults upon such well known advocates of peace as ex-President Taft and Herbert Hoover were disgraceful.

There can be little doubt that Mr. Bryan has hit much of the truth in his explanation of the tremendous republican victory, though he might have left Mr. Cox out of it altogether and simplified his statement or analysis by cutting it down to three words: "Repudiation of Wilsonism." It is in the white house where the main responsibility rest for the blasting of the party's hopes and the carrying down in the wreckage of some of democracy's staunchest advocates and strongest leaders. The veteran Champ Clark might have gone back to the house but for the repudiation of Wilsonism. It was to insure repudiation of one-man rule more than anything else that the people of Oregon eliminated the entire democratic ticket and carried Senator Chamberlain down to defeat. Senator Smith of Arizona can lay the blame for the loss of his job to the president. The deal which crowded Senator Gore out to make room for Scott Ferris, whose mind ran more along with Mr. Wilson's, has been largely responsible for a republican going to the senate from Oklahoma. And there is a long list of others..

Had the democrats run their party instead of permitting one man to dictate every detail of policy, they might at least have found a word of cheer here and there in the election returns. But they did not do this and the protest which was directed at the administration has apparently nearly wrecked the entire organization.

FOR CONSIDERATION OF INTELLECTUALS

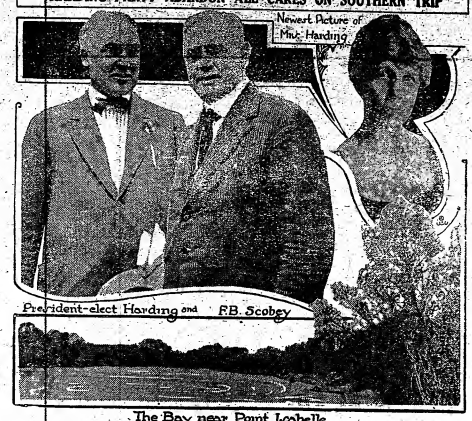
Cedar Rapids Republican: The one sad though anent the result of the election is the failure of the so-called intellectuals of the country to lead aright in the great contest, in which the fundamental principles of our government, which Lincoln said "constitute the best hope of earth," were at stake.

The election was not a partisan victory in the accepted sense of the word. From 1914, when Europe burst into flame, a considerable portion of the pulpit and college faculties everywhere in America were wrong—persistently and stubbornly wrong. They applauded such phrases as "too proud to fight" and "we must be neutral in our very thoughts." They were pacifists. Such vaporings cost not only billions of money but many a precious life.

And then when we were finally in the war these people at once began to proclaim that this war was a war that should end all wars, and later that the league of nations was to be the magic instrument which should in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, obliterate all human passions and bring all men into a state of brotherhood.



With the zeal of fanatics they followed this ignus fatus and, disregarding the counsel of every great American statesman from Washington to Roosevelt, they would not only have involved this nation in all subsequent European quarrels but would have submerged the sovereignty of this country in a super-state in which we would have been at the mercy of influences which no more understand the genius of our government than the average man understands Hebrew. It remained for the common sense of the average man and woman of America to save America from the greatest danger that ever threatened it. It is pitiful that the men supposedly best qualified to lead would, had they succeeded, have led us to sell our priceless birthright for a mess of international pottage.

The trouble, of course, is that with all their learning they do not possess wisdom. Many of them have little or no knowledge of the human units of which our strange and often baffling world is made up. A great people like the American people, when they render a verdict after long debate, do not render an unwise verdict. The late election was a triumph of American common sense over those who live in a world of unreality.

The American pulpit and the American college man cannot afford to permit the American people to come to the point where they will instinctively mistrust them. If they keep on ignoring facts and preaching all sorts of social and economic heresies that is exactly what will happen.

No one is employed to teach in higher educational institutions nowadays who has not had what is called graduate work. How would it do for representatives of the public to insist that young men and young women aspiring to teach in college halls take a year or two of postgraduate work in the university of practical life and learn something first hand of the human units that make up our world before they enter upon their duties? A course of this kind would make college leadership infinitely more dependable. The same principles would apply to candidates for the ministry.

Farm Bureau Is Active

Mitchell Gazette: So important is the work of the state and national farm bureau organizations, that the Gazette is glad to add its endorsement to the good work done against the Ralston-Nolan bill by representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation. This organization is composed of real farmers who realize that their problems are economic ones and that thru proper organization they can secure the legislation necessary for their own and the country's protection. The following report of the action against the Ralston-Nolan bill comes from the Huron office of the South Dakota Farm Bureau:

"Word has been received from New York City that the American Farm Bureau Federation has won the first skirmish in the battle to revise the federal tax laws. The Ralston-Nolan bill, with its billion dollar tax on farm land, is reported to have been dealt a severe body blow. The same is true of the proposed tax of one per cent on sales of all commodities both wholesale and retail—a tax which would raise billions of dollars revenue, a large proportion of which would have to be borne by farmers.

"C. V. Gregory, special representative for the American Farm Bureau Federation, writes that the taxation committee of the National Industrial Conference Board, representing the business and manufacturing interests of the United States, in its tentative reports condemns both of these forms of taxation as unsound. At the second National Industrial Tax Conference at New York on October 22-23, while final action was not taken, the friends of the Nolan and sales taxes made so poor a showing that they did not get to first base.

"The American Farm Bureau Federation gets great credit for this action. Not only has it opened the way to defeat these forms of taxation and thereby save farmers billions of dollars, but it has also put itself in a position where the big interests of the county know it and respect its power. President J. R. Howard and H. C. McKenzie of New York deserve large credit for the work. At President Howard's instance the business interests recognized for the first time the importance of agriculture as one of the nation's greatest industries and added McKenzie to the taxation committee to represent agriculture."

ARMERS MAKE MILD DEMAND FOR A STRIKE

CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS NEEDING INTERPRETATION.

Washington. — Resolutions urging that all crops be marketed as the demand requires and that congress conduct an investigation of interest rates charged by the banks were adopted by the farmers' conference in session here recently. All farmers were urged to join existing co-operative marketing association or organize new ones and congress was asked to give the federal farm loan board authority to issue and sell in the open market short term securities based on warehouse receipts issued under the federal warehouse act.

Delegates to the conference interpreted the resolution for "marketing as the demand requires" as authorizing a holding movement of cotton, wheat and other great farm staples.

The resolutions as adopted were recommended by the policy committee, which was appointed at the opening session. Benjamin C. Marsh, secretary of the Farmers' National Council, refused to sign a committee report, submitting a minority one requesting that "representatives of organized labor who have expressed to us at this conference their sympathy with farmers' needs to secure short-time credits so they may secure at least costs of production, go with us to the president to ask for immediate credit relief and to lay this matter before the cabinet."

He also wants the conference to go on record to work for the restoration of the railroads to government operation. The representatives of the National Grange on the committee also announced that he did not sign the majority report, which was adopted with little opposition.

Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union, urged that cotton and wheat be held.

Many Ideas Aired.

Other recommendations of the policy committee included:

Rehabilitation of the war finance corporation; that the government take the lead in re-opening foreign markets and developing new ones and where necessary financing them, and that a public relations committee and a committee to co-ordinate the efforts of various farmer committees now working on the question of marketing crops be appointed. The last named committee would be instructed under the resolutions to consider the organization of a national agricultural bank to be financed by the co-operative organizations. The directors would be chosen from all the important farm organizations of the country.

Resolutions asking for the enactment of laws protecting the American dairy industry from the importation of foreign products also were adopted before the conference adjourned.

FARM BUREAU SEC'Y. DOESN'T BLAME BANKS

SECRETARY OF FARM FEDERATION BITTER TOWARD THE SPECULATORS.

Des Moines, Ia.—The published statement of E. H. Cunningham, secretary of the Farm Bureau Federation, advising farm members to withhold their grain from market at the present prices and to spend only for necessities is causing widespread interest, particularly as it comes at a time when the southwest wheat growers are taking action to keep their wheat out of the market until better prices return. In the opinion of Secretary Cunningham the farmers are not averse to accepting their fair share of the loss that must come to get business back to normal, but they feel they should receive at least $1 per bushel for corn and 60 cents for oats.

"We are certain that the banks do not have the funds to finance all of our farmers to the extent of enabling them to hold their grain," declared Secretary Cunningham. "We believe however they will do everything humanly possible to assist the farmer customer. We ask that every land owner to withhold his crop and urge everyone to refrain from purchasing anything but the absolute necessities.

Accuses Packers.

"There is no need of any class or clique endeavoring to force financial ruin on the producers of the necessities of life simply because the unsettled conditions of life give them the opportunity.

"Smashing the hog market during the past week has engaged the attention of the manipulators. A little over a week ago the press carried a statement purporting to come from one of the big packers that the hog market had to come down in proportion to the price of corn. If this packer has been correctly quoted and the break in the hog market would indicate that he had, it would further indicate that the price manipulation is wholly within the hands of the gamblers and that they have decided that the farmer's corn, oats and live stock must remain at the present day ruinous prices.

"Everyone knows that the farmer is not getting near the cost of production for his products. The effect of a heavy break in prices will spell financial ruin to the tenant farmer, and with practically one-half of our farmers tenants, it requires no great amount of foresight to forecast the serious results that must follow.

"Along with the tenant farmer we have another class of farmers who are being classed as farm owners who are in far worse financial straits than the actual renter. In this latter class are the new land owners who have accumulated enough money thru one source or another to make a small initial payment, have assumed heavy obligations, to be met by future payments and have nothing but returns from the land to make these payments. They are really in more severe financial straits than the man who, being a renter, at most can lose nothing more than his year's work and his percentage chattels, such as horses, cattle and farm equipment."

LANDIS AGREES TO 'BOSS BASEBALL AT SALARY OF $42,500

PEACE COMES TO THE MAJOR LEAGUES WITH ACCEPTANCE OF NEW PLAN.

Chicago.—Peace reigns in baseball circles following the acceptance Saturday of the agreement between the opposing factions in the reorganization of the game. The sixteen club owners of the two major leagues were in accord on every issue which leaves the same eight clubs in the National and the same eight in the American league.

Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Chicago accepted the chairmanship of a committee of one as a final court of appeals in all matters of dispute between the two major leagues and any minor league which may join the majors in the reorganization.

Judge Landis will remain on the bench. His salary there is $7,500 a year. He stipulated that this sum should be subtracted from the $50,000 a year offered by baseball men and so his salary as chairman of the national pastime will be $42,500 a year for a term of seven years.

The minor league are invited and expected to join the majors under the Landis regime.

Chicago will be headquarters for the baseball commission and offices will be opened immediately. Should the second and third members be chosen for the commission, it is virtually certain, according to club owners, that Judge Charles A. McDonald will be one of them.

Sheepmen Advised to Stick.

The condition of the wool and mutton market has had a depressing effect upon the sheep business. A few of the larger mills are again in operation and I do not think it will be long before a market for wool is created. Advice to breeders is to "stand by the ship." In all lines of business there are seasons of low price levels, but the man who holds on is generally the man who reaps the harvest, rather than the man who jumps in and out.

For the beginner I think there is no better time to start than now, as prices are low and this is a good time to get the experience. As the situation improves, one will be ready to take advantage of the higher prices.

Select ewes that show good breeding, thrift, health and freedom from running noses, and dry hacking coughs. Yearlings and two and three year olds are better than lambs at a higher price to be held for a year previous to breeding. Old ewes are generally disappointing and, at the best, poor investments. Select those showing good faces and of medium wool breeding.—P. A. Anderson, assistant professor of animal husbandry, University Farm.

Fine Stock for Minnesota Farms.

Twenty-four pure bred Guernsey cattle out of a herd of 39 that was sold at auction recently by Jones & McKerrow of Waukesha, Wis., were bought for dairymen of Minnesota and have been placed on Minnesota Farms. Sixteen of the 24 coming to Minnesota were purchased by Anoka county milk and butter producers. The 39 head sold at an average price of $1,031.50. L. V. Wilson, agent in dairying for the federal government, with headquarters at University Farm, is inclined to believe that the demand for pure bred dairy stock will continue even in the face of falling prices for other forms of farm products. The Jones & McKerrow cattle, he said, sold largely on their showing performances the last few months. To individuality they added productiveness, which in the opinion of Mr. Wilson, is an irresistable combination. The most desirable cattle of any dairy breed, he believes, are those combining type and productiveness.

Wireless Weather Service for State.

"Tune in and get the weather, John," may some day be as common an order on Minnesota farms as "feed the calf, John." A radio station at University Farm from which can be sent daily weather forecasts and market repots to farmers over the state is proposed by E. A. Stewart, who is in charge of agricultural physics at the Minnesota College of Agriculture. Prof. Stewart is the man who started the wireless weather forecast service for the state of Kansas. This is said to be the first service of the kind ever established.

Sets for receiving the wireless reports, says Prof. Stewart, can be bought for $30 to $75. With an efficient sending station in operation at University Farm, he believes that hundreds of receiving outfits would be set up on Minnesota farms. Storm warnings would save the farmer against loss, while daily market reports brought up to the minute would often put money in his pocket.

What Do We Mean
There's always room at the top

We put Spurs on the market with our eyes open. We knew "There was Room at the Top—for highest possible quality at lowest possible price"—and we said so in print.

And now Spurs are perched at the top—but we didn't put them there. Smokers did it themselves. You can't keep a good thing down—and it didn't take smokers long to discover that Spur had something they wanted.

What was it? Just that good old tobacco taste—that quality of bygone days. Spur's blend is choicest Turkish, fine Burley and other home-grown tobaccos—and it's some blend.

Now—how about smoking a top-notch cigarette?

Set this down, too! Spurs are crimped—not pasted. You'll see it in the seam of every Spur. You'll find it means better taste, easier drawing, slower burning.

"Our Ships."

"Why should not our ships go thru our canal free?"

This question by a blatant demagogue in the national senate fools only the unwary. It is founded on a very old trick. This trick, the professor in logic at the law school instructs the boys, is the use of one word with two different meanings to confuse the jury.

"Our ships" are ships belonging to American citizens, tank ships belonging to John D., fruit steamers belonging to the United States Fruit Co. and the like. They are "ours" just as much and only in the same sense that the locomotives of the steel corporation hauling ore to Duluth are "ours" or the wagon with which our neighbor hauls what is "ours."

But the canal, the Panama ditch, is really ours. Every citizen in the United States has a share in it. He helped to pay for it by his income tax or the higher price he paid for sugar or steel on account of the tariff. The canal is ours.

To show the fallacy, it is only necessary to turn the proposition around and ask, "What difference does it make? Why should not our ships pay us a reasonable fee for passing thru our canal?"

Or, "Why should not 'our' oil company give us gasoline free for 'our' cars?"

It is merely the age old effort to get all of us to give a special privilege to some of us.—Farmstead.

Use the Tribune for advertising results.

The Spread in Prices.

There has been a widely accepted idea among folks in town that the high prices which they have to pay always indicate that the farmer is getting high prices for what he sells.

The farmers, of course, in the main, know this is not true, and that both producers and consumers can be benefited by such plans of co-operative marketing as now are being sponsored by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

For instance, the woman who looks in a store window in Minneapolis at a muskrat fur coat marked $500 or $600 probably thinks that the farm boy who is trapping muskrats gets an incmense price for the furs. Last year, it is true, he got a higher price than usual. But this year the price of my lady's fur coat is even higher than last, and the price of pelts is very low indeed.

The reason is this: All summer there had been a strike among fur workers all over the United States. The result is that the fur buyers' warehouses are full of furs for which they can find no sale. For garment manufacturers cannot buy the furs from the fur flouses because they cannot get them made up. So they are demanding very high prices for their garments while the trappers of the furs will get very low prices for the furs.

Sugar was sold to consumers at as high as 30 cents a pound last summer, while the farmer who produced the beets got about $10 a ton for them, on only 10 per cent more than he got the previous year.

These are just a couple of illustrations that the farmer knows all about but which the city man knows nothing about. An important part of the farm bureau's campaign to raise the price of farm products to the producer will be to advertise to the city men and women that the plans adopted will not raise prices to the consumer and, in many cases, will reduce them. At present the city folks think the farmers are getting the high prices they have to pay.—Farmstead.

ORGANIZING OF WHEAT GROWERS UNDER WAY

OKLAHOMA PARTIES IN TWIN CITIES AFTER MEETING AT HASTINGS.

Oklahomans, representing the national wheat growers association, were in the Twin Cities the other day en-route to Fargo, which is to be their headquarters while organizing the wheat growers of North Dakota under their "fair return" banner.

Minnesota officers and a national director from this state were elected at a meeting at Hastings Thursday.

In the party visiting the Twin Cities were A. C. Hoefer, Driftwood; Abe Slaughter, Wakita; Edward Garrett, Wakita; Daniel Hurely, Cherokee; L. Hughes, Drummond; F. F. Parker, Shattuck, and W. C. Scott, Tawnaka.

The party is organizing the wheat growers of Minnesota, North and South Dakota to co-operate with those already organized in Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas. Missouri also is to be organized before the first of the year.

"When we have enlisted the co-operation of 75 per cent of the wheat growers in these eight states, we shall stop the delivery of all wheat at local points until we get a price commensurate with the cost of production and a fair profit," Mr. Slaughter said.

The price demanded by the organization this year is $3 a bushel, but this, Mr. Slaughter said, is based on the cost of producting the 1920 crop and will not hold another year should the cost of production decline.

ALL WOMEN WILL WELCOME THIS NEW "METHOD OF COOKING"

After a most careful and far reaching investigation, recognized cooking authorities from the country's largest institutions now recommend the new method of cooking by steam under pressure.

There are five distinct advantages —any food may be prepared in one-third the time with one-quarter the fuel required by the old method of cooking. Cheaper meats may be used frequently, being made as delicious and tender as the choicest cuts. Food cooked in this manner is more easily digested, because cooking by steam is so much more thorough—every particle of the food is thoroughly done. Then too, all flavors and juices are brought out, making the food taste better. There are never any cooking odors when a steam pressure cooker is used. Neither will the food scorch or burn.

The Hall Brothers Co., always alert to secure any device that will lessen the work of the housewife and reduce living costs, is now displaying the National Steam Pressure Cooker, the best one of its kind manufactured—they are anxious to show this necessary utensil to every housewife. It will pay to make a special trip down town and see what great savings are possible with a steam pressure cooker.

Hay Denounces Cost Claims.

Claims of bakers that cost of labor is a reasonable basis for keeping up the price of bread were denounced by J. H. Hay, deputy state commissioner of agricultnre, as false, saying that labor costs have not increased, while flour, lard and sugar are coming down.

"Two or three large bakers in the Twin Cities are keeping up the price of bread, long after prices of almost every element in bread making have dropped," Mr. Hay said.

"Little bakers, as shown by our commision report last winter, follow the lead of the big fellows. Here we have a situation where two or three selfish men are keeping up the price of bread to three-quarters of a million people."

Mr. Hay has pointed out that the price of flour alone now used in an 11-cent loaf of bread costs more than 2 cents less than when the price was established.

"A campaign to bake bread in the home and to refuse to buy bread until the price is reduced to a reasonable figure will be taken up by the next meeting of the Women's Welfare League in St. Paul on Tuesday," Mrs. M. L. Benepe, president of the league, said: "Such a campaign, might be a good thing here and bread would be the best thing to start on, as it is the staff of life and a necessity in every home. Women should refuse to buy at prices which prevailed when flour was several dollars a barrel more than it is now.

"I am trying baking at home myself, though it is a great relief to buy bread made in factories if they charge reasonable prices."

Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson, prominent member of the league, formed the present prices of bread extreme and unreasonable and said she thought it is a matter for the Housewives' league to take up.

Several leading St. Paul wholesale bread manufacturers have announced a drop in wholesale prices of bread, 1 pound loaves to drop 1 cent and 1½ pound loaves to come down 1½ cents. The reason for the drop, one wholesale baker said, was that "insistent demand for readjustment in prices by the public." The cut, he maintained, will be made at a loss to wholesale bakers, most of them having stocked up in flour to last until January 1 at the former wholesale price in September of $14 a barrel.

ROLL CALL AND RED CROSS DRIVE ON IN FULL SWING

HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASS WILL BE MADE IN CITY FOR MEMBERSHIPS.

The fourth annual roll call for membership in the Pennington County Chapter of the Red Cross started today and will continue until tomorrow evening, when it is expected that the entire county will have been enrolled and the county again on the way toward another useful year in its important work.

A house to house canvass is being made in the city and in all other towns of the county the same method of procedure is being used and it is thought by the workers that the entire county will be covered in a short time by this method.

A summary of the importance of the Red Cross and what it does for the people at large, together with what is done with the dollar which is paid in for annual membership, is shown in the article prepared by Miss Elaine Swanson, field representative of the northern division, and who is assisting the local chairman and assistants in the present drive. The article by Miss Swanson fololws:

The Pennington County Chapter is asking every person in the county to pay the annual membership dues of one dollar.

What becomes of this dollar?

An Hemized account of the expenditure of the fifty cents sent to national headquarters from July 1, 1919, to June 30, 1920, follows:

|---|---|
| Relief in foreign lands | $ .37 |
| Military relief in U. S. | .06 |
| Assistance to soldiers, sailors, and mariner in camps and hospitals | .02 |
| Civilian relief in U. S.including assistance to families of service men and disaster relief | .03 |
| Service to chapters in developing Rd Cross peace program in the U. S. | .003 |
| Management | .017 |

How may the fifty cents which remains in the county be spent?

It may be spent for health service, establishing a health center which may be only a room where information is furnished and sample facilities provided, or it may be developed into a building to house all local health agencies. Organizing classes in first aid and in life saving.

It may be used for nursing service; providing a public health nurse for the community; conducting classes in home care of the sick.

It may be spent for home service; finishing the service to ex-service men and their families; helping disadvantaged families to become assets to their communities. This constructive social work requires the services of persons trained and adapted for the work just as health work requires a nurse or physician. Providing a child welfare agent who will co-operate with local authorities to secure proper care for all children who may be in need of it. Providing a recreational leader who will organize recreational activities in the community as a means of fostering better community spirit and of preventing delinquency.

If a community is to be successful, the whole community must be back of it. You cannot hire an experienced person to be your "brother's keeper and rest content. Such a person can do comparatively little without the united co-operation of the whole community. If Red Cros swork is to be a success during the coming year there must be a large interested membership back of it.

You will be asked to pay your dues on Friday and Saturday. Your name should be on someone's list. If you are overlooked, join anyway; send your dues to T. M. Meigard, treasurer of the Pennington County Chapter.

Mrs. Andrew Craik is chairman of the roll call in the city of Thief River Falls and she has appointed two women for every street in the city who will make the canvass. The local chapter will also maintain headquarters in the Hotel Evelyn Saturday afternoon and evening for the benefit of those who were overlooked in the canvass or who could not be reached and who desire to be enrolled in the drive. Mrs. L. H. Lawrence and Miss Una Nelson will maintain a booth at the hotel and wil lreceive the memberships of those who were overlooked.

M. E. Church.

Quarterly conference will be held on Sunday evening at the close of the services. Dr. J. C. Craig, district superintendent, will occupy the pulpit at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

COMMERCIAL CLUB IN FAVOR OF ACTION ON ALL COUNTY HIGHWAYS

Recommendations that the present route of the Jefferson Highway thru Thief River Falls be maintained as it is at present laid out were adopted by the Commercial Club at its regular meeting yesterday noon, following the luncheon.

The matter was brought to the attention of the club by Hans A. Chommie, one of the committee recently appointed to wait on the county commissioners in an endeavor to have the road running west from the stone arch bridge along the large ditch placed in safer condition for the heavy travel which it now bears.

Mr. Chommie reported that the commissioners at their meeting next month probably would decide to ask the state to take over the maintenance of the entire Jefferson Highway stretch thru Pennington county as was contemplated in the Babcock amendment recently passed and therefore it would be wise to have an expression from the club as to the route of the same thru the city. When the matter was clearly explained by Mr. Chommie and Mr. Shaw, the club unanimously decided that it would be best to maintain the present route.

If the county board takes the contemplated action and the state in turn accepts the road in question it will mean that the stretch of road from the end of the St. Hilaire road west to the stone arch bridge and north thru Porter's addition and along Riverside avenue may be paved or hard surfaced. Such would be an excellent improvement and would be heartily commended by everyone who has occasion to use the road.

STEENERSON MENTIONED AS CABINET MEMBER

CONGRESSMAN'S NAME LINKED WITH THAT OF OFFICE OF POSTMASTER GENERAL

The following article from the Crookston Times concerning the possible appointment of Congressman Halvor Steenerson to the office of postmaster general under the administration of Warren G. Harding, is indeed good news to the many friends of Congressman Steenerson in this district and will be pleasing to his friends. The article says:

News of special interest to the ninth congressional district, in fact to the entire state, comes from Washington to the effect that Congressman Halvor Steenerson may be the next postmaster general. Mr. Steenerson, among the ranking members of the house, has been chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads for the past six years and as a member of that committee has been in touch with the department to an extent that well qualifies him for the place.

Eighteen years constantly in congress has given him a familiarity with the practical side of government operation in its general aspects that is the lot of few congressmen and as postmaster general he would be able to bring into use a broad knowledge that would guard against the introduction of drastic and untried innovations, yet be capable of bringing the postal department of the nation up to a high point of efficient service.

That the appointment of Mr. Steenerson would meet with the strong approval of the department employes is assured, as he has long taken a recognized and effective interest in affairs pertaining to their welfare. This was well evidenced by the part taken by Mr. Steenerson on the program of the state convention of mail carriers held in this city last summer, as a result of which the loyalty to the postal department of that branch of its service was unquestionably further cemented.

Confirmation of the report will be eagerly awaited not only by those who helped by their vote in again returning the veteran legislator to Washington but as well by those who while not voting for Congressman Steenerson still readily concede him to be an able representative and a valuable upholder of the northwest's interests at the seat of government.

Mike Holm Resigns.

CONDITIONS IN STATE SHOWING MUCH ACTIVITY

REVIEW OF CONDITIONS SHOW MUCH OPTIMISM PREVAILING OVER THE STATE

Conservative optimism that agricultural conditions will be satisfactorily adjusted in 1921 and that the next congress will enact laws favorable to the farmer, was reflected by bankers in every section of Minnesota who replied during the past week to a special questionnaire sent to them by the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul.

The questionnaire, sent out with a view to obtaining authoritative expressions from every trade center, sought the views of the grain grower and cattleman as well as their bankers. These questions were asked:

Do the people of your district, especially farmers, now believe that their net returns are temporary and should adjust themselves by 1921?

Will there be decreased cost of production next year?

Is there a feeling that the "dumping process" (throwing on the market of Argentine beef, Australian or New Zealand wool or mutton, etc.) will be largely over next year?

Do farmers believe that the next congress will enact laws favorable to them?

There was a difference of opinion in a few counties. In Fillmore, for instance, one banker said: "Farmers believe that their decreased returns will extend a longer time than thru 1921. In fact this price depression will continue more or less for some few years. Most farmers are of the impression that production cost will at least maintain the same level, or possibly be a trifle more. Most farmers are gradually decreasing production, if anything. The dumping process will extend over a considerable period. No election result can be interpreted as meaning anything unless it is the sentiment of farmers and machinery prices are decreased. Farmers are expecting congress will enact laws favorable to them but the law of supply and demand will exert more influence than can congress."

A Winona banker forecast decreased production cost and added: "Farmers are holding their grain in this community for better prices. They seem to be confident that by December or the first of the year the prices will adjust themselves for the better. Farmers cannot understand why prices on livestock are low when the supply is below normal. Farmers are expressing great faith in the new administration." Another Winona banker replied in similar vein: "Farmers seem to think that prices cannot stay where they are; they look in the future with great hopes for better conditions in the rural communities," he said.

"We believe the farmer is for a tariff," said a Mower county banker, who forecast reduction in Canadian wheat shipments across the border. A member of bankers made a similar statement for 1921. The Mower banker, however, hesitated to say that production costs would be decreased materially to tell; farm help is not plentiful and if wages keep up, there will be no reduction," he said. He said farmers believe that prices will re-adjust themselves.

"Farmers have reason to expect something from the Republican party after all the campaign promises" said a Martin county banker. Regarding decreased production costs, he added: "They must be reduced or there will be little production. Farmers have not lost faith in their country." A Blue Earth county banker said his farmer customers expect a "moderate decrease" in production costs, favorable legislation from congress and an adjustment of prices. "Farmers are holding products for higher prices but doubt if they expect to see prices back to last year's level," he declared. Optimism regarding congressional action was expressed by a Lincoln county fiancier. He said:

"Farmers have put their faith in the belief that the Republican party will make them feel better and give them better prices. Farmers say price conditions cannot be any worse; they have put all their faith for a better 1921." This banker forecast a continuation of high production costs and of small imports. "As a rule the farmers are expecting better prices," said a Goodhue county banker. "They are satisfied congress will help them. We are of the opinion that there will be decreased production costs." A Rice county cashier felt as the said the producer but he forecast continued high production costs.

The attitude of farmers in and about Ramsey county is expressed as follows by the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul:

"Farmers talked with now feel that some other line of business, aside from their own, will suffer some losses in the lowering of prices which came with natural deflation of moneys and credits. Even if prices are considerably lower in 1921, they feel there will not be the violent price fluctuations they have had to contend with this year and they will know more what they can depend on. At present there is some evidence of lower wages for farm help. Also the family's cost of living, food and clothing, they feel will be somewhat reduced. They look forward to reductions in price of farm machinery and fuel.

"A great many farmers whose natural tendencies are Republican feel that Australian and New Zealand wool are coming in in abnormal amounts at this time on the assumption that later a tariffi may be enacted which will-prohibit their importation into this country. The reason for being anxious to get their products on the market now is that people in the United States are in a position to buy such products for cash. Farmers believe that the next congress will enact laws favorable to them; this belief was indicated at the recent election."

Stevens county farmers are skeptical regarding immediate congressional assistance, said a banker. He added that congress must show them. He commented upon the fact that some farmers in his district are threatening to "quit producing" unless present pessimism is relieved, but he forecast

POULTRY SHOW OPENS MONDAY IN AUDITORIUM

EXHIBITS THIS YEAR ARE TO BE BEST YET AND WILL ATTRACT MANY VISITORS

Monday is the opening day of the Fourth Annual Poultry Show in this city and which embraces the entire county and the northwestern half of Minnesota.

The exhibits are to be far larger than last year, judging from the interest manifested at this time, and with every indication at one of the best poultry exhibits to be held in this end o fthe state for many years past.

The exhibit of last year was conceded to be the best in the county by far, and the local officers were congratulated by the state association for their splendid exhibit and the manner in which the display was handled.

The auditorium, in which the display will be housed, is one of the finest buildings possible for such an exhibit. Plenty of room, good light and warm housing makes the building an ideal one for this exhibit and one that will accommodate an exhibit of unusual size without crowding.

The officers of the association this year are anticipating a better show than ever, and while this means that an exceedingly large display of high class birds, it is believed the Pennington County Poultry Association will be equal to the occasion and will surpass that of last year despite the extra fine exhibits.

There will be exhibits of some of the finest birds in this section and they will come from many distant points. While the local association is large in reputation it has traveled far and near and much interest in this end of the state is shown in the local exhibit.

The show next week is expected to be by far the best so far held in Pennington county and the number of exhibits is also expected to be much larger than that of any previous year, making this a poultry show second to none and one of state wide interest.

FINE ROADS MAKE TRAVELING EASY IN NORTHERN MINNESOTA

Northern Minnesota has been enjoying one of the finest fall seasons imaginable and there has not been a day when automobile traffic was interfered with and hardly a day when it was necessary to use chains to drive anywhere in the county.

Rural mail carriers out of Thief River Falls say the roads are the best that they have been in years and they are able to make their routes as quickly as at any time during the season.

Very little snow this year has been a great factor in keeping the roads clear and with the warm days of the past week what little snow there was has disappeared and the roads have dried to such an extent that it is easy to drive forty or fifty miles without the slightest discomfort.

Other parts of the state have not been so fortunate as this section of Minnesota in weather or roads. As far south as Minneapolis there has been considerable snow and the roads are not in as good condition by a long ways as they are in Pennington and adjoining counties.

FARMER OWNED RETAIL AGENCIES IS HELD SOLUTION

STATE MARKETING DIRECTOR MAKES REPORT ON FARM MARKETING.

State supervision of machinery for marketing and co-operative ownership of retail agencies by the farmers are recommended in a report by Hugh J. Hughes, director of the Minnesota department of agriculture, made public yesterday. The report deals with the result of an investigation by the department into the conditions affecting the marketing of farm products which was ordered by the 1919 legislature. Co-operative ownership by the farmers of the machinery of marketing, at least as far as possible, where the farm product loses its identity or where it teaches retail distribution, was offered as the best available solution of the farmers' marketing problem, says the report.

Co-operative ownership of retail agencies, such as grocery stores, meat markets, milk depots and other similar stores is suggested by Mr. Hughes as the practical solution of "unnecessary expenses of living borne by the consumer."

State supervision for the purpose of establishing a fair barter and exchange is also essential.

Mr. Hughes recommends that local co-operative elevators create central selling agencies. Such agencies should hold a membership in a grain exchange thru which they can find a marketing outlet, continues the report, and the board of directors of the central organization should be empowered to constitute itself to deal in grain to comply with the rules of the various boards of trade in order to maintain membership in them. As an alternative plan the report suggests the creation of n central association to act independently of existing grain exchanges and in connection with like sales agencies in other states.

Discussing the proposition as to the farmer becoming a middleman Mr. Hughes writes:

"The substitution of a federal co-operative for the services rendered by the jobber or wholesaler is a matter that must be determined in each line. It has produce strictly on the business merits of the proposition. The normal sales period of wheat only a generation ago was but little more than ann onth. Conditions today; including the car shortage and the greater ability of the farmer to finance his crop, has spread this period of wheat sales to practically the entire year.

"It has been the function of the middleman to handle the crops. This is a mighty speculative undertaking involving risk that necessitates a somewhat wide margin of profit to protect the buyer against losses due to price fluctuations. If the farmer takes over this phase of distribution, he automatically assumes the risk inherent to the middleman. There risks can be best absorbed and insured against by adopting the co-operative principle of marketing. A comparison of private business and co-operative business helps to make clear why co-operative organizations not infrequently find difficulties in securing needed banking assistance. In private business the basis of credit is the

OPPORTUNITY TO SERVICE MEN IS OF REAL VALUE

STEPS TAKEN WHEREBY SERVICE MEN OF MINNESOTA MAY GET SCHOOLING.

What will no doubt be of particular interest to every service man in Pennington county is the fact that there has now been completed and put into operation a method for educational purposes in which every ex-service man in the county may participate without one cent of expense and which has been perfected until there is no longer the great amount of red tape that was part of the proceedings of a few months ago in order for the service men to even get war enough to the proposition to get his correspondence answered by one in authority. So much complaint has been registered along this line and so many of the service men have passed the entire matter up on account of the extreme laxity with which their applications have been received that it was necessary for something to be done along this line and done quickly if any benefit was to be received by those for whom the measure was originated.

Dave Gustafson of this city has charge of this important work for the county and those desiring the benefit of this legislation are assured of promptness in the matter by making application to Mr. Gustafson, who takes it up with the authorities and sees that the matter is rushed thru and the service man given every opportunity to take advantage of this free educational assistance.

Everyone knows the value of an education in the moulding of a successful career. The ex-service man returning to "civies" has perhaps a better realization of the difficulties confronting the untrained or unskilled applicant for a new job.

The best solution then is a practical and efficient course of study in a well equipped school which gives training in modern business, vocational and professional methods.

The Y. M. C. A. offers such a solution to the formes service man. Approximately 7,000 free scholarships are available for deserving applicants. Not only does the ex-service man have the opportunity of instruction in the established courses of the Y. M. C. A. schools with their staffs of 3,000 competent instructors in several hundred cities thruout the nation, but free scholarships are offered in over 600 approved schools of similar grade and in technical schools, colleges and universities.

Correspondence courses in a great variety of subjects are offered also in the Extension Division of the Y. M. C. A. schools for the applicant unable to attend a school or college, but who has spare time during the day or evening to study.

ROSEWOOD

Emil Blomberg in Serious Accident.

As a result of becoming entagled in the balance wheel of a small, odd jobs, gasoline engine he was about to start, Emil Blomberg is at the Physician's Hospital in Thief River Falls, minus the greater part of his right thumb, also a dislocated wrist and the broken radius bone in his forearm. It appears that Mr. Blomberg, who is a young farmer residing about a mile north of town, had on Wednesday afternoon attempted to start a small gas engine used to pump water, turn a washing machine and other small jobs and in turning the balance wheel over with his hands to start it, his glove had caught and as the engine started with a jerk it threw Mr. Blomberg against the opposite wall with the results named. Dr. C. M. Adkins of Thief River Falls was immediately summoned and responded directly, but on arriving discovered that the injury was of such a nature that home treatment was inadequate and took the patient to the hospital, where he still remains. It was later learned that the thumb and part of the hand will-be amputated but that hope is retained for the successful healing of the arm and wrist.

Governor's Order Protects Muskrats.

Governor Burnquist has recently issued the following oder relating to the protection of muskrats:

"Whereas, the game and fish commissioner of Minnesota has investigated the necessity of providing additional protection for muskrats and has furnished me with the results of such investigation.

"Now, therefore, I, J. A. A. Burnquist, governor of the state of Minnesota, pursuant to authority vested in me by Section 134 of Chapter 400, Session Laws of Minnesota for the year 1919, do hereby find that the species of wild animals knows as muskrat is in danger of undue depletion or extinction and that additional restrictons are necessary for the proper protection of the same, and

"I do hereby order that on and after December 1st, 1920, no muskrats shall be taken, killed or had in possession in any number at any place in the state of Minnesota. This order shall remain in force and effect until the close of the 1921 regular session of the legislature of the state of Minnesota, unless sooner revoked or modified."

Men Show Cowardice In Theatre Fire, Witnesses Say; 6 Children Trampled

MAN, TRAILING THREE YOUNGSTERS, CARRIES TWO TO SAFETY.

New York, Nov. 18.—Within five minutes after some unknown man had shouted "fire" in the Catherine Street theater last night, six children had been trampled to death in the wild rush for the exits.

There was no fire except that in a furnace below the little, darkened movie theater in which the janitor was starting the first fire of the year

Show of Cowardice.

The children include two babies of two years. Witnesses said the rush of the men and young boys for the exits was an appalling exhibition of cowardice. Women and children were locked about without the slightest consideration and several women were found unconscious on the benches after the theater had been cleared and firemen went in to get the dead.

Owners Arrested.

The owners of the theater, Max Schwartz, 29, and Barnett Weinberg, 44, were arrested at once, as were John Mikulo, 27, the operator of the motion picture machine, and Joseph Colenti, 31, the manager of the house. Schwartz and Weinberg acquired title to the theater only a few days before and Weinberg protested, after the disaster, that he was a ruined man.

In addition to the children killed, all of whom bore distinctly Italian names, seven of eight others were badly trampled and were laid out on the floors of two nearby drug stores.

Crowd Sniffs Smoke.

The crowd was seated for the regular afternoon performance, most of the children being in the front row, downstairs. There is a balcony in the dark, narrow theater and this was crowded with men and women. When the janitor set a match to an accumulation of rubbish in the furnace, billows of acrid smoke came out thru the drafts in the door and seeped thru the cracks in the floor into the theater. There was a dead silence while the audience sniffed the smoke and then came the terrible cry, "Fire!"

As there is a severe penalty for admitting children to motion picture theaters in New York unless they are accompanied by their parents, an investigation is being made to learn whether there were any in the house not with their parents.

One of the victims was Joseph Lombardi, two years old, who was just out of the hospital where he had been fitted with a new pair of metal and leather braces for his paralyzed legs. Joseph was in the front row and never had a chance. In some places the children were found piled four or five deep, their muffled voices feebly calling for help after most of the adults had fled.

Woman Saves Child.

Mrs. Belle Thompson, who lives nearby, was entering the theater when the panic broke. She seized one child from a man's arms and passed it over the heads of several other people to a police sergeant, saving its life.

Mrs. Thompson then fought her way into the house and was trying to get up the balcony steps to save the children up there when the human avalanche fell down the steps, knocking her to the floor and trampling her. She got to the street and collapsed while trying to help the injured.

Many of the women had infants in their arms and lost them in the fighting around the exits, but apparently in every such case someone else caught the babies and carried them out. Lewis San Angelo told of trailing three children to safety clinging to his coat-tails and carrying two others in his arms.

TERMS OF TAXES MADE PUBLIC

NEW MEASURES PROVIDE FOR TEN PER CENT LEVY—SPONSORS IN AGREEMENT.

Tonnage tax legislation for the new Minnesota legislature already is taking shape, says the Minneapolis Journal. Terms of the bill which will be introduced in the house this winter by former champions of the measure have been made public.

Instead of a 5 per cent tax on the "net value" of the ore mined each year as provided by the Bendixen bill vetoed last year by Governor J. A. A. Burnquist, the new measure provides a 10 per cent rate. Its details have been agreed to by C. M. Bendixen of Morgan and A. C. Welch of Glencoe, the two house members whose rival bills were used in the regular session of 1919 to kill each other off. The Bendixen bill was passed at the extra session and then vetoed.

C. J. Buell of St. Paul, secretary of the Minnesota Tax Reform association, which is working for the tonnage tax legislation, is authority for the statement that an agreement has been reached.

The 10 per cent tax is to be proposed in two bills, one taxing royalties received by free owners of mine property on the ore mined, and the other taxing "unearned profits" of the mining companies or "net value" of the ore mined. The two measures, it is claimed, will mean an addition of $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year to state revenue.

Whether the legislature will stand for the 10 per cent rate remains to be seen. The state senate, which is the same body as in 1919, passed a 5 per cent bill then as a tonnage tax on the business of mining, but defeated a 9 per cent royalty tax measure.

Mr. Buell declared that 100 of the 131 members of the new house are committed to support of the tonnage tax. Governor-elect J. A. A. Preus is pledged by his party platform and by his campaign utterances to a "fair and equitable" tonnage tax. The only question is what Mr. Preus and a majority of the legislature will consider "fair and equitable."

The new tonnage tax bill, it is explained, has one concession in it to the mine operators. It deducts as part of the cost of mining the royalties they pay to fee owners. This, supporters of the measure say, knocks out the argument of a double tax on the royalties, which now pay no taxes at all.

Passage of the two bills, Buell estimates, will bring in a revenue equal to a five-mill tax on all real and personal property; in other words it would enable a saving of $5 on each $1,000 of assessed valuation to other property owners. The bills have been prepared in consultation with the state tax commission.

They are explained as follows in a statement by the Minnesota Tax Reform Association:

"One bill places a tax of 10 per cent on the royalties. The other a tax of 10 per cent on the unearned profits of the operating companies. Neither bill puts any tax whatever on the business of mining ore. All labor cost and capital invested in mining are exempt from the tax.

"The tax is in the net or natural value of the ore after deducting the following items:

"First—All royalties paid for permission to take ore out.

"Second—The cost of labor for separating the ore from the ore deposits and placing it in cars for the shipment from the mines.

"Third—Cost of washing, drying or otherwise beneficiating such ore if the same is washed, dried or beneficiated.

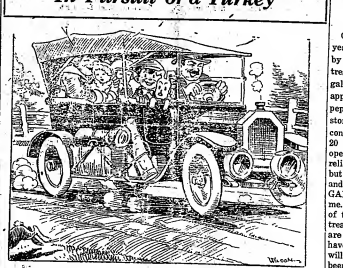
"Fourth—The cost of transporting the ore from the mine to the place of sale.

"Fifth—If taken from open pit mines, an amount for each ton mined equal to the cost of removing the overburden, divided by the number of tons of ore discovered; the amount of ore uncovered to be determined by the Minnesota Tax Commission.

"Sixth—If taken from underground mines, an amount for each ton of ore mined equal to the cost of sinking and constructing shafts and running drifts to take out the ore divided by the number of tons that can be advantageously taken out thru such shafts and drifts; the number of tons of ore than can be advantageously taken out in each such case to be determined by the Minnesota Tax Commission.

"With the above exemptions it will be seen that practically all expense of mining is exempt from the tax and only the net or natural value of the ore subjected to the tax.

"If these bills pass in 1921, it will reduce state taxes $5 on each $1,000 of assessed value.



"The two bills are both necessary to deal equally with the two classes of ore mine owners. Strictly speaking, neither bill is a 'tonnage tax.' Each is a tax on the natural value of the ore. One bill will reach those who collect royalties for letting others use the earth. The other bill will reach those who get the same natural value by operating their own mines."

Liquor Smuggling Furnishes Thrills

According to the statement of P. D. Keller, supervising federal prohibition agent for the northwest, more than 12,000 gallons of smuggled Canadian whisky has been seized within the last six months and at present there are about 700 liquor cases awaiting trial.

The experiences of the 25 men watching some 300 miles of boundary which includes fighting battles on lonely roads, ambushing armed gangs, combating desperate men who use ships, airplanes, armored cars, dynamite, railroad trains and even innocent water wagons and gasoline tanks to outwit the law, have produced settings in northern Minnesota for romance of adventure that rivals the legends of the liquor wars in the Cumberland mountains and the backwoods of Kentucky.

The many wild tales of encounters with liquor runners, which a short time back raised an incredulous laugh, have been vouched for by federal agents so often of late that they are no longer questioned. Revolvers, sawed-off shotguns and even machine guns have entered very much into many of the affairs.

With the advent of winter as well as the near approach of bone-dry provinces in Canada the efforts and daring of the runners have increased and as a result the agents have been kept extremely busy.

Even submarine chasers have been used on Lake Superior, one of these fast craft capturing last week a launch loaded with liquor. The agents have averaged over 500 gallons a week from their captures.

They are also getting many of the runners. This week three Baudette residents were caught. While over in Dakota, Al Forseth, who headed the International Flying Circus, which gave airplane exhibitions at the Roseau county fair this summer, was caught with three of his brothers and three other Grand Forks men in a running fight. Their cars were more or less shot up and when caught they had three revolvers and a shotgun and 25 cases of liquor.—Roseau Times-Region.

PLENTY TO BE THANKFUL FOR

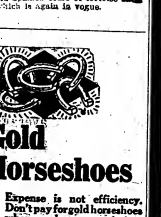
PRESIDENT WILSON ISSUES THE ANNUAL THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

Washington, Nov. 18.—President Wilson has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation, saying that "in plenty, security and peace our virtuous and self reliant people face the future," and setting aside Thursday, Nov. 25, for the usual observances.

"The season approaches when it behooves us to turn from the distractions and preoccupations of our daily life, that we may contemplate the mercies which have been vouchsafed to us, and render heartfelt and unfeigned thanks unto God for His manifold goodness.

This is an old observance of the American people, deeply imbedded in our thoughts and habits. The burdens and the stresses of life have their own insistence.



"We have abundant cause for thanksgiving. The lesions of the war are rapidly healing. The great army of free men which America sent to the defense of liberty, returning to the grateful embrace of the nation, has resumed the useful pursuits of peace as simply and as promptly as it rushed to arms in obedience to the country's call. The equal justice of our laws has received steady vindication in the support of a law-abiding people against various and sinister attacks, which have reflected only the baser agitations of war, now happily passing.

"In plenty, security and peace our virtuous and self reliant people face the future, its duties and its opportunities. May we have vision to discern our duties; the strength, both of hand and resolves, to discharge them; and the soundness of heart to realize that the truest opportunities are those of service.

"In a spirit, then, of devotion and stewardship we should give thanks in our hearts and dedicate ourselves to the service of God's merciful and loving purposes to his children.

"Wherefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fifth day of November next as a day of thanksgiving and prayer and I call upon my countrymen to cease from their ordinary tasks and vocations upon that day, giving it up to the remembrance of God and His blessings and their dutiful and grateful acknowledgement."

The Fourth ward made rather a poor showing in the recent election They are the only ward in the city to go against Preus. The only ward in the city to show a Republican loss Their "No" votes on all four of the amendments was larger than in any other ward. On Amendment No. 1 (Babcock) they cast a surprising negative vote. All the more credit is due, however, to the live workers in the ward, who showed an interest.

In another column we publish the report of the State Agricultural Department upon marketing conditions. This report is official; was ordered by the legislature. The investigation has been very exhaustive and complete. It should be read by every farmer in Minnesota. The report contains many good suggestions and is highly interesting. It holds the windshield over the middleman to some extent and kittens a trifle to the Board of Trade, but in the main the report is very favorable to the farmers' side. We must not expect to much all at one time. The agricultural department at this time is a Burnquist department and Burnquist has maintained close relations with the "Big Interests." Study the report; support its findings; help the department to help the farmers. When the farmers once get to going under an organized co-operative plan the middleman at the terminals so unnecessary at this time will go to farming or into some other honest business. There never was a time when the farmers had such a chance as now to promote their own business by unity of action. Public sentiment so necessary to success is at high pitch in the farmer's favor. The best place just now to do effective work for the cause is to join the Farm Bureau.

THE FARMER.

New York Herald: Kansas, Iowa, and Texas farmers demand and deserve a square deal in the marketing of their grain. Their agitation for a better price for their crops and proper credit to finance them may be a passing incident in the world's industrial readjustment, but it bears an important relation to the deep,quiet, evolutionary and orderly transition which is going on in the great American farming industry as a result of the war.

In withholding their grain from the market in a probably fatal attempt to force the price of wheat up to $3 a bushel, when there is an over supply of wheat, farmers of the wheat growing states are not pursuing a Simon pure economic course. But they are demonstrating that the plow, the harrow and the seed drill are no longer the simple poetic symbols of a mythical pastoral bliss and abundance but the practical working tools of an industry which has unlimited power to enforce its rights and has determined to exercise that power in a way that will bring results.

America has never seen a farmers' strike and probably never will. But the farmer can ask some pertinent questions about some recent goings on in the general industrial field that would be hard for anyone to answer, and he can rake up enough past history to justify him in going any length at this late day to get his share.

To the undoubted fact that there is too much wheat in the world for it to sell at $3 a bushel the farmer will respond that he answered the call for increased production, paid excessive wages and excessive supply prices to raise a crop which he cannot now market without a loss. If the farmer is to be asked to dump his wheat at $2 or less when it was produced on a higher cost basis he will demand that every other producer, wage worker and distributor sell his goods or services correspondingly down so the farmer may buy more labor, supplies, fertilizer and machinery for his smaller profit on $2 or lower wheat.

The farmer has been accused of holding out on hungry humanity because he did not dispose of all his previous crop as soon as it was harvested. He has stood false charges that would have shamed the worst profiteer But seldom has he been commended for using good business judgment, exactly as it is exercised in the best managed industries, when he has practiced or tried to practice very sound principles in spreading out the sale of his wheat to stabilize the market and prevent spasmodic price declines and give big interests, foreign and domestic, the opportunity at crop making time to gather in great yields of wheat at low prices to be passed on to the consumer later at prices as high as if the market had never seen a recession.

It would require more than an expert hair splitter to define the difference between carrying on credit for gradual distribution a million or ten million tons of raw materials used in industry to prevent a too rapid break in prices carrying on credit part of the wheat crop on the farms to prevent a collapse of prices. The wheat crop will be carried over anyhow, for the world will not buy more than it needs, but it will be carried over in such a manner as to put the profits from prices stabilized to the consumer into the pockets of somebody besides the farmer.

Farming is naturally a speculative undertaking, the farmer a natural speculator; for his fortune rides on the fickle wind and his profits may disappear with an early frost. Even with all uncertainties of the weather and other conditions beyond his control, the farmer knows that under the free law of averages he can make out. But he has learned that he can never make out if he is hoodwinked by a shell game that shows him $3 for a bushel of wheat when he is producing it in June and only $2 a bushel when he is marketing it in September and October.

Unless the country is prepared to have the farmer curtail his crops in the future and thwart the very doctrine of increased production preached from every housetop as the only way back to abundance and comfort, an attentive and sympathetic ear must be turned toward the tiller of the soil and sincere minds must devise remedies for the conditions which give rise to his complaints. Give agriculture the credit it needs and provide a fair market for its crops or the day will come when it will make the market on its own terms.

PALMER OR THE LAW.

Sioux City Journal: It is unjust to Attorney General Palmer at this time to draw final conclusions before Judge Anderson at Indianapolis, but the investigation has gone far enough to justify caustic condemnation of the policy he instituted of putting his own will and his own conclusions above the law. There can be no more dangerous exhibition of one-man power, of official will above the law, than that displayed by the attorney general in dealing with these cases. He decided what facts should be proved. He determined whether the crimes committed should be punished. He did not intend that all the evidence should be presented to the jury. The accused might be guilty, but by suppressing the convicting evidence the attorney general could defeat justice, make the court a joke and the trial a farce. All this supposed to have been agreed upon in advance between the accused and the official of the government.

The attorney general has not held the confidence of the thinking masses. He has spent millions of dollars in alleged investigations of criminals. He has been threatening the profiteers drastic punishment, but has never accomplished nothing except talk. Has he done in these cases as he did in the coal operators' cases and suppressed the evidence, the truth and the facts, in order that the culprits might go clear? If he places his own will above the law, if he repeals the law so far as his public services and duties are concerned in the case of the 126 coal operators against whom he suppressed the evidence, what reason is there to believe that he would not do the same thing in reference to other violations of the law? If he would subvert justice in one instance, he would in another. When an official does that he becomes a dangerous tyrant, an usurper of authority and should be impeached and removed from office.

The law that does not apply with the same unmerciful exactitude to the coal operator that it does to the coal miner, or the reverse, is an unjust law.

Conditions In State Showing Much Activity

decided reduction in production costs. A Yellow Medicine county banker replied to all questions optimistically. So did a banker in Marshall county. The latter took occasion to charge that "speculators" were responsible for breaks in grain prices. The Douglas county attitude, as expressed by an Alexandria banker, was similar. A banker in Glenwood said the next congress "has a wonderful opportunity to aid the farmer and to quiet unrest." He hesitated to forecast reduction in production costs unless the labor situation is adjusted.

"A number of farmers have sold their personal property, but others believe that 1921 will bering prosperity," said a Traverse county banker.

He expects decreased production costs and aid from congress. "Farmers hope congress will come to their assistance," said a Grant county banker. Farmers in his locality fear that high production costs will continue.

Optimistic reports were received from St. Louis county—one from Duluth and the other from the Iron Range. The Duluth banker said: "Our own ideas are that the cost of production will be lower next year and undoubtedly prices to the farmer will be lower. We believe that the congress, meeting after March 4, will undoubtedly enact some legislation that will furnish protection to the American farmer."

"Our farmers have every hope of favorable action by congress," said a Red Lake banker. He feared that high railroad rates and top prices for labor may keep production costs up. "Farmers live in hopes that conditions will right themselves," said he, touching upon 1921 prices. A Marshall banker was optimistic regarding 1921 prices, so far as economic regulation is concerned. But in commenting upon the attitude of the farmers toward possible assistance from the next congress, he said: "This is their dream."

Clearwater county farmers are optimistic despite their 1920 setbacks. So are the farmers in Polk and a number of other counties, as indicated by "yes" and "no" replies from bankers.

It was noticeable that grain growers thruout Minnesota have been complaining to their banker regarding imports of Canadian wheat. Many of these farmers also will agitate for government action to reduce grain speculation, if possible.

Business conditions seem to be improving in cities and rural trade centers. Buying has increased slightly, but is considerably below the volume recorded last November. Merchants in a number of cities commented upon the fact that clerical help is not so difficult to obtain as it was a year ago. It was pointed out that persons replying to advertisements have been more reasonable in salary demands.

Retail Agencies Owned By Farmers Is Solution

character of the individual and the performance of his business, his tangible assets and his volume. The bank loans apparently on the basis of tangible assets.

"In co-operative business the same essential credit requirements hold. It is necessary for the co-operative association to give the banking interests reasonable assurance of permanence. This requirement is fully met by co-operative associations when it issues capital stock, establishes a place of business and chooses a management in which men in general have confidence."

Similar programs are advocated for the handling of farm timber, eggs, hay and roughage, wool, dairy products and other farm products. Taking the matter of livestock marketing, Mr. Hughes says:

"At least 70 per cent of the livestock in Minnesota is shipped thru co-operative associations. There is reason to doubt whether the present form of organizations is sufficiently substantial as one on which to build a terminal selling agency.

"The need of such an agency thru which the farmer can come direct to the packer is apparent and from every standpoint desirable. It is suggested:

"First. That local associations incorporate under the co-operative law of 1919 with sufficient capital stock to make good any agreement entered into with the central selling agency.

"Second. That in order to insure dependable volume of business the local associations contract their business for a term of years to the central association.

"Third. That the central sales agency, representing the local association, be created to receive and sell livestock.

"Fourth That such sales agency be made, if desired by farmers, members of the existing livestock exchanges on terms assuring the farmer maintenance of the co-operative principle of profits distribution on the basis of patronage."

LARGE SUMS ARE TO BE APPORTIONED FOR STATE HEALTH BOARD

Three new tuberculosis sanatoria at a cost of $150,000.

Appropriation for a department of community nursing to coordinate and properly direct the rural visiting nurse work.

Legislation permitting county health organizations.

Discontinuance of the Pasteur Institute.

Establishment of a disease calamity fund of $10,000.

Appropriation of $2,000 to treat at home eleven lepers in the state.

The above proposed legislation with the aim and purpose of battling disease in the state of Minnesota is one of particular interest to every resident of the state and one which should be passed without hesitation by the authorities.

The legislation is now being considered by the State Board of Health, at which Mrs. J. M. Bishop, Mrs. J. M. Hardisty and Mrs. J. J. Richter are attending as representatives from this county. The apportionment of these funds for the furthering of the above program will be recommended to the next legislature and will undoubtedly meet with the approval of every member and be passed in short order. It is highly important that these steps be taken in order to combat the spread of disease and to insure the state generally for the life and well being of every resident.

Hunters Have Good Luck.

The hunters for big game are returning daily and the majority of them seem to have extraordinary luck in being able to land a deer. G. Howard Smith returned yesterday and brought home a fine specimen of the fleet footed tribe. He claims he was practically forced to shoot the animal to keep it from running over him and is of the belief that the deer was attacking him. J. H. Hermanson also returned yesterday from Beltrami county, where he spent a couple of days tramping the woods in an effort to land a deer, finally succeeding when about three miles out of Kelliher. Practically all of the hunters are having good luck this year and are returning home with the game in a short time.

BIG CATTLE RUNS SMASH RECORDS

Monday's Opening.

Cattle—With a new one-day record of 28,800 cattle on hand, market opened slow with practically all kinds of both killing cattle and stockers and feeders unevenly 25c or more lower. Veals opened on a steady to weak basis, best selling at $12.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 9,500. Market strong the 15c higher Range, $11.50 to $12.75. Bulk, $12.10 to $12.20. Top $12.25.

Sheep—Receipts 20,000. Weak to 25c lower. Top native lambs, $10.50. Top ewes, $5.00.

South St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 15.—Record smashing receipts of cattle featured last week's trade at South St. Paul. The former banner day, November 24, 1919, when 28,333 cattle were received, was eclipsed on Monday last week when 25,697 head arrived, and the week's marketing at 55,767 head shattered the former yard record for one week by more than 4,000 head. With this great influx of cattle locally and liberal receipts at other points, marketing channels were temporarily clogged, causing uneven declines in cattle prices up to mid-week, ranging from 25c to 75c. By Thursday the congestion was cleared by the demand for cattle on shipping account, which continued on Friday and enabled salesmen to retrieve a good share of the early week losses.

The bulk of the common and medium grades of beef steers sold at the finish from $6.50 to $9.00, with best steers in the week's trade, some North Dakota rangers of good grade here Friday at $11.25. Butcher cows and heifers closed mostly from $4.50 to $7.00, with best butcher heifers, some Montana heavyweights, at $9.35. Price range for canners at the close was $2.75 to $3.25, with average above the even money mark. Cutter cows are going largely from $3.50 to $4.25, with bologna bulls at $4.00 to $5.75 being unchanged for the week. Best veals advanced 25c, closing top being $12.75. Best stockers and feeders recovered the 25c loss sustained early and closed about steady with a week ago, while medium and common grades showed a loss of around 25c to 50c for the week's session.

Hog receipts increased and bulk at $12.00 to $12.15 Saturday stood $1.00 to $1.25 lower than a week ago. Best lambs around $10.75 closed fully 50c lower and ewes at $5.00 to $5.25, 25c to 50c lower for the week.

CHARGE AGAINST SHIPPING BOARD ANSWERED BY PIEZ

FORMER DIRECTOR EMERGENCY FLEET SAYS HOUSE COMMITTEE SEEKS SMALL THINGS

Washington.—Charles Piez, former director general of the Emergency Fleet corporation, criticised the house committee investigating the fleet corporation in a statement here and declared the committee had overlooked the "wholesome atmosphere of the hold and deck of the structure" and was "being just a bilge water committee."

"Twice within eight months," Mr. Piez said, "the so-called Welsh committee has caused the publication of a statement reflecting on the competency, honesty and integrity of members of the United States Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet corporation.

"The first statement was heralded as indicating a billion dollar graft among the ship builders and emergency fleet corporation officials of the Pacific coast.

Charges Grossly Overdrawn.

"The indictments when brought showed less than $30,000 involved and when the first case was brought to trial the government's case was so flimsy that the judge decided it without letting it go to the jury. The committee is again after a sensation and so it publishes the charges which two former minor employes of the shipping board have laid before it. It publishes these without giving the officials of the shipping board and the fleet corporation any opportunity to reply.

"Why hasn't it published these charges before it has investigated their validity? What malevolent, vindictive purpose is these behind this proceedure?

Petty Graft Punished.

Taking up the charges made before the committee, Mr. Piez declared that in the 191 shipyards under his control there were 385,000 men and that there was among the number "less than the average human dishonesty." There were cases of payroll padding and petty graft, he said, but offenders were summarily dealt with.

"As to other charges," he continued, "I want to say that during my incumbency of 19 months, there was not a case in which any contract work was let as the result of either political or any other influence, and I challenge the committee to bring forth a single example."

CAR SHORTAGE BACK BROKEN

COMMERCE COMMISSIONER ANNOUNCES END TO TRANSPORTATION MENACE

Washington, Nov. 18.—The back of the car shortage has been broken, Clyde B. Atchinson of the interstate commerce commission, declared before the annual convention of the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners. As a result of "the efforts of railroad operators and employes, with the assistance of the shippers and under the policy laid down by the commission," Mr. Atchinson said, "we are now facing the possibility of a surplus of equipment."

Mr. Atchinson declared the general public would never know how close the rail and water transportation systems of the United States came to a complete cessation of functioning in the industrial heart of the country, the result of the strikes beginning in April and continuing in diminishing force until midsummer.

"The present financial situation," Mr. Atchinson asserted, "coupled with the apparent downward trend of construction costs, makes it seem prudent not to engage upon any undue or avoidable construction problem until conditions become more normal, and seemingly there can be no letting down in the intensive use of equipment to make the existing transportation machine operate at a 100 per cent load factor."

EGGING HIM ON

BY VIOLET MOORE HIGGINS.

The lady with the eyes—yes, of course, most ladies have 'em, but not just like these—is Gloria Swanson, the young man is Monte Blue, and the situation is one of the many interesting ones in Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount production of "Something to Think About."

To judge by Monte's expression, the something isn't the high price of eggs per doz.—indeed, it doesn't seem to be paying much attention to them—but rather it seems to be Gloria's eyes that are supplying him with material for thought.

And as for Gloria—Ruth Anderson in the story—she's got plenty to think about, for she's engaged to David Markley, (Elliott Dexter) and she loves Jim Dirk (Monte Blue). Whether she "egged him on" or whether the eyes did it—at any rate he persuaded her to elope, but their happiness was brief, since the young fiancee met a hero's death, leaving his girl wife destitute.

But there was still happiness ahead for Ruth and David, for Ruth's fatherless child, and for Jim Anderson (Theodore Roberts). Ruth's blinded father, through the triumph of "right thinking" and the picture is one that by force of its appeal will give everyone who sees it "something to think about."

Incidentally, it proves that Gloria Swanson is as pretty—perhaps prettier—in the simple muslin frocks and gingham aprons of the country as in the amazing creations she has worn in earlier DeMille productions.

The Result of a Joke

Two girls were working in the same shop several years ago. The question of saving money came up one day, but these girls said they could not spare anything from their small earnings.

But just as a joke one of the girls said; "I dare you to start a savings account with me and see who can save the most." So they started.

A few years later one of these girls quit working at the shop to get married. She was surprised to find more than $600 in the bank to her credit—a very welcome sum at such a time.

The other girl is still working and she continues her visits to the bank each week. Her account is well above $2,000 now and it is growing fast. Her interest money each year is more than her first year's savings amounted to.

Perhaps this story will suggest a plan that wil work as well for you.

Surprise Shower.

Mesdames C. O. Erickson, L. A. Hermanson and Henry A. Froseth entertained at the latter's home at 806 Bridge street on Thursday afternoon at a parcel shower in honor of Mrs. H. S. Snyder, to whom it was a complete surprise. The afternoon was spent in conversation, games, etc., and at 6 o'clock luncheon was served. Those present were Mesdames T. J. Rowan, G. Howard Smith, A. S. Spero, C. J. Brown, G. L. Biddick, W. H. Wikel, George Loken, F. E. Hunt. Mrs. Snyder received many beautiful gifts.

Social and Dance.

The Thief River Falls Central Labor Union social and dance given at I. O. O. F. hall last Monday night was a grand success. The committees which had been appointed at a previous meeting to look after various matters in connection with the event went to work early and made all the necessary preparations in due time. About 150 were present and thoroly enjoyed themselves, even the older folks were enticed in "tripping the light fantastic" when the orchestra struck up "Turkey in the Straw" and other old tunes. At midnight an exceptionally appetitzing lunch which had been prepared by the ladies of the union was passed out. Such liberal quantities of food had been prepared that much was left over. Several members of the unions distributed baskets of sandwiches, doughnuts, cake, etc., the next morning to homes in the city where it would do the most good. The dance lasted only a short time after supper when all departed for home after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

Clothes Pin Social.

A Thanksgiving program and a clothes pin social will be given at the Hazel hall on Tuesday evening Nov. 23, at 8 o'clock. Ladies will bring a clothes pin and lunch for two. A box supper will be given as a prize to the lady having the best dressed clothes pin. Everybody welcome.

Advertising Tips.

Just imagine for a minute that some power could stop all advertising—how would it affect you?

It would cut you off from all direct commercial news about things you need and use in your everyday life. Somebody might be selling a new, better, more economical food, or a utensil that would save money and time; or an article that would add greatly to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but you would never know it.

Merchants and manufacturers would would be unable to tell you about new and better things. They would thus find it hard to put these things on the market, and often would not try.

Merchants unable to tell you what they have to offer you could not take the risk of buying goods for which they might have no customers.

"It pays to advertise." And advertising pays not only the advertiser and publisher, but pays you, too. It keeps you informed about the things you need in order to live a profitable, happy and useful life in this age of progress.—News, Montevideo, Minn.

Sheepmen Advised to Stick.

The condition of the wool and mutton market has had a depressing effect upon the sheep business. A few of the larger mills are again in operation and I do not think it will be long before a market for wool is created. Advice to breeders is to "stand by the ship." In all lines of business there are seasons of low price levels, but the man who holds on is generally the man who reaps the harvest, rather than the man who jumps in and out.

For the beginner I think there is no better time to start than now, as prices are low and this is a good time to get the experience. As the situation improves, one will be ready to take advantage of the higher prices.

Select ewes that show good breeding, thrift, health and freedom from running noses and dry hacking coughs. Yearlings and two and three year olds are better than lambs at a higher price to be held for a year previous to breeding. Old ewes are generally disappointing and, at the best, poor investments. Select those showing good fleeces and of medium wool breeding.—P. A. Anderson, assistant professor of animal husbandry, University Farm.

County division was defeated in Marshall county by a majority of 2,-205 votes, the vote being 1,843 for the proposition to 3,659 against. Thus the votes were more than two to one against the proposition.

PLEAS MADE FOR RED CROSS

PRESIDENT WILSON PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO WORLD RELIEF ORGANIZATION.

Washington—President Wilson urges his "fellow countrymen" to join the Red Cross "in impressive numbers during the fourth annual roll call."

"The American Red Cross," said the president, "deserves a hearty response to its fourth invitation to annual membership.

"Under the stimulus of war and thru the co-operation of our people, this organization grew into immense size, enlarged its range of activity, served not only our fighting forces but also civilians involved in the hardships of war in our own nation and in the nations associated with is in a great common enterprise and gave to the world an example of effective mercy thru coordinated effort.

"Since the cessation of hostilities the organization has faced a dual duty: First, to fulfill obligations created by the war, and secondly to adapt its experience and machinery to the needs of peace.

"It is today still assisting governmental agencies in the care and cheer of our disabled soldiers and sailors, in replacing those able to work in civilian occupations and in counselling and aiding the families of former combatants; and it is still assisting with dimished resources, the process of rehabilitation of some of the more prostrated countres of our former associates.

"While continuing these manifest obligations the Red Cross has been accommodating methods and applying lessons learned in war to the normal needs of our own pople in times of peace, especially in regions where provisions for public health and welfare were imperfectly developed. It has placed public health nurses in many localities and has endeavored to enlist greater numbers of young women in the nursing profession in order that the supply might more nearly equal the steadily increasing demand for community nurses. It has devised a scheme of 'public health centers' for the relief of maladies and for instruction in hygiene, dietetics and general principles of disease prevention. With its nurses and nurses' aides it has rendered incalculable service in the serious epidemics of influenza. It has carried instruction in hygiene and first aid into schools, the women's clubs and the homes of our country. It has taught young and untaught mothers how to care intelligently for their babies and has done much in many ways to promote child welfare, upon which the welfare of the nation ultimately rests. It has made it a fundamental principle to avoid futile duplications, to co-operate with public agencies when its cooperation was sought and to supply deficiencies where such agencies had not yet been established.

"It has continued its educational work among the school children thru its Junior Red Cross branch and it has, as one result of its war experience, put preparation for disaster-relief on a scientific foundation, so that it is now equipped to meet disaster emergencies promptly in almost every part of the country.

"By systematic plans and practical performances it has given a clear answer to the question why the Red Cross should be continued and carried over from war activity into peace time activity. The answer is in the record.

"Additional to these obvious aspects of the matter, there is another reason why I, as president of the United States and president of the American Red Cross, urge my fellow countrymen to join the Red Cross in impressive numbers. Reaction follows emotion and after great effort comes perilous lassitude. Sound patriotism and genuine human service are continuous, not intermittent, not contingent merely upon the excitement of war. If there is in some of us an inward cooling of the fine fervor which animated us in the crisis of the nation's stress and peril, a contraction of the spirit which enables us as individuals and as a nation, now, during the 'Red Cross roll call,' is a fitting season to take counsel with our inner selves, to rekindle the old flame, to reaffirm allegiance to practical patriotism and practical humanitarianism and to symbolize the regeneration of our better thoughts and handsomer selves by reenlistment in a great army mobilized for the common good.

26 MORE SHOPPING DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

VOL. 20 No 75 THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1920 Official Paper of Pennington County

POULTRY SHO[W] HAS EXTRA F[INE] LINE OF ENT[RIES]

ESTIMATED ENTRIES W[ILL] RUN FULLY A HUNDRED [PER]CENT MORE THAN LAST YEAR.

The fourth annual Pennington County Poultry Show opened yesterday in the Auditorium in this city and will close Wednesday evening.

The first day the exhibits came in thick and fast and it kept one man busy meeting trains and getting the exhibits to the auditorium where they were tagged and entered. The exhibits early yesterday morning were surprisingly large and were of an exceedingly high grade. It is estimated there will be perhaps one hundred more birds exhibited this year than last. The exhibits last year ran to 410 and according to J. J. McCann, secretary of the organization, this year will run upwards of five hundred and possibly more.

The Pennington County Poultry Shows are becoming noted the state over for the fine exhibits and the large number. Exhibitors from many distant points take advantage of the local show and hold their birds for this exhibition in preference to all others. The Auditorium in which the exhibits as housed is considered one of the best in the northwest for anything of this kind and it is doubtful if there is anything this side of Minneapolis and will compare favorably with the spacious, well lighted, airy building.

The exhibits this year are going to exceed those of the average poultry show and the judges will find it mighty hard to judge the best of the flock, from the appearances of those already in. Take a little time and go look over this exhibition of fine birds. It is time well spent and shows conclusively that Pennington county and Northern Minnesota are fast forging to the front in the line of pure bred chickens and stock and are sure to be classed as one of the progressive spots in the state ere long.

GRYGLA COMES IN FOR WINNINGS AT BIG STOCK SHOW

ENTRIES IN LAMB CONTEST FROM GRYGLA MAKE EXTRA FINE SHOWING.

A. J. Anderson, of Grygla, formerly of this city, was at St. Paul last week with his prize winning sheep club and managed to win one of the hard fought for prizes thru diligent work and careful and painstaking attention to everything that goes into the winning of a prize at a state contest. Wesley Sheldrew, of Grygla, won fifth place in the state contest for the exhibition of the best sheep. This honor is one worthy of distinction when it is considered that the sheep was exhibited against all comers in the state and Mr. Anderson, who developed and promoted the sheep club at Grygla, and who is responsible for the entries from that district, is feeling mighty good to know that that section of the state carried off honors in this class.

The awards were made after every animal had been carefully judged and in view of the fact that there were many on exhibit the entry from Grygla did exceedingly well to capture fifth place against the entire state.

Mr. Anderson says he feels that the youngsters have learned a great deal about the proper care of stock from their attendance at the Junior Livestock Show. They have found out how important it is for the animals to be in the pink of condition and how necessary it is that they receive the right treatment at all times in order to develop into prize winners. He is confident that next year the exhibit from the Grygla neighborhood is going to be one of extreme importance and hard to equal, let alone beat. The winners in the sheep contest are as follows: First, Gerald Sullevan, Lee-Sueur Center; second, Donald Martin, Dodge Center; third, James Tully, Dodge Center; fourth, Martin Anderson, Halolck; fifth, Wesley Sheldrew, Grygla.

Former Residents Vaited by Stork.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Downey, former residents of this city, but now of Reston, Canada, will be pleased to learn that the stork special left a fine boy at their home on the 16th of this month.

CHORAL CLUB FORMED AT MEETING HELD LAST EVE--BIG MEMBERSHIP

The Thief River Choral Club was organized last evening at a called meeting at the Commercial Club rooms and thirty-four members were taken in at the first meeting. There are fifty-two on the list who have signified their intention of becoming members of the organization and it is expected there will be more later.

The purpose of the organization is to promote community singing among the people of the city and to develop the talent that is here. Officers elected were O. F. Meilby, president; W. A. Barnard, vice president; Miss Dora Holmes, secretary-treasurer; Mr. N. K. Harris, librarian, and Miss Maude Johnson, director.

The club will hold regular meetings on Friday evening of each week, starting next week. Thorough practice is expected to make the club one of the best in this section of the state and will add much to the musical life of the city.

SECOND PLACE TO LOCAL GIRL IN DAIRY CONTEST

MISS RUBY CONKLIN WINS SECOND OVER ENTIRE STATE IN DAIRY EXHIBIT.

Pennington county fared extra well in the Junior Live Stock Show held at St. Paul last week, capturing second in the dairy department over many strong competitors.

Miss Ruby Conklin of this place won second on the Guernsey calf exhibited and this honor comes after exhibiting against a winner of first at the dairy show at Waterloo, Iowa, first at the Minnesota state fair and second at the International Livestock Show at Chicago. The Elmer J. Eklund post of the American Legion will meet this evening at the Evelyn Hotel for the purpose of electing officers and setting the dues of the local post for the coming year. ## Our 1920 Thank You

ON THURSDAY of this week we will celebrate that day which was set aside by our forefathers as a day on which to give thanks for the many good things received during the year. This 1920 Thanksgiving should mean more to us than ever before. Greater things have come to us. Never has this country been more prosperous. There never was a chance for greater happiness than there is now. Let us consider well our many blessings—and then say a "THANK YOU."

Personally the Tribune is thankful for the patronage of our many customers. We would like to thank each one in person. Since this is not reasonably possible, we are extending this "THANK YOU" through the pages of the Tribune.

The good will you have shown us, the patience you have demonstrated during the unparalleled conditions in the publishing business, and the business you have given us during these strenuous times—these are only a few of the many things we are thankful for this 1920 Thanksgiving month.

THE PUBLISHERS.

THREE WINNERS IN GOOD ROADS ESSAY CONTEST

PRIZES AWARDED BY MINNESOTA HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

Thief River Falls and Pennington county have been very much in evidence around the state capital during the last week or ten days and in each instance those participating in any sort of a contest have walked away from the field in the winning of prizes.

Those gaining distinction at this time are the winners in the good roads essay contest in which the Minnesota Highway Improvement Association offered $200 in prizes to the school children for the best essays on why we should have good roads in the state.

Three school children from Thief River Falls were fortunate in winning prizes and doubtless have received their checks by this time. The winners from this city are Olive Aslund, who wins a two dollar cash prize; Frances Shanahan, 804 LaBree avenue north, winner of a one dollar cash prize; Ella Mjelde, 706 Arnold avenue north, also winner of a one dollar cash prize.

The first prizes, amounting to ten dollars each, were awarded to Marion Henke, Dassel; Alventa Larson, Brutsfield; Bernice Anderson, LeSueur Center; Catherine Willard, Mankato, and Elmer Wedan, Wolverton.

The state board of awards was made up of three disinterested persons. They were J. H. Hay, deputy commissioner of agriculture and former superintendent of schools of this place; Miss Marian Michelet of Minneapolis, member of the faculty of South high school, and T. J. Caton of Minneapolis, who was active in the speaking campaign for Amendment No. 1.

The board members read hundreds of papers forwarded by school superintendents in virtually all the counties of the state. Their decisions are unanimous.

Hotels Offer Splendid Menus.

The local hotels are offering an appetizing menu for Thanksgiving dinner and no doubt they will be called upon to feed a great many on that day. The Evelyn Hotel and the Brunnind are both offering an especially fine dinner on Thursday. The menus of both hotels will be found in this issue of the Tribune.

Takes Up Flying.

Lieutenant Clyde C. Way returned from France in Feburary and since assigned to duty in Washington and later to Camp Grant, has now resigned from infantry service and enlisted in the Aviation Corps and is stationed at a Florida camp.

HUNTERS OF BIG GAME ARE SLOWLY DRIFTING HOME TO SQUARE MEAL

The local big game hunters have practically all straggled back to the city after having hibernated for the past week or ten days and while some were fortunate in bringing home a deer, there were others who woked equally as hard, if not harder, and yet failed to bring home anything even resembling a deer.

Those of whom the Tribune has been informed as having been fortunate in bagging a deer, the past week are Ole Ihle and Sig Myrom, Oscar Rambeck, J. H. Hermanson, L. D. McAdams, G. Howard Smith, Julian Provencher, and there are doubtless many others who were fortunate but we have not heard of them. F. F. Haynes, H. W. Proteseller and L. H. Lawrence hid out in the tall timber northeast of Grygla for the better part of a week and returned some late Saturday without even having seen a deer.

Those who secured a deer claim they are plentiful and in many cases had to shoot them to keep from being run down

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE FOR RED CROSS NETS LARGE ENROLLMENT

The fourth annual roll call for membership in the Red Cross is practically finished in Thief River Falls and also in other towns in the county. The committee in the city secured two hundred and seventy-nine to date and it is felt that a few more will be secured before the drive is finally finished. The solicitors on Saturday were handicapped with the bad weather and found it almost impossible to make a house to house canvass as was the original plan. They did some soliciting yesterday and while they are conscious of having skipped several places, they feel the results obtained are sufficient unto the needs of the local chapter and in view of the fact that there has been so much soliciting in the past, are half inclined to let the work of soliciting go for the present. Those who were overlooked and who desire to be enrolled in this worthy organization, may leave their names and dollar with T. M. Melgard at the Citizens State Bank or by telephoning Mrs. Andrew Craik, a blank will be left with them and they may be enrolled in this manner.

It is expected the total number will run close to five hundred for the county. Goodridge and St. Hilaire are yet to be heard from and their sports will without donbt help to bring the total up to a fal sise. The number of memberships received in the city of Thief River Falls this year exceeds that received in the entire county last year.

Use the Tribune for advertising results.

STORES CLOSE THURSDAY GIVE CLERKS HOLIDAY

THANKSGIVING TO BE APPROPRIATELY CELEBRATED—UNION SERVICES

Thursday of this week is Thanksgiving and as such will be observed as a legal holiday in Thief River Falls. The stores of the city will be closed all day but will be open the evening before to give everyone a chance to purchase their supplies for the day. This is done in order that all may enjoy a holiday. The banks of the city will also be closed and absolutely no business of any nature will be conducted in this city on that day.

Union services will be held by the Presbyterian and Methodist churches at 10:30 Thanksgiving morning in the Methodist church. This has indeed been a great year and the people of Thief River Falls and Pennington county should make the beginning of the day definitely religious. The whole English speaking world commemorates the three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers and they have set us a wonderful example in proclaiming a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for their first meager harvest. How much more should the people respond this year and every year? If the sense of God is allowed to depart from our national life, we are on the decline in spite of rich harvests.

Go to church Thanksgiving morning.

AUXILIARY OF LEGION SOON TO BE FORMED IN THIEF RIVER FALLS

The possibilities for the forming of an auxiliary to Elmer J. Eklund post of the American Legion are exceptionally bright at this time and it is expected a called meeting will be held on Saturday of this week for the purpost of forming such an organization.

Mrs. J. M. Bishop, who attended the state meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion at Minneapolis last week, was appointed a member of the state executive committee, as also was Miss Emma Holm of the sixth district, thus giving the district two members on the board.

The local post is anxious to see the auxiliary formed in this city and is doing everything possible for the perfecting of the oganization. At their regular meeting this evening the matter will be taken up and it is expected that by the end of the week the auxiliary will be formed and duly recognized by the state association.

LOCAL BUREAU NOW MEMBER OF STATE BODY

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED AT STATE MEETING HELD AT ST. PAUL LAST WEEK.

The Pennington County Farm Bureau is now a member of the State Federation of Farm Bureaus and also a member of the National Farm Bureau.

This important step was reached when the county organization was taken into the state and national organizations at St. Paul at the state convention held there the last three days of the week. This insures the local farm bureau of co-operation and assistance in all lines from the two big organizations and places them in a position whereby they will be better able to cope with the problems that confront the farmers from time to time and will also be a great help in the marketing of produce and keeping up to snuff on the important questions of the day with reference to better farming.

Ben Rosendal, J. J. McCann and Paul Englestad of this city were at the state convention, and Pennington county was also represented by J. H. Hay of St. Paul. This combination is a hard one to beat and their work in connection with matters relating to the welfare of the local farm bureau will always come first and receive the proper amount of attention.

The ninth district was given one member on the board of directors. There are ten congressional districts represented, but only seven directors. Frank Jeffers of Red Lake Falls was appointed the delegate from the ninth district. Ben Rosendal is the director for the county and will attend all future meetings of the state association. A brief summary of the many important matters taken up at the convention, of which it is possible to give all, is as follows:

Minnesota will go before the national convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Indianapolis next month as the first state whose farm bureau organization has adopted a complete pogram for the practical improvement of farming and maketing conditions and its delegates will present the state program for adoption as the national federation's declaration of policies.

Victor Anderson, re-elected treasurer of the state federation at the second annual convention, and one of the delegates to the farm bureau congress, Dec. 6, 7 and 8, said that the Minnesota federation has assumed national leadership in farm bureau affairs by formulating its statewide program.

At the close of the state convention the new federation executive committee met to plan presentation of the agricultural program for adoption by the other 31 states in which farm bureaus are organized as well as for the approval of the national federation.

The executive committee, immediately after the convention, took steps to carry out an inquiry into the actual cost of producing farm crops in Minnesota. A special committee, made up of Thomas Cashman and J. S. Jones, was put in charge.

Mr. Cashman and C. W. Glotfelter are the first members of a legislative committee which will work for enactment of the federation's legislative program. The executive committee also acted to create a department to keep the public informed as to all the phases of its work.

"The farm bureau federation," Mr. Potter said, "will do none of its business behind closed doors. It wants the people everywhere to know exactly what it is doing all the time."

"Minnesota is the first state in the union to put across such a program, and we are proud of it," Mr. Anderson said. "We are so proud of it and believe in it so much that we are convinced the national federation should and will adopt every provision it contains. It is the result of long and careful investigation and while it may have some faults, we believe it is based on correct principles. Every member of the delegation that goes from Minnesota to the national convention will work to put it across as the national federation program."

Changes in the present marketing system of the United States are necessary if the farmer is to get his just portion of the proceeds of his toil, but some new and better sys-

HALF MILLION TO SAVE LIFE ASKED

"A half million dollars against the lives and well being of 2,500,000 people in Minnesota."

Summed up in that concise phraseology, Dr. C. L. Scofield, president of the Minnesota Public Health association, told the state sanitary conference of health officers at the Lowry building in St. Paul, of the proposed legislation to be asked of the 1921 legislature.

More than 100 village, city and township and county health officers were in attendance when the conference opened. No formal speeches were made. The program covered 13 phases of public health work and included the foremost exponents of that particular phase.

Tuberculosis, trachoma, the terrible eye disease that is spreading over northern Minnesota, treatment of lepers, standardization of the county nurse work, discontinuance of the Pasteur Institute, more money for the venereal department and the establishment of a disease calamity fund are the major details of the program mapped out for the next two years of the public health work in Minnesota.

Disease Ravages Described.

Many facts, little known to the "man in the street," were told to the delegates. Tales of the pitiful condition of many of the tubercular men, women and children of the state who, because of lack of facilities, are forced to do without proper treatment; stories of the terrific spread of trachoma, that eye disease which blinds and is a cause for rejection from this country by the Bureau of Immigration; discontinuance of the Pasteur Institute because of the standardized treatment which may be administered at the home; home treatment of eleven lepers by means of the newest discovered serum; increase in the sum necessary to care for the venereal cases in the state and to protect society from the social outcasts; establishment of a calamity fund to eliminate any repetition of such a debacle as faced the state when the epidemic of poliomyelitis—infantile paralysis—and influenza took their toll and a standardization of the work of the county or visiting nurse work were all laid before the members and emphasis given to the need for immediate action.

Questions were put to Dr. Scofield by them relating to the work already performed and on a brief survey of the past history of the work of the association they endorsed the contemplated program.

Among the many projects initiated by the Minnesota Public Health association was the work of the public health nurses. Begun comparatively recently, this work assumed such proportions that it was demanded by county after county. This service having been firmly established, it was turned over to the state board of health.

Counties to Control Nursing.

The legislature will be asked to pass a bill giving the control of the community nursing work into the hands of the state board and providing funds for its maintenance until such time as the different localities are in a position to take over the direction by themselves.

Working along with their three-word slogan, "Education, Prevention and Organization," thousands of school children were brought to the clinics where they were studied and suggestions made which gave them a chance to live.

Prominent in this work was the discovery that country children, despite the fact that they have unlimited quantities of fresh air and are at the very source of food products, are below the standard set by the city children in that they are suffering from malnutrition.

This is laid to the fact that the country school child in most cases lives at a considerable distance from his school. In order to get there, he is forced to rise early, and childlike, holts his breakfast. At noon a cold lunch is hurried down that the boy or girl may play, and at night the child is so hungry that he again yields to appetite and hurriedly consumes the evening meal. This tax on the stomach of cold meals and hurried eating does not permit the assimulation of food in the proper manner and the child's health suffers. A movement is under way now to provide a warm meal for the school child in the rural districts at noon.

Lack of Sanatoria.

That no new tuberculosis sanatoria have been built for more than eight years was another startling statement made by Dr. Scofield.

This despite the fact that the number of cases has been increasing and the present sanatoria have a combined bed capacity of only 1500 and each has a waiting list.

A total of $160,000 is to be asked of the legislature to construct three for the "white plague" and these will be built in the center of the three districts which need them most.

Salaries paid the experts in the employ of the state board of health are insufficient, he further declared. This will be remedied if the legislature will grant the request to increase these salaries to a point where the professional man and woman may continue in their public work without too great sacrifice.

At the last session a bill to permit the different counties to organize their own boards of health was defeated thru lack of interest. This will again be brought up in order that the present condition which permits of from 25 to 50 different health officials to be appointed in the counties with any centralized direction.

Trachoma is spreading at an appalling rate thru the northern part of the state and only an expert can handle the work, it was declared. None of the practitioners in the state at present feel capable of taking on this work and arrangements will have to be made to bring an expert here from the east. For this work $25,000 is to be asked.

The appropriations asked for have been pared to the limit, Dr. Scofield stated. A committee of the different heads of departments have boiled the requests to the absolute minimum and it is hoped that the requests will go thru as requested.

For the present two year period, only $288,000 was asked. For the next two year period, in which all this additional work is to be done, the total asked is only $516,000.

Back To Normal Depends Upon the Plain Living Square Dealing of People

GOVERNMENT AND THE PEOPLE MUST WORK TOGETHER, SAYS PRESIDENT-ELECT HARDING

New Orleans, Nov. 20.—Plain living and square dealing were invoked by President-elect Harding in a speech here today as the nation's strongest reliance during the coming period of after-war adjustment.

"Sanity, clear thinking, common sense, honesty and co-operation," were among the qualities he named as prime necessities in meeting the demands of the world order and declared material interest and national happiness both would benefit if the United States became a "simple living people once more."

"Whatever discouragements and reverses there have been," he declared, would only be temporary in character.

Senator Harding's speech delivered at a luncheon at the New Orleans Association of Commerce also contained a message of assurance to the industrial development of the south and an expression of hope that the ties of commerce and co-operation with Latin America would be strengthened by every possible means. The address was part of his five hour visit to New Orleans.

He said in part: "I believe the American people have come to realize we must face momentous problems with resolute courage and practice wisdom and patriotic determination. There must be no reason for pause nor excuse for despair, no place for pessimism.

"If we be effective in solving our problems at home we shall be better able to help solve the problems of the world as befits our part in modern civilization.

"The world has never undergone such an upheaval as that which came with the great war. Its civilization was never so thoroly tried. Inevitably there must be reconstruction. And only the old order must never return. We must put aside the debris of war and continually build on the old foundations. We cannot escape all of the consequences of fevered war or the unsettled conditions of its aftermath. There are sure to be reverses. There will be endless discouragements, but a confident America will face them with good courage. And we will win. Surely we are going to be called upon nationally, collectively and individually to renounce extravagance and learn the old and the new lessons of thrift and providence. It will add to our power and emphasize our stability if we become a simple living nation once more. It will add to the sum total of our happiness

"The big thing for all Americans to realize now, and always, is the dignity of productive labor. No matter how humble, the producers are makers of the essentials of civilization and we must accept and discharge our duties of producing for the world or of administering to the needs of commerce and the progress of mankind.

"There are certain fundamentals which are everlasting. Neither our own nor the world's salvation is to be worked out thru any patent nostrum, thru any miracle of statesmanship, thru any government panacea. The government is but the agency to administer the collective organized public service. Sanity, clear thinking, common sense, co-operation in official circles, in executive and legislative departments will help mightily and bring us closer together and promote our understandings, but government alone will not effect the whole solution. A greater task is that of the American people themselves. It is for them under government leadership to meet the great task."

"MASTER MIND" DIRECTS HUGE BOOZE RING

THIS IS THE STORY CHICAGO HEARS—CLIQUE SAID TO HAVE MADE $14,000,000.

He lives in a comfortable apartment which he also uses as an office. He is in almost daily communication by long distance telephone with Washington, Cincinnati and other cities. This "master mind" has four chief lieutenants. Two live in Chicago; two live in Washington.

Made $14,000,000.

Some of them are well known men. The commander-in-chief himself, tho, is comparatively unknown. He is not a public man nor a politician.

These five men, the real higher ups in a systematic booze traffic that covers half the country, have cleaned up $14,000,000 in profits since national prohibition went into effect. Such is the story whispered in Chicago. It is a story that contains no names and no addresses. It may be of the flimsiest foundation—but there are several people in Chicago who insist it is true. Reports concerning this "fourteen million dollar clique" are significantly persistent.

There has been emphasis on the story the past week because of the activity of the federal grand jury probing the booze scandal and the coincident resignation of Major A. V. Dalrymple, the most famous supervising prohibition commissioner in the country.

Chief is Worried.

It is said the mysterious chief of the "fourteen million dollar clique" is worried about Dalrymple's confidential report, though he claims to have such a tremendous influence that he cannot be "touched."

Major Dalrymple refuses to discuss his report. Commissioner Williams in Washington admitted its existence, but went no further than a hint that it included "names of politicians and officials who attempted to block enforcement of the prohibition law."

It is significant that two leading enforcement officials have resigned in Chicago, said to be the distributing center of the nation's illicit booze industry. Captain Hulbert Howard, state commissioner, resigned several months ago with the admission that he was helpless—that he had turned down opportunities to make a million dollars "easy money."

Now Dalrymple, who hung on to his job in spite of open opposition, has quit.

Are they going to get the "higher ups?" Everybody wonders. Meanwhile you can buy all the booze you want in Chicago—and in most every other city.

Preus Received 134,403 Plurality

St. Paul—Governor-elect J. A. O. Preus received a plurality of 134,403 votes in the Nov. 2 election, and President-elect W. G. Hardings plurality was 376,447 votes, complete returns tabulated by Secretary of State J. A. Schmahl show.

Amendments Nos. 1, 2 and 4 were approved by the voters and the third proposed amendment was defeated. Amendment No. 1 is the good roads amendment; No. 2 extends the probate judge term to four years, and No. 4 makes possible assessment of railroad property for adjacent improvements.

In the Seventh Congressional district, Congressman A. J. Volstead received a plurality of 1,482 over Rev. O. J. Kvale, and in the Eighth congressional district W. L. Carss, independent, was defeated by O. J. Larson by 1,023.

Attorney General C. L. Hilton's plurality was 195,248 and O. P. B. Jacobson, railroad and warehouse commissioner, led the Republican ticket with a plurality of 268,301 votes.

The total number of votes cast was 797,945. The number necessary for ratification of amendments was therefore 398,973. The official vote follows:

Farmers Progress In Association To Hold Products Off Market

T. LEWIS FINDS NO IMPROVEMENT IN GRAIN MARKETING IN NORTHWEST.

Progress is being made in North Dakota by officers of the Wheat Growers' National Association in organizing farmers for the purpose of holding back farm products fom the maket, according to Todd Lewis, of Charles E. Lewis & Company, who returned today from a trip thru North Dakota.

No improvement in the grain market situation can be noted, Mr. Lewis said. City banks in Minneapolis have extended such large sums to the northwest for the financing of the grain and the money has been tied up thru the failure of the farmers to market their grain. The situation relatives to country bank loans is such Mr. Lewis said, that city banks will extend a lesser amount of credit accommodation to the country next year.

Todd Lewis is a gambler, a gambler in the grain the farmer raises. He neither sows, reaps nor spins. He is the "horible example" of Big Business and a living exemplification of the utter inadequacy of our present system of marketing and credits. Please note because the farmers do not send in the grain now, quick, so Todd can store and scalp and hedge and grade and regrade and gamble with the grain for chips, because he cannot get the grain on the early fall low market, he squeals and threatens. He says city money was advanced to the farmers and now they will not sell their wheat to pay back this "city money." Todd wants both the country wheat and the country money right in Minneapolis. So he and the other gamesters can gambol, and gamble, and he threatens us that the banks will not get caught again by sending out nice city money to the scheming farmers, who desire to hold their grain for a higher price. They are going to lend the money to Todd again next year, hundreds of thousands of it on storage tickets on farmers' grain in store, waiting for the inevitable rise, and they will loan Todd one hundred cents on the dollar on the storage tickets too. Again, let's see! Where do the city banks get this so-called "city money?" Look at the map of Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Sonth Dakota. Where do the railroads lead to? Minneapolis; and they carry every day, all the year round not only the farmers' produce, but the farmers' money. Every bank in every city, village, town or hamlet that has a bank sends in their last dollar, except counter money, every day. And Mr. Lewis, with high banking connections, threatens us. He is speaking out loud the sentiments of more discreet gentlemen, who believe as he does but are not foolish enough to say it. Just keep it in mind, all the time our troubles are up at the top.

LONDON WOMEN TAKE TO SMOKING PIPES

London—Pipe smoking seems to be on the increase among London women and fashionable cigar stores display dainty small briars, some set with precious stones. It is said there is a growing demand for these.

At one West London theater where smoking is permitted, two smartly dressed women were seen the other evening in a box puffing at their jewelled pipes and soon an old Irish woman in the gallery followed suit. Hers was a clay "cutty."

In a first class railroad car between Horsham and London, a quarrel arose the other day between a number of non-smoking women and other women who refused to put out their cigarettes at their sister travelers' request. It ended in one of the anti-smokers seizing the offending cigarette, gold mounted tortoiseshell holder and all, and flinging it out of the window.

"Two guineas costs will meet the case," said the magistrate.

Every national, state and district official is singing the praises of the Farm Bureau. Many are friends, many are hypocrits, stampeded by the force of the organization.

We hope it will be remembered that Jake Preus, Prof. Hay and other state officials are not eleventh hour converts to the co-operative marketing plan. They helped make it.

We feel just as good over the progress of the American Farm Bureau work in the state and nation as though the whole progress had been worked out as a compliment to the Tribune. Anyway, we are much obliged. Every citizen of Pennington county should join the association.

At an annual meeting of the Minnesota Public Health Association in St. Paul last week, Mrs. J. M. Bishop was unanimously elected a member of the board of directors. This is one of the really big organizations of the state, with members in every county, and a great service is rendered each year. Many matters are to be presented to the legislature for consideration and as Mrs. Bishop is to be on the legislative committee from the Ninth district, her services will be very helpful to the association and to the legislature in helping to smooth the way for proper things demanded at this time.

THE CHURCH AS A COMMUNITY CENTER.

A writer in Today's Housewife declares that our churches fell down at the entrance of America into the big war, leaving the Red Cross to do the enormous work that was done for the soldiers and which should have been done by the churches.

This is quite misleading insofar as the observations of the editor is concerned. It is true that the great Red Cross, already organized for the class of labor urgently needed, took the initiative, but how fa would the Red Cross have gotten had not our American church women instantly joined up with the Red Cross nucleus and loyally given their best to this work of love and patriotism?

Everywhere within our ken, women's church societies almost abandoned the strictly church activities and moved in a body to the Red Cross sewing and serving rooms.

At the same time, we agree with the woman's paper writer that our own churches should be more community centers than they are. The church, instead of being open one day in the week and perhaps one or two nights a week, should be open every night in the week if possible.

To do this, there must be more than a live pastor. If the pastor is not supported by adequate financing and by public spirited trustees and deacons and elders, he cannot get very far.

Understand, we are not among those who advocate vaudeville and high jinks in our churches. But we do believe that the church will serve the community better and bring more people to the Christian faith if the building is made a much more attractive place than it is now for young people and older people to go and meet up with each other.

Minneapolis and St. Paul have discovered the Mississippi river. The big meeting recently held in Minneapolis and attended by wholesalers, manufacturers and representatives of cities and towns in the Mississippi valley made great progress in the matter of establishing a barge system to connect the Twin Cities with a dependable water freight service. Chicago has recently expended several million dollars on the Chicago river and drainage canal connection with the Mississippi river. Also the great deep waterway from the Great Lakes to the ocean is being supported by few converts. All these projects come to the front at this time with prospects of success ultimately. The deep water channel from Duluth would be worth $10 per acre to every farmer in Pennington, based on freight reduction. Freight service on the Mississippi river to the Twin Cities would be worth a great deal to all this upper country. It looks as tho it would come. The question naturally arises: Why, with the river there all this time and the boats, if this can now be made a success, has it failed in the past? In the past, the railroads have first butchered and destroyed the water front at all river towns with tracks, spurs and sidings. Then where a river freight line would make a rate, the railroads would cut it till the river men were driven out of business. Now the railroads have more traffic than they can handle. They have a guaranteed and limited income, the guarantee being by the government, and they are prohibited from cutting the water rate, so now after many decades, with the old Mississippi there just yearning to do business for us and at a low rate, Minneapolis and St. Paul have just discovered the river and they are wild to use it as a natural shipping resource. Some of the same Twin City enthusiasts about this river service have been on the "scuttling committee' for the railroads in the past. We owe our opportunity to use our water ways without opposition by the railroads to the new interstate commerce Cummins-Esch bill.

THE BANKS AND THE BLAME.

Watertown Public Opinion: The Farmer and Breeder, a publication devoted to farming interests published at Sioux City, in a lead editorial demands that the "Banks Should Loosen Up." On broad grounds there is justification for complaint on the part of the farmer and there is clear thinking shown in the Farmer and Breeder's conclusions. The farm paper, however, directs its complaint toward all bankers. This, it appears to Public Opinion, is taking in too much territory.

Let us see what the F. & B. says: The editor of Farmer and Breeder asked a number of representative farmers, feeders and other agricultural workers to give their opinion on the present situation in which the farmer and feeder is placed by the slump in the price of corn, and especially of the difficulty in getting credit with which to carry on feeding operations.

While various suggestions are made in a practical way regarding the feeding and marketing of livestock and the most practical method of disposing of our bumper corn crop, practically all unite in urging that what farmers and feeders most need to handle the present great yield of corn is credit from some source on a proper interest basis.

It is not necessary to repeat that the business depression of these days is not due to shortage of raw material, nor to the lack of industry among farmers, nor to a scant demand for foodstuffs. It is almost entirely due to a lack of credit. The banks have shut down on loans and today it is almost impossible to borrow money for the most urgent and important purposes—even when the security is of the best. It is a well known fact that for years the farmer has had to pay the highest rates of interest at the same time furnishing the most substantial security. At present the farmer with corn on his hands and no cattle to feed it to, is not complaining about the terms so much as to the inability to get cash under any circumstances.

Banks have established themselves as one of the functions of modern industry and we maintain that it is up to them to provide credit for those who deserve it. In one sense, it is as unjust and as disastrous for the banks to refuse to do business on reasonable terms as it is for the coal miners to attempt to freeze the nation into complying with their demands.

There is as much money in existence as there was a year ago. At that time anybody could borrow money on any old promise. Today the banks are refusing to lend money—their depositor's money, by the way—even where the need is urgent for the public welfare and where the security offered is gilt edged.

It is well known that the banker never takes a chance. It is always the man of initiative, those daring progressives who take the risk. The banker sits in his little office and figures up interest—absolutely sure that no matter how the market goes, nor how industry turns—he will get his, all right.

This is only natural—for the banker is of necessity conservative. He must play safe, for he handles other people's money as well as his own. He dare not take risks and any bank that does so in any form of speculation or investment sooner or later has to close its doors. All that the workers ask of the moneyed man is to meet them half way on a straight business proposition. The situation today is about 99 per cent cold feet. It is what the high brows call 'psychological." That is, it's all in your mind. There is no sound reason why business should not be good except that a lot of over cautious and possibly not very nervy men have become scared.

As we write, the situation gives promise of substantial improvement, and we prophesy that as the people settle down to the good old job of working hard and saving a little, times will grow steadily better.

This holds the local banker to the same level of responsibility as the big eastern and federal reserve banker. The fact is, the home banker is a helpless agent in the situation. Since the federal reserve board began its policy of enforced deflation last spring, the home banker has had no choice of routes. By a single stroke the federal reserve bank curtailed the working assets of its member banks as much as 20 per cent. The home banker has not the money available. Of necessity, he has taken orders. No banker can loan money to any man or class when he does not have the money to loan. "Tightness" came to the local banks first. They had no alternative.

The big banks of the east have been making loans to foreign interests at high rates and ignoring the demand for loans from the agricultural sections. The federal reserve banks have insisted for months on restriction of credit. The home banker is not a factor; he is an instrumentality, an agency, of greater moneyed interests, in the carrying out of this policy of deflation.

....A Crisis For Farm Credits...

Frank G. Odell in Capper's Farmer: Talk Turkey to your congressman, quick if you would save the federal farm loan system from destruction. Almost one-half billion dollars ($453,483,000) has been borrowed by American farmers from the twelve land banks created by the federal farm loan act in the three years the law has been in actual operation. All this money has been borrowed at low rates of interest, most of it at 5 or 5½ per cent and none of it paying more than 6 per cent, and without paying a single dollar in commissions.

Not less than 10 millions of dollars in commissions, probably much more, was saved to farmers in three years by the land banks. Fully 10 million more has been saved in interest charges indirectly, because of the regulating and stabilizing influence competition by the land banks has had on interest rates on farm mortgages in all parts of the country.

But the savings in commissions and interest, great as they are, are not to be compared to the benefits the farmer has derived from the long-time amortized loan which gives him 20 to 35 years to make his farm pay for itself.

Yet this is not all. Greater, more far reaching and more fundamental than any of the above benefits is the fact that the farm loan act forms a nucleus for the creation of a system of finance adapted to the needs of agriculture and makes the farmer independent of loan sharks of everykind. By providing for the issuing of farm loan bonds under government supervision, this law gives the farmer a form of security that can be marketed easily and quickly in big money centers. This conversion of farm mortgages into farm loan bonds of small and standard denomiantions has revolutionized farm credits and farm finance. The creating of credit guarantees to all future generations that agriculture shall have fair access to its full share of the working capital of the nation at reasonable rates and on convenient terms suited to agriculture.

Notwithstanding this splendid record of achievement, the federal farm loan system is in grave danger of destruction. A highly organized campaign of tremendous proportions is being directed against the system, in the press, thru the mails, in the courts, in congress and even in the administrative boards at Washington.

Some of its enemies are beseeching congress to repeal the farm loan act as a whole. Others seek to kill some particular branch of the system. One group would elliminate the national farm loan associations and thus destroy the co-operative feature of the law. Another group would kill the joint stock land banks, that branch of the system operated and maintained wholly by private initiative.

Is it not about time for the farmer to fight for his own interests? There are few institutions as useful to the farmers as the land banks.

If the farmer does not notify his representatives in congess that the farm loan act has been of great benefit to agricultural interests and that he expects this law to be protected from its enemies, then his congressman may be expected to lend a listening ear to the men who are seeking to destroy it.

You should realize that a congressman when he is in Washington hears directly from most everybody who has a personal interest to serve, except his constituents. That now and then a congressman is to be found who is in doubt as to the value of the farm loan act and as to the practical operations of the farm loan system is not to be wondered at. Consider, if you will, what are the sources of a congressman's information. He can listen to the clique of the lobbyists. He can read the newspapers. He can read the circulars that are sent to him thru the mail. He can take a hunch from a colleague who may have introduced a bill to amend the act. He can hear and read of the court proceedings.

And what does he get out of all this? The fellows who are making a stir, the fellows who are making a noise, the fellows who are making the attack in the courts and thru the newspapers are the fellows who want to repeal or cripple the law and destroy the farm loan system. They are the attacking party. In politics as in war it is the attacking party that makes the noise. In this case the attacking party has been the Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association.

Of course it is self evident that if the farm loan system had not been effective in reducing interest and in cutting down commissions the farm mortgage bankers would have had no concern about the farm loan act. If the law had been a failure they would not now be fighting it.

The farmer must take the time and trouble to talk to or write to his congressman about the farm loan act, or the congressman may be influenced by what the enemies of the act are constantly trying to tell him.

The most recent attack made on the act has been the suit brought in Kansas City, contesting its constitutionality because its bonds were exempt from taxation. The federal court in Kansas City upheld the act and it came up for argument October 14 in the supreme court, which probably will not give a decision in the case until after the first of the year. But as soon as that suit was filed the land banks were injured. Their bonds could not be sold except at heavy discount, and they could not obtain funds to lend to farmers at a reasonable rate of interest. That suit so far has compelled the land bank to cut down operations greatly and has been followed by the farm mortgage brokers raising their rates, charging higher interest than previously and almost doubling their commission on loans made to farmers. So long as the farm loan act remains unimpaired any farmer in the United States can borrow money on land at a rate that can never exceed 6 per cent and without paying a cent for commissions. Millions have already been lent under this law at 5 percent. The loan can be repaid over a period of 35 years on payments less than the interest you formerly paid to the smooth spoken profiteers who are trying to rope and hog-tie you again.

No wonder the Farm Mortgage Bankers Association is laying down a smoke and gas barrage between you and your congressman. They are fighting for the juiciest crop of plums that ever ripened in Uncle Sam's orchard and they will get them if you don't get busy.

The federal farm loan system has been criticised up one side and down the other and crisscross. The mortgage bankers have maintained an expensive publicity organization to attack it in every way possible. But the only criticism that is fundamental and just is that loans are limited to $10,000.

The sum of $10,000 often is too small to permit the dependable renter from getting a farm of his own. That defect will be remedied if congress adopts the pending amendment to raise the limit to $25,000. It should be raised. It was a foregone conclusion that the law, as enacted, would need amending. It was a progressive step and new in this country. We can make it better as we go along if the interests that are fighting it from purely selfish motives do not prevail.

Another criticism is that the land loans benefit chiefly wealthy and well-to-do, established farmers by enabling them to increase their acreage; that the loans are not for young farmers just starting out. Yes and no to that. In the first place renters or other farmers who haven't accumulate a dollar, never saved anything, cannot borrow from the land banks.

Neither can they borrow from any other bank. If a man cannot accumulate at least a little, no system will ever be devised to help him out. He's beyond help if he cannot help himself a little.

I know personally at least fifty young farmers, renters, who borrowed money and got their start as owners from the land bank, thru my office and who gave second mortgages for the balance due because the loan of $10,000 was too small and because we know that they needed their savings as capital to run their farms. The land banks were one long step toward solving the growing tenantry evil in this country. They will do a tremendous lot more in that direction if they are not crippled by selfish interests.

No, these criticisms of the land bank are not fair. They come from selfish sources and they are put out as propaganda to keep the juicy farm loan business solely in the hands of the mortgage bankers. They are overlooking no chance to cripple or to kill the land banks and they'll do one of the other if you do not get busy.

Write a man size letter to your congressman and senators at once. Tell them that you expect them to vote to sustain the farm loan act. Don't stop with that letter. Get your neighbors on the job. Talk it over at the next meeting of the farm bureau, the grange, the union. Send delegations of farmers to Washington to meet this plunderbund before the committees of congress and put the fear of God in them. If you wish any more information write to Capper's Farmer. We are here to help you.

This is the method of treating obstinate hiccough that Dr. D. Francisco Vanegas employs. He describes it in the Revista de Medicinary Cirurgia Practicas (Madrid). The patient lies down and draws up his knees until his thighs are pressed tightly to his abdomen, the lower part of the legs being pressed against the thighs by bending the knees. The position is held for several minutes. The effect of this is to press the abdomin. organs up against the diaphragm and to sustain the pressure until the diaphragm ceases its spasmodic contractions.

BUDGET PLAN IS REPUBLICAN PLAN TO CUT RUNNING EXPENSES

BILLION TO BE CUT FROM DEPARTMENT ESTIMATES BY COMING SESSION.

(St. Paul Dispatch.)

Washington, Nov. 22.—Republican plans for economy consist in passing the budget bill in the coming short session and cutting about $1,000,000,000 out of departmental estimates.

The budget and the appropriation bills are all the legislation of a general sort that will come out of congress before March 4 next.

The cutting of estimates in the way of effecting economies is projected without a radical reorganization of the government, unless the introduction of the budget system performs the wonders that some people expect of it.

Theoretically, at least, cutting estimates is something more than a grandstand play. In a private business, when the directors, faced by a bad year, say to the departmental heads, "you can have only half as much to spend this year as you had last," the department heads reduce the roll of employes to cut their expenditures.

Effect Not Exact.

In the government the effect is not so exact or immediate. The department heads have a way of throwing up their hands at the pettiness of congress and despairing of their ability to get costs down to the level that congress expects. Then they go to congress for deficiency appropriations, and they get them.

Last year the house of representatives cut nearly one and one-half billions out of the estimates which came from the departments, totaling about $5,000,000,000, and were reduced to about $2,100,000,000. But the pressure for economy put upon the department chiefs by the simple process of only giving them about two-thirds of what they asked did not produce a saving of $1,500,000,000.

The department heads and bureau chiefs did not take congress seriously. They spent about as they were accustomed to spend and now are before congress with urgent requests to meet the deficiencies with which this government is threatened. The deficit that impends is described as the largest in the history of the country.

This congress doesn't know how to bring about economies and the department heads, told by congress to cut their expenditures, retort that it cannot be done.

It is reported that estimates for the next fiscal year will total about $5,000,000,000. This includes the interest charge on the debt, which was not included in the $3,600,000,000 mentioned above. When these estimates are presented congress will cut them about $1,000,000,000.

It has a little better method of cutting than it ever has before; for it has a budget committee of 35, made up of the appropriations committee and members of various other committees dealing with department estimates. This committee of 35 may go a little farther in the direction of economy than heretofore. It may definitely cut off certain bureaus and activities of the government, refusing to make appropriations for them.

But it can't do much of this. It doesn't know in detail where the money can and should be saved. For the most part it will do phat is did last year—merely say to the money spenders, "you must get on with so much less this time," an injunction which may or may not be taken seriously.

Probably it won't be, for the men who spend the money for us never take congress seriously in its moments of economy; and the Republican leaders, cutting estimates a billion, don't expect to save that billion —not by several hundred millions. They are familiar with the "you must but we can't" game.

Report of Annual Meeting of Health Association

The annual meeting of the Minnesota Public health association held in St. Paul November 17 was attended by representatives from practically all counties in Minnesota. The meeting began at 12:30 in the St. Paul Athletic Club dining room as an open forum meeting with the St. Paul Association. Dr. A. J. Chesley, acting executive secretary of the Minnesota state board of health, was the principal speaker at the open forum and was afterwards elected a vice president of the Minnesota Public Health Association. His topic was "Experiences in Poland." Since the state sanitary conference called by the state board of health was held in the Lawry building the same day, the health officers were invited to attend the open forum also.

After Dr. Chesley's address and the showing of two films, "A Town Under the Microscope" and "Jinks," the business meeting was held. Dr. C. L. Scofield of Benson, the president, was chairman. W. A. Laidlov, treasurer, gave the treasurer's report.

The activities of certain of the county public health associations were reported in brief by representatives from the following counties: Miss Cora Bigelow, president of the Fillmore county public health association, reported the activities of that organization; Mrs. A. M. Kohr gave a brief sketch of what had been done in Chippewa county; Mrs. Eugene Dieudonne reported on Waseca county's work. Due to the lateness of the hour it was impossible to hear more of the county reports.

Dr. Robinson Bosworth, executive secretary of the Advisory Commission on Tuberculosis, outlined the program of the commission which will be presented to the legislature at the next session.

The election of officers followed the talks and discussions. Dr. C. L. Scofield, who for many years has been a director of the Minnesota Public Health Association and who guided the association in its activities the past year, was re-elected president. Governor-elect J. A. O. Preus was elected to succeed Governor Burnquist as honorary vice president. President L. D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota, was elected to succeed Dr. M. L. Burton as honorary vice president. Mrs. H. A. Patterson of Mankato was elected first vice president to succeed Mrs. C. A. Severance of St. Paul, and Dr. A. J. Chesley, acting executive secretary of the Minnesota State Board of Health, second vice president, to succeed Mrs. J. M. Bishop of Thief River Falls. Mrs. A. H. Vernon of Little Falls, who is secretary of the Morrison County Public Health Association, was elected secretary. W. A. Laidlaw of St. Paul, who for the past three years has served as treasurer, was re-elected.

"it's more like a Smoke!"

There you have Spur's big reason in a nutshell. It's what an American Legion man said after he had puffed a Spur for a moment or two.

He knew cigarettes. Found how comforting a good one is. Had 16 months in France. And he knew what he was talking about when he said:

"More Like a SMOKE"—

That's because you can taste the good tobacco in Spurs. You get the aroma of a new and delicious blend of the finest leaf grown in Turkey, fine Burley and other home-grown tobaccos.

Unmarred by starch because the seam is crimped not pasted.

Longer and sweeter in the smoking—slower in the burning. Fresh and fragrant as you open the pack, because it's triple-wrapped.

Priced to be popular and packaged to be select.

tem must be devised and tested before the old system is cast aside, Wm. G. Eckhardt, director of the grain marketing department of the Illinois agricultural association, told the Minnesota convention at its final session.

"The present grain market," said he, "is a bug of war between men who want low prices and men who want high prices. They may call that an efficient marketing machine, but I do not."

"The 1920 grain crops of the country, were produced at an actual loss of $1,500,000,000 to the farmers.

"If you lok away from the farmer the unearned increment on his land, he would have little left," he said. But you must remember that the man who works in the mill in the city is little better off.

"We had to use the flail until we got the threshing machine, but when we got that great improvement, we didn't dare throw the flail away until the new thing was tested. In a similar way we cannot throw away our present system of marketing until we find a suitable and workable substitute for it.

"The new system should protect farmers from speculators. We should not let the state handle the job for us. It is the farmers' job and it is up to the farm folks of the United States to do it."

Firm decision of the Minnesota farm bureau federation to keep itself from any part in political affairs was demonstrated again at the closing session when a second attempt was made to obtain the delegates' endorsement of Frank Murphy, president of the state fair board, as secretary of agriculture. The convention earlier in the day had decided against such an endorsement on the ground that it smacked of political activity. Mr. Murphy asked withdrawal of the proposal.

Late in the session, W. Millard brought the matter up again. The convention was making a mistake, he said, by not getting into politics to the extent of recommending a man for secretary of agriculture, an important cabinet post.

President L. E. Potter cut in on his appeal.

"If I had known what you were going to talk about, I should not have allowed you two minutes," he said.

That ended any attempt to put the federation pu record on any political matter.

Consideration of the form woman's problems occupied on important place on the program of the closing session, as well as during the first day of the meeting.

Salvation Army Officers to Chicago

Capt. Petrie and Lieut. Campbell of the local Salvation Army returned Saturday from Chicago, where they spent the week. General Bramwell Booth, who has charge of the Salvation Army all over the world, met all the officers of the Central territory and spent a week's council with them. Many and great were the blessings each one received as they listened to their leader give them instruction as how to better the Salvation Army.

A parade was held on Monday afternoon, in which 2,000 officers took part. It was a great surprise to the people of Chicago to see so many Salvationists. Some have never realized how large the Salvation Army was until the day of the parade. The Salvation Army is still alive and on the job at all times.

"A PATTISH CAVALIER"

What is he singing? A mournful little ditty entitled "Nobody loves a fat man," of course.

BY VIOLET MOORE HIGGINS.

To get a romantic thrill from this picture, cover the face with a coin—(countless a half dollar will be large enough)—and at once all is romance, music under the light of western stars, and all that. Remove the quarter or half, and you find that "the Spanish Cavalier who stood in his retreat, and to the guitar played a tune, dear," is none other than our old friend Roscoe Arbuckle, starring in George Melford's new photoplay production of "The Roundup," a Paramount picture.

But as a matter of fact, before the film flickers off the screen everybody loves him, and with reason, too, for he demonstrates that he can act with real force and ability, and can do much more than just be fat and funny. Incidentally, he really can play that guitar. "But take it from me," he said in speaking of the taking of the picture "learning to play this darn new guitar was one of the nerviest stunts I ever tried. I learned, because I'm strong for realism in a picture, so if I had to play it at all I meant to do it, really to touching, so I just naturally set out to learn. I did—too, and practice makes perfect, so that before we finished I got so good at it that I began to think I was a Spanish [illegible]—until I looked in a mirror

Soldiers' Memorial.

Now that politics is out of the way, it is our next duty to again consider our citizenship in the way of giving some expression to our debt of gratitude to those of our citizens who sacrificed their lives in the World War. This is a sacred duty and should not be overlooked and the Tribune believes that active steps should be taken at once to organize for the purpose of eventually erecting a memorial for Pennington county.

The erection of a memorial is a desire which springs from deep feeling, and the ancient memorials are present examples of this venerable custom. Our returning soldiers tell us of the beauty of European cities and particularly of their beautiful and lasting memorials. Our community should not lag in this work and it is the plain duty of the community to get to work at once.

Advertising's Economic Effect.

Advertising has a profound effect on retail distribution and it works for efficiency.

It is complained by merchants that there are too many people in their business. There is a common tendency, when a few men get a good trade built up and are serving the public well, for one or two men to push in and divide up the trade. Sometimes the new men do better work than the old ones. In most cities, retail trade would be conducted with better service to the public if there were fewer stores. A few efficient stores give better service than a lot of small places that do too small a business to do it on close margins.

Advertising is the means by which this tendency is corrected. It eliminates the unfit and makes it impossible for an inefficient store to survive, or get any considerable share of business.

Advertising tends to concentrate business in the advertised stores. As these stores get a larger volume of business, their expenses are relatively less. When they double their trade as the result of publicity, the increase that has to be made against each article for overhead expense, clerk hire, etc., is reduced.

It makes a big difference in the cost of goods whether space occupied, clerks employed, overhead expense incurred are large or small for the businses done. Advertising enables a store to acquire a sufficient volume to keep its plant and working force running on an economical basis.

This does not always mean that the large store sells cheaper than the small one. If the small one stays in business, it is usually because it renders some service exceptionally well. But as it increases sales thru advertising, it is in position to sell cheaper than previously.

OFFICERS FOR LOCAL LEGION POST ELECTED

SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING TUESDAY EVENING WELL ATTENDED—MUCH ACCOMPLISHED

The second semi-annual meeting of Elmer J. Eklund post was held Tuesday evening at the Evelyn Hotel and officers were elected for the year and much other business of an important nature transacted.

The officers elected at the meeting Tuesday evening were as follows:

President, Oscar R. Smith.

First Vice President, George Loken.

Second Vice Presidcut, G. H. Husby.

Treasurer, Edward Brevig.

Secretary, G. Howard Smith.

The local post dues were fixed at $2.50 a year, which is $3.00 more than they have been in the past. It was held this step is necessary if the local post is to remain in existence and as the idea of making money from entertainments is a thing of the past, the post finds it necessary to increase the local dues to keep in existence. The dues for the state are $1.50 and the national $1.00, which makes the total dues $5.00 fro the year. The national dues of $1 also includes a year's subscription to the Legion Weekly.

Present members are asked to renew their memberships as soon as possible as there is much of importance concerning every service man that is to take place soon and it is desirable that every service man be a member of the Legion to help put across the important measures. One of the most important and one that interests every service man is the big fight the Legion anticipates when the next congress meets. The passage of the four-fold bonus bill is of intense interest to every service man and it will take the united action of all to get this bill thru congress. The bill calls for the option of borrowing money from the government for the erection or purchase of a home up to $4,000 and an equal amount for farming and farm machinery or education, or the service man can settle on a cash basis of $50 per month for every month in service. This bill has passed the house and whether is will pass congress or not depends entirely on the support it receives from those most interested. There are many other matters of importance coming up continually of interest to the service man and in order for him to receive proper recognition in all these matters it is necessary that some one interested be on the ground continually looking out for his interests. Such is the mission of the American Legion and by associating himself with this organization the service man is doing nothing more than taking the proper steps to protect himself.

The local post decided to put on a New Year's ball, not for the purpose of making money, but for the enjoyment of the post and their friends. The dance committee in charge of the arrangements is Dan R. Maus, Kenneth Wattam, W. C. Peterson, H. S. Snyder and Henry Proseth.

While the post has given up the idea of attempting to stage another entertainment for some time, it was thought best to have a committee to pass on all shows and other entertainments of a like nature and a committee consisting of John Brumund, W. A. Hall and Raymond Johnson was appointed.

A committee of three consisting of E. H. Lawrence, R. D. Maus and H. O. Chomie was appointed to attend to the basketball for the coming season.

Club Meeting Monday.

The next meeting of the Women's Club will be held Monday afternoon and a very delightful and interesting program has been arranged. A violin solo by Miss Ausilga Sorenson and Mrs. Holmberg will be given and the balance of the program will be the following out of the club's regular schedule. The study of current events will be led by Mrs. H. C. Johnson and lesson three in the Department of Governmental Affairs will be led by Mrs. E. M. Stanton.

High School Debating Team.

The local high school has joined the state debating team and on Tuesday evening a test among the scholarship was made. Ten were tried out and four selected to represent the school. The judges were Rev. R. L. Barackman, Prof. W. A. Ziegler and Theo. Quale. The first debate will be December 17th, when the local school meets Roseau at this place.

SUGAR BEET CROP OF COMMERCIAL CLUB DOES NOT YIELD WELL

Those interested in the sugar beet crop planted this spring by members of the Commercial Club and for which thire were several donations of a fair size contributed to the cause, will be interested to know that they need no longer anticipate a good time on their share of the proceeds from the crop. Figures just out show that there was a trifle over $400 received for the beets raised and a little more than $2100 paid out for labor to make sure that a good crop would be the result.

There are several other small items that enter into the expenditures and at the present time no one is sure whether or not there will be sufficient money to meet the current bills. In fact it now looks as tho there was to be a deficit of something like $200 and possibly more. And then too it is feared the sugar company may have overlooked something and send out a looked something and send out a statement, thus leaving the sugar beet farmers a little more in the hole than previously.

The story should have been the other way and undoubtedly would have been had the proper methods and the proper management been use. The old adage, "What's everybody's business is nobody's business," surely holds true in this case.

THREE KILLED WHEN PASSENGER TRAIN HITS AUTO

FATHER, SON, BROTHER-IN-LAW AND COUSIN KILLED BY G. N. PASSENGER TRAIN

A very serious accident occurred this morning when the Great Northern passenger train due here at 11:15 stuck a Ford car south of Red Lake Falls, killing three men outright and seriously injuring a fourth, who is at the local hospital unconscious.

The fireman of the engine stated he noticed the car coming from the south, calling the attention of the engineer to them, who whistled for the crossing a short ways ahead. Sight was then lost of the car and the engineer to make sure they would not attempt to cross, blew the whistle a second time. Just as the engine reached the crossing the car came around a sharp turn in the road and onto the tracks. The engine caught the car in the center, dashing it to one side, and as near as can be figured out caught it a second time with the rear end of the baggage car.

The train was brought to a stop and the crew and passengers rushed back to the scene of the accident to find two of the men killed, outright, another lying unconscious on the ground and the fourth attempting to crawl from the ground. They were all taken aboard the train and rushed to Red Lake Falls. Just as the train reached Red Lake Falls the third man died.

One of the men had his head completely severed and the others were so covered with blood that it was hard to tell just what injuries were. The one still alive was brought to this city and taken to the hospital for treatment. It is hard to determine just how serious his injuries are at this time. The most serious seems to be about his head. The man in the hospital is Carl Gjerdahl and the three with him were his father, a brother-in-law and a cousin. All four men live in Crookston.

Maybe you have something that is of no use to you that somebody else would be willing to pay good money for. Advertise it in the Tribune; the cost is small.

FALSE REPORT OF DROWNING GIVES THE CITY A DECIDED SHOCK

A report circulated about the city on Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning to the effect that a boy had broken thru the ice on the river and was drowned has luckily proved untrue.

The report started when several boys heard someone in the vicinity of the river shortly after dark yelling and they at once took it for granted that someone had fallen thru the ice. They at once rushed to the Soo station and informed those present of the fact that there was a boy in the river and a large crowd rushed down to the spot which the boys indicated a hole was found in the ice and it was feared the report was true. After much diligent searching among the younger element of the city, it finally developed that all were at home and safe and that the drowning was a false alarm. It is mighty fortunate that the report is untrue and it should be a warning to parents to keep their children off the ice at this time. The river is treacherous and the ice thin and rotten. To go on the ice at this time is tertain to court drowning and boys should be kept a safe distance away from the danger.

TO FORM AUXILIARY

A meeting is to be held on Saturday afternoon in the Commercial Club rooms at 2:30 for the purpose of establishing an auxiliary to the local post of the American Legion. All mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of service men are requested to be present at the meeting in order that a full representation may be present to help decide the steps to be taken. It is the intention to form the auxiliary at the earliest possible moment and in view of the fact that steps have been taken with the state organization whereby it will be easy for the newly formed organization to gain membership in the state association in a comparatively short time, it is highly necessary that action be taken at once. Remember the time and place and be on hand promptly, and bring as many more as possible.

SECOND NUMBER ON LYCEUM COURSE TO APPEAR DECEMBER 1st

The second number on the Lyceum course being given in this city under the auspices of the Women's Club will be given on Wednesday evening, December 1st. This number is the Baker Trio and they are as sure to please the people of Thief River Falls fully as much as did the Redpath Orchestra, the first number of the course.

The Elsie Baker Company, starring Miss Elsie Baker, the celebrated American contralto, will be one of the distinct musical treats brought to this city which could not be obtained in any other way than thru a lyceum course. Miss Baker's work is familiar to everyone, both for her large number of concert records for Victor and for her transcontinental tour under the Redpath bureau. She is conceded to have the sweetest contralto voice in America. With her will appear William Dulcux, well known cellist, together with a pianist of ability. This one number alone is worth the entire price of the course.

Red Cross Drive Successful.

The drive for membership in the local chapter of the Red Cross has been very successful, according to Mrs. Andrew Craik, chairman of the drive. At present there is a total of three hundred and sixty-five enrolled, sixty of whom came from Goodridge. The balance of the county has not been heard from at this time, but it is expected there will be several more to add to the list when the reports are all in. Those who were overlooked in the drive and who desire to become members of the local chapter are asked to notify Mrs. Andrew Craik, 622 Horace avenue. The solicitors are asked to have all money turned in to Mrs. Craik by Saturday of this week.

POULTRY SHOW HAS LARGEST EXHIBIT IN YEARS

EXHIBITS THIS YEAR RUN OVER TWO HUNDRED MORE THAN A YEAR AGO.

The fourth annual poultry show of the Pennington County Poultry Association is now a matte rof history. The show closed Wednesdayevening and is conceded to have been the most successful of any that has been held in this section of the state.

The entries outnumbered those of last year by better than 200. There were 650 entries of high grade poultry, which fact makes this year's show the largest of any in this section of the state and one in which the officers can take much pride.

The local association is fast gaining an enviable place in the poultry world and is recognized by state authorities as being one of the leaders.

The officers of the association are to be congratulated for their untiring efforts to make this one of the most successful of all poultry shows. They have worked hard and faithfully to attain the splendid results and are in a large measure responsible for the large number of exhibits and the splendid showing made.

A complete list of the entries and the winners will be published in next Tuesday's issue of the Tribune.

DRIVE FOR FARM BUREAU MEMBERS TO BE MADE SOON

IT IS EXPECTED THAT DRIVE WILL BE CONDUCTED EARLY IN DECEMBER.

The drive for members in the Pennington County Farm Bureau is soon to take place and it is expected the membership will be doubled at least and possibly three times as many new men enrolled as at present.

The exact date for the drive has not been announced but it is expected it will be held early in December. The association is to inform the local bureau in the course of a few days as to when they will be able to send men and material for the drive and the date will then be set and all arrangements completed for an intensive drive in the county for new members.

It was at first thought to dispense with the services of the state association in making the drive and to use only local men, but it has been found the work would call for considerable hardship for the members of the county to devote sufficient time to secure the new members and it has since been decided to accept the services of the state association and to use local men also. In this way the local organization will be able to put the drive over more quickly and save considerable time for those participating in the drive and gain the results desired in the shortest way possible.

Local drivers will be furnished the men sent out by the state and much time will thus be saved and results obtained that could not otherwise be secured.

It is hoped that every farmer called upon will see the wisdom of becoming association with the local farm bureau. It is one of the really big organizations that has no axe to grind other than serving the farmer and in helping him to help himself. There is not one speck of politics connected with the organization and there never will be. It is instituted solely for the purpose of assisting the farmer, keeping him informed of the best methods to follow in up-to-date farming, helping him dispose of his crops at the right time and in a thousand different ways assisting him to attain those measures he would be unable to do alone. It is strictly a farmers' organization, created by him and composed of farmers and business men. It is cetain to develop into one of the most beneficial bodies possible to imagine with reference to helping the farmer.

The farm bureau is composed of thoughtful and intelligent farmers the country over. At the present time there are three million members and it is expected that there will be that many more at the end of another year and acting as a body, this large number of farmers will be better able to secure the proper marketing methods and likewise a better price for their farm produce.

It should not take the average farmer very long to decide that he should become a member of the farm bureau. If there is any organization under the sun that will do for him just those things necessary for his well being it is the farm bureau. No other organization of like nature can even be compared to the farm bureau. It is ultimately to be the channel thru which the farmer will find an outlet for all his troubles and will aid him in bringing about a stabilized condition conducive to better farming and better living conditions thrucut the universe.

The farm bureau is one of the best organizations that has ever been in existence along this line and in time will also be one of the strongest organizations.

Just remember when approached for membership in the farm bureau that you as not only helping the local bureau to become strong and self supporting but you are also doing the same thing for yourself.

Postpone Merchants' Meeting.

The meeting of the Merchants' Association which was to have been held on December 2nd, has been indefinitely postponed for the reason that it will be impossible for Judge Wilson of the State University to be here on that date. The exact date of the banquet and meeting will be announced as soon as word in received concerning the date on which Judge Wilson will be here.

A FEW LEGAL POINTS FOR THE GUIDANCE OF AUTOMOBILE OWNERS

In a case just decided in Kentucky the court of appeals deals with the question of the liability of the parent for the negligence of his minor son in driving an automobile. In this case the evidence showed that the owner of the car loaned his machine to a 19 year old boy. The latter was driving it with his father and mother as guests, and during the trip he negligently collided with a horse drawn vehicle. For the damage thus done to the rig the owner sued the boy's father. In deciding that the father was not legally responsible the court said:

"The facts do not bring this case within the recently announced automobile 'family doctrine,' which makes the parent liable for injury done by a car on a highway when driven by the minor child of the owner, on the theory that the car is being used by the child with the direction of the parent or with his consent and for the purpose for which the car was intended when purchased, and therefore the child is the agent of the parent in the operation of the car. If the owner had left the car in charge of the father instead of the son and the father had directed the son to use the car on the occasion of the injury, the father would have been liable, even tho the car was driven by the son. The son, according to the evidence, had the custody and control of the car independent of his father, and if he were guilty of negligence, resulting in injury to another, the father was not liable even tho the son could be made to respond in damages."

Where Federal Law Applied.

The federal law governing the right of an employe to damages for injuries received by him in the course of his employment is much more liberal than the laws of many of the states. Frequently the question whether he can recover damages at all depends solely upon whether he can bring his case within the provisions of the federal laws, so circumscribed is the protection afforded by many state laws. This was the issue in the recent Texas case. This pertinent federal law involved in this case authorized the recovery of damages if the employe "was engaged in interstate commerce" at the time of the accident. The employe was a trucker. He was engaged in unloading bundles of paper from a truck at Hugo, Okla. This paper was part of a shipment from Paris, Tex., and the trucker was employed by the railway company to make deliveries from the cars to the consignees. Upon this statement of facts the work of the employe was held by the supreme court to be "interstate commerce," within the meaning of the law.

Negligence Must be Shown.

The supreme court of Nebraska had occasion recently to apply the established principle that one injured in an automobile accident cannot obtain damages without showing some act of negligence on the part of the other party to the accident. In this case a guest riding in his host's car was injured when the machine was struck by a street car which was being backed out of a Y. The evidence showed that the driver of the automobile had ample opportunity to see the movement of the street car in time to avoid the accident. Thus there was no act of negligence on the part of the street car company that could be said to have been the cause of the accident. For this reason the injured guest was denied damages.

As to Intersections.

A side street which debouches into another street is not an "intersecting highway or curve or corner," within the meaning of an ordinance which requires motorists to slow down and give signals of warning when approaching such places. This ruling was made in a recent Missouri case.

Employer Not Liable.

An employer who supplies his salesman with an automobile for use in the performance of his duties is not responsible for the negligent operation of car when the salesman is using it for his own purpose. In a recent California case the salesman of an oil company was supplied with a car. The company paid for all gasoline and other supplies and permitted the salesman to keep the machine in his own garage and to drive it for his personal use after working hours. Thru careless driving he injured a pedestrian when he was using the car at night to keep a social engagement. The court decided that the oil company could not be required to pay damages to the injured pedestrian.—New York Herald.

At the recent meeting of the Red River Valley Livestock Association in Crookston the following dates were fixed for the sales of various kinds of stock: Tuesday, Feb. 8, Shorthorns; Wednesday, Feb. 9, Holsteins; Thursday, Feb. 10, other breeds, including Guernseys, Angus, Herefords, Poland Chian and Chester White hogs; Friday, Feb. 11, Duroc Jerseys.

TO PHOTOGRAPH MARS FROM HUGE DIRIGIBLE

Professor David Todd, America's greatest astronomer, will endeavor to prove that life exists on the planet Mars by ascending as high as possible in a gigantic dirigible and taking photographs. By making a great ascent of, perhaps, many miles, two purposes will have been accomplished; rising out of the small particles of dust on the surface of the earth that are such a hindrance in photography and also by getting that much nearer the planet which will be closer to the earth in 1922 or 1924 than at any time for the next 500 years.

LIVE STOCK IS AT YEAR'S LOWEST POINT

Monday's Opening.

Cattle—A run of 19,000 cattle and calves locally proved in excess of the demand. The market was very slow in opening and generally weak to 25c lower on all classes of killing cattle with the exception of canners and cutters. Veal calves opened steady, best selling at $12.00

Hogs—Receipts, 15,000. Market 50@60c lower; range $10.00@$10.60, bulk $10.50@$10.60; best pigs, $10.00 @$10.25.

South St. Paul, Nov. 24.—A deluge of more than 1,000,000 cattle, hogs and sheep poured into market loppers at the seven principal slaughtering points last week proved too much for the trade to digest and markets in all branches of the trade sagged unevenly under the pressure of such excessive receipts, with prices receding to new low levels of the year. The heavy marketings were responsible for hanging up new one week receipts records of cattle both locally and at Chicago.

The cattle market at times approached a condition of near demoralization with trading highly uneven and in virtually unquotable shape. Most classes dropped anywhere from $1.00 to $2.00 per cwt., with in-between grades of killers and lower grades of stockers and feeders declining most. A few sales of beef steers on the short fed order were recorded from $10 to $12 with a single baby beef animal, going at $16, but the bulk of the common and medium steers are being disposed of at $6 to $8.00. Most of the butcher cows and heifers are selling from $4.60 to $6.50, with canners and cutters at $2.00 to $3.75. Best light veal calves sold at $12 at the week's closing.

Hog values were discounted a dollar last week in line with conditions at other points and prices reached the lowest level since searly in 1917. The bulk at th close sold down near the $11 mark.

Sheep and lambs declined in sympathy with the general trend of live stock prices and showed losses last week of 50c to 75c, with best native lambs closing at $10.00 to $10.25 and fat ewes at $4.50 to $4.75.

STATE FEDERATION OF FARM BUREAUS ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Resolutions supplementing the program of action already adopted were passed by the Minnesota Federation of Farm Bureaus at its session in St. Paul.

Senator L. E. Potter of Springfield was re-elected president of the federation. R. L. Scott of Borup was named as vice president and Victor E. Anderson of Wheaton was re-elected treasurer.

The resolutions cover the following matters:

Suggesting legislation to provide for the accounting of all co-operative enterprises.

Sugesting amendments to the present farm bureau law, making it mandatory upon board of county commissioners to appropriate funds for the work of county agents.

The program containing proposals for both state and national legislation was framed by representatives of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, meeting in convention at St. Paul.

Much of the pogram as mapped out is directed to the farmers themselves. It points the way for them to better their own conditions thru co-operative action.

That agriculture can be made permanent and profitable only when the prodncers of food receive at least the cost of production plus a reasonable profit, and therefore prices should have some relation to such cost of production and the means to accomplish this should be by co-operative action.

Governor-Elect Makes Pledge.

Steps to put the program into action so far as state legislation can aid were taken in two ways. At the convention of the Farm Bureau delegates J. A. O. Preus, governor-elect, made the specific pledge that he would aid in every way at his disposal to put the program into effect.

While the Farm Bureau representatives were meeting in one place a large majority of the members of the house of representatives were meeting in another in caucus. At this caucus, after selecting W. I. Nolan as speaker, the house members appointed a special committee of ten representatives, one from each congressional district, to take up at once the study of the program and prepare the necessary bills for introduction when the legislature convenes. The members of this committee, instructed to confer with the governor-elect are: R. A. Wilkinson, Lake Elmo; chairman; George Wicktor, Kasson; John G. Gerlich, Mankato; T. J. Greene, St. Paul; W. I. Norton, Minneapolis; A. E. Rako, Bemidji; O. C. Newman, Wheaton; W. H. Hitchcock, Hastings; N. T. Moen, Fergus Falls; Elias Nordgren, Sunrise.

Provisions of law making it mandatory upon terminal exchanges to grant membership privileges to farmers' selling organizations on equal terms with all other selling agencies.

Giving powers to the state department of agriculture to make complete reports on market quotations and supplies.

Alterations in the cold storage law.

Improved educational and recreational advantages for those who live on farms, including a two mill state aid tax for rural schools to assist in the transportation of pupils.

A system of rural credits to stimulate agricultural development.

A court of conciliation to hear complaints and settle disputes where the buying and selling of farm products are involved.

Higher Tariff Sought.

Tariffs on agricultural products, repeal of Canadian reciprocity on wheat, a pure fabric law, laws requiring transportation companies to provide adequate warehouse facilities at the seaboard, opening of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence river water route to ocean going vessels, a national cold storage law—these form the program of legislation recommended to the national congress.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation as now organized, represents a cash investment of $82,150, every cent of which has been paid by the farmers of the state to further their business interests. Of this amount, $31,623 is on deposit at banks ready for use in getting the federations' agricultural program under way and expediting departmental operations.

These facts, high lights taken from the treasurer's report, submitted by V. E. Anderson, shows the scope of the organization. Business organizations of farmers in the past have been unable to attain their objects, farm bureau members say, because they lacked funds. In this respect the present movement is well taken care of.

Of the total receipts this year $68,304 has come from the membership drive that has been under way for three months and which will be carried on until well into December. Before the drive ends it is expected that the cash balance will reach $80,000 or more and that the membership roll will total over 50,000.

Civil Service Examinatins.

FOUR GREAT AMERICANS FROLIC FOR A DAY

When we hear of such men as Henry Ford, the automobile wizard; Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard; John Burroughs, the great naturalist, and Harvey S. Firestone, the great rubber king, having a reunion, we naturally think of splendid hotels and a large city as the site of their days-of-frolic together. Not so, however, with them, for the one day that they set aside each year is spent in the country. The spot they all reported at Yama Farms Inn, at Nantucket, where they cast aside all formalities and cares, forgot that they are really great men and romped in frolic like so many boys. They indulged in unspeakable quiets, telling yarns by the fireside and being just plain boys once more.

The Minneapolis banks make a very excellent showing. Last year, at high water mark, they had deposits in 1919, $253,366,913; this year, 1920, same date, deposits, $242,796,783. About 40 per cent less, or $10,568,130. With over sixty per cent of the farm crops still unsold, when they are sold and tuned into cash, we will be right back to normal.

The Times did well in the ecent election. The paper predicted Preus would run third in the county, meaning the county would go for their favorite candidate, Hodgson. The editor voted for Cox, Hodgson and the whole Wilsonian program. The business manager cast his vote for and bet his money on Shipstead, and lost and paid. All this time the paper claimed to be Republican - Terrible times for Timorous Times.

The Times finally came thru with one little stereotyped, fifty-fifty endorsement of a part of the work of the American Farm Bureau. The Times will be compelled in time by pressure of honest public sentiment to get in line for this organization—national, state and county. The Farm Bureau will succeed in spite of the Times' opposition. But then, what can you expect of an "organ."

Our congressmen, our senators, our legislators and state officials are so responsive just now. The American Farm Bureau will tell us later how they have performed.

The papers are filled from front page to editorial page with remedies for the farmer. "Party lines are obliterated." Co-operation is rampant. The Chamber of Commerce invites us to come and sip with them and they with us; senators, congressmen and governors and all are just "humping" themselves to "do something for the farmer." The farmer has been here all the time. Why has not something been done for him before? Our (political) statesmen could not hear the farmers, but they could and have heard the Nonpartisan League and the Nonpartisan League has scared them into it. Much obliged, Nonpartisan League. We do not care who saves us, but we can thank the League for the big noise that called attention to our distress.

HAY REPRESENTS GOVERNOR.

J. H. Hay, deputy commissioner or agriculture, addressed the meeting as representative of Governor J. A. A. Burnquist. Mayor J. E. Meyers extended the greetings of Minneapolis.

Hardly a day passes that we do not see conspicuously, front page headlines and all, mention of our honored townsman, Prof. Hay. On the occasion referred to above, he represented the governor and welcomed the delegates to the Deep Water Ways convention. Prof. Hay is connected with an important work in St. Paul. We fully expect to see the agricultural department, under Governor Preus, made the biggest department in the state. If Preus will recommend big responsibility and big appropriations for this department and then put in a big force, headed by such men as Prof. Hay, and do the things that can be done by such a department, he will render the biggest possible service to the state. We fully expect to see this very thing done and in dead earnest and with conviction as to results.

THE TIMES NOT GETTING BAD.

Notwithstanding all the rumors of closed shops, less employment, reduced wages and the like, readjustment of our national economics is proceeding normally. No organization has its finger on the pulse of affairs—not even the general government—as has the federal reserve board, and the federal reserve board says that deflation is proceeding as it should without and indication of a panic.

We all know that prices were far too high. Even steel, the basic industry next to farming, was twice as high as it ought to be. These prices had to come down and as they fell, with the certainty of lower dividends than during the good old profiteering days when net earnings were no good unless they were at least 30 to 50 per cent, it was only human nature to howl. We are now hearing the dismal howling of the fellows who know that they must soon submit to competition—the life of trade—and to a reasonable profit.

The fact is that business is keeping up. Our exports are still large—they increased the last two months over previous months. Bank clearings are only a small percentage below flush 1919, nothwithstanding that prices—wholesale prices, anyway, have gone away down from 1919, meaning that less money is passed in transactions of equal size. Money rates are receding.

Prices are lowering normally, all are agreed. But they won't go down to pre-war figures for a great many years, if ever. And the man and woman who won't buy shoes and clothes and other necessities until the prices sink to pre-war figures will have to emigrate to where clothes and food and other necessities are not needed. Such a person is only doing his best to bring on a panic and bad times for himself.

The Federal Trade Commission has reported on the milling industry of the United States. It shows that the "northwestern group of mills" are now earning 24.4 per cent on excessive capitalization; that they made 45 per cent net in 1917-1918. Mr. Bell, the big Minneapolis miller, says these figures "will be misunderstood." He is much more afraid they will be fully understood. Now please bear in mind these mills get their raw material, every ounce of it, from the famer. The mills grind the wheat and pass it on to the bread eater at a trust manipulated and controlled price. Suppose a farmer in Pennington county could operate his farm on the same general plan. It would run out about as follows:

invoiced at $200 per acre,.....$32,000
Gross income for 1918.....$21,275

|---|---|
| Salary for father as manager of the farm | $ 2,000 |
| Salary for daughter, bookkeeper | 1,000 |
| Salary for hired man | 1,000 |
| Sundry expense, including ins. | 1,000 |
| Taxes | 125 |
| Depreciation, buildings and machinery | 1,250 |
| Net income (40% on $32,000) | 14,400 |
| | $21,275 |

Two agencies are necessary to produce bread, the farmer to raise the wheat, the mill to grind the wheat. When wheat is flour, they are both thru. Would it not be reasonable to equalize the profit made on the wheat? The American Farm Bureau is headed the right way. They will clean up a lot of these things. The remedy will come slowly but it will come.

We have more than a fair chance to get a beet sugar factory in Thief River Falls. The beet sugar people are all but inviting us to ask them in. The farming business in Pennington county in the years to come will be revolutionized, cultivating root crops, tame grass, cows, silos, fertilization and intensive methods will be established with great profit to the farmer. The Farm Bureau can do more than any the organization to help us get a beet sugar factory. Indeed, we believe if they are unhimpered in the matter, better results will come.

The Minneapolis Journal points out to us that some things, naming sugar as one thing, are as low comparatively as wheat. Public sentiment clamored because the market controllers of sugar were making millions and profiteering on the public thru criminally manipulated high prices. We made so much noise that the profiteers were compelled to let up and we have sugar now, not at a pro-war price, but at a very profitable price to the producer. The profiteers have taken the other plan on wheat. They have decided to make their millions on a low priced and price controlled market and wheat is therefore manipulated downward and to a price ruinous to the farmers. If we could all come at once, to the accepted proposition that prices are fixed on almost everything we would be a unit in supporting the effort to get for the farmer an adequate return for his grain, wool and meat. Again during the war, where was sugar? Shy high. Where was cotton? Shy high. Where was woolen clothing (not wool)? Shy high. Where was wheat? Restricted as to price. Our farmers were denied free access to the world's markets and they were compelled to sell their wheat at a controlled downward price, and think of it, forty cents per bushel less than the western Canada farmer received. When we are fully impressed with the fact that prices are manipulated and controlled to a very large extent by the Big Interests, we will be more willing to get in and work for our own interests by making that wheat prices be regulated upward to a living standard for the farmer.

The Karlstad public schools have decided to employ an additional teacher on account of the increased number of pupils.

FARMERS FEEL NEW CONGRESS VERY FAVORABLE

STATE REPORT SHOWS FARMERS LOOK FOR CONGRESS TO ACCOMPLISH MUCH.

Cold weather, judicious advertising and "exceptional merchandise values" have assisted in increasing retail business in the leading cities of Minnesota during the past few weeks but trade is very light as a whole. Christmas buying has not commenced and the November volume of business is considerably below 1919.

These facts were obtained during the past week by the Merchants' National Bank of St. Paul with the cooperation of banks thruout the state. Bankers in every section sought the opinion of their leading retail merchants and made replies to these questions which were mailed to them by the Merchants National Bank:

How is retail trade in your territory?

Has recent cold weather affected buying?

Has Christmas buying been begun to any extent?

Do merchants believe there will be heavier Christmas buying this year than in 1919?

Several leading St. Paul merchants were interviewed and their viewpoints are reflected in the following announcements:

"Indications here are that retail trade generally is a little better at the present time than it has been for the past few months.

"One firm interviewed stated that the recent cold wave has increased buying but little, but others state that it has caused quite a spurt in buying by the public and still colder weather they believe will have further influence in that respect. One firm stated that Christmas buying had not begun. Others stated that Christmas goods were moving fairly well.

"Firms generally believe that Christmas buying may be somewhat lighter this year than last, but nevertheless they are preparing fo a heavy tade. One St. Paul firm states that the reason for its belief that there will be heavier buying this Christmas is that it has been making an effort for the past month to increase business by means of exceptional merchandise values."

It was noticeable in a number of reports from out in the state that merchants who advertised effectively were getting more business than the mechants who depended upon "regular trade." Conservative reports without comment were received from a number of counties, including Blandyohi, Rice, Grant, Goodhue, Douglas, Pope, Freeborn, Brown, Marshall, Anoka, Becker, Kanabec, Clay, Polk, Wnnona, Murray and Dakota. A number of these bankers pointed out that farmers expect to dispose of crops shortly and then may make Christmas purchases. Others forecast that farmers would probably hold their grain until January or February and that they probably would buy lightly.

Recent cold increased buying in Mahnomen county. In Lincoln county farmers are expecting further price reductions. Credit sales have been heavy in Fillmore county. Light Christmas business is forecast. Business in St. Louis county is referred to as "fair to slow." Christmas buying has started on a small scale. Lower county merchants declared that all but a few customers are confining their purchases to necessities. Bargain sales are fair trade getters in Matin county but business has been light. Cottonwood county merchants have increased their advertising. Christmas buying in Marshall county will depend upon the ability of the farmers to market their grain. In practically every county heard from, farmers are demanding generous credit terms from retail merchants and general store keepers.

Despite the tightness of money, Minnesota farmers, merchants and civic officials are making preparations for the busy 1921. While a few factories in small cities have shut down temporarily and others have reduced their working forces, it has been noticed quite generally that these interruptions are regarded as temporary.

Three Canadian mounted police were killed by two unknown whisky runners at the border last Thursday morning. The murderers deserted their car of whisky and their 30-30 Winchester rifles. The officers attempted to stop the car. Instead of coming to a stop the men drew their rifles and killed the officers.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

The work of graveling the state road thru Marshall county was completed Wednesday. The crew has been working out of Argyle since the middle of summer, is now dismantling the big crane which will be shipped to Iowa to work on a contract there.—Argyle Banner.

We, the undersigned, being legal voters and tax payers, resident in the counties of Marshall, Polk and Pennington, in the State of Minnesota, do hereby petition the above named court to locate and establish a judicial highway, under the provisions of Sections 2511 to 2516 inclusive, of the General Statutes of Minnesota for the year 1913, running partly on the line dividing the Counties of Polk and Pennington, and partly into the County of Marshall, in the State of Minnesota, the said route being wholly without the corporate limits of any city or village, to-wit:

Commencing at the southeast corner of section twenty-five in township one hundred fifty four north of range forty-six west, in Helgeland Township, in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, being the same point as the southwest corner of section thirty, in township one hundred fifty-four north of range forty-five west, in Numedal Township, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota; thence north on the boundary line between the said counties of Polk and Pennington, a distance of about three and one-half miles to the north line of said counties of Polk and Pennington, being the same as the south line of said County of Marshall; thence continuing north on the line dividing the townships of Comstock and Viking, in the said County of Marshall, a distance of about one and one-half miles to the highway known as State Road No. Two in the said County of Marshall.

That the establishment of said highway is a public necessity, and necessary to the agricultural development of the territory tributary to the said route.

Wherefore, your petitioners pray that the above named court will appoint commissioners to lay out the said highway and cause the same to be established according to law.

A Practical Demonstration.

Immigration Commissioner Frederick A. Wells has demonstrated that the high cost of living can be materially reduced by serving substantial and appetizing meals to the immigrants at 17 cents each. The menu for one day was as follows:

Breakfast: Rice with milk, stewed prunes, bread and butter and coffee with two lumps of sugar.

Of course these meals are served on practically a cost basis, but to those who have paid from fifty cents to a dollar for about the same class of meals in the cities, it will occur that there has been to big a spread between cost and delivery on the part of the eating houses.

Ship to St. Louis.

Edmond Porter, secretary, treasurer and manage of the Brooks potato association, leaves Red Lake Falls today with a caload of potatoes which he is taking to St. Louis, Mo., for sale. The St. Louis market is about twice what the Twin city market is and Mr. Porter states that the members of the association will make money by shipping to Missouri. The better prices would not be available to the small shipper who has only a few bushels to sell unless he were to co-operate with other shippers, for it would not pay to ship less than a carload. Th Brooks potato association is a going concern and is a benefit to its members. It is illustrating what co-operation will do.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

This Is A Poor System

A few days ago he went over to pay the debt with a $20 bill, expecting $7.33 in change.

But this neighbor did not have the change. He went to the house and borrowed from the other members of the family, taking some from the baby's bank, before the correct change could be given.

And when the family went to town again they got some small change and returned to each one the sum borrowed to make up the change. It was a lot of trouble for one transaction.

But suppose that man had been using the checking system. He could then have paid his neighbor quickly, with the exact change, and it would have ben se business like transaction.

Every one admires the man who is careful and business like. The checking system deserves its poplarity. It is safest and best.

YOU can't do better. After you've smoked through a pack of Spurs, you won't want to go back to other cigarettes. You'll find your old kind sort of flat and uninteresting, like last year's politics.

For Spur's good tobacco taste can't help but win you for keeps. There's rich, mellow Turkish, flavorful Burley and other home-grown tobaccos blended in a new way that brings out to the full the all-'round goodness of this top-notch cigarette.

And Spurs top all—all ways. They're crimped. That means slow burn, smooth taste—no paste. The smart "brown-and-silver" package is three-fold to keep Spurs fresh and fragrant.

Twenty cents will prove that Spurs are your kind of cigarettes—top-notch quality at rock-bottom price. The sooner you try them the gladder you'll be.

DRIVE FOR FARM BUREAU MEMBERS TO START SOON

DRIVE WILL PROBABLY BE MADE EARLY IN DECEMBER.

The drive for members in the Pennington County Farm Bureau will in all probability start about December 6th, according to J. J. McCann, farm bureau agent. Mr. McCann has been waiting to hear from the state farm bureau federation as to when it would be possible to secure men from the state to make the drive and the latest word he has received is to the effect that it will be around the 6th when men are sent out to conduct the drive in this county.

The state federation furnishes men for this work and the local bureau is to furnish drivers to take the men over the county. In this manner the work will be cut down materially as it will be unnecessary to call on every individual in the county for the purpose of solicitation.

There are approximately 300 members in the county at the present time and it is the belief that there will be another 300 or more added at the end of the drive.

The local bureau will no doubt find it much easier to secure members since becoming a member of the state and national bodies, thus giving their members the advantage of the best authorities on all questions pertaining to farming. The drive in Pennington county will undoubtedly meet with success and the present membership increased to a large extent.

A letter from the state federation received by Mr. McCann concerning the date of the drive gives the following information:

"Mr. M. L. Werner is the captain of the crew which will work your county. This crew will be there probably December 6th. I am asking Mr. Werner to keep in touch with you, letting you know far enough in advance exactly when they will be in there.

"Your big preliminary job is lining up drivers in the townships before the men come in, then when the exact date is set to line up your booster meeting. If this is done thoroly in advance there is no question about the success of the campaign."

LOCAL DIVISION SOO LINE HOLDS NO ACCIDENT RECORD

LOCAL DIVISION HOLDS RECORD OVER ANY OTHER ROAD IN ENTIRE COUNTRY

The Winnipeg division of the Soo Line holds all records for the months of July, August and September in the number of cases for reportable accidents.

The entire line had less accidents than any other line in the United States for the three months reported and this division headed the list for the country in the small number of reportable accidents.

This record is one that reflects great credit on the officials of the Winnipeg division. Supt. W. A. Barnard and H. D. Keene are to be congratulated on the efficiency of the line and for the small number of accidents reported.

The report covers all lines employing ten thousand employes or over, and this division had only four accidents reportable to the interstate commerce commission for the time above stated.

The local division officials as well as the general officers of the Soo feel very much pleased at the small number of accidents on the division and especial care is to be the watchword among all employes on the division to keep the record a permanent one.

It is expected definite plans for linking women's activities with the federation will be worked out. Mrs. J. C. Ketcham of Hastings, Mich., and Mrs. Mary P. McCulloch, associate editor of the official publication of the United Grain Growers of Canada, will address the convention.

ANNUAL REPORT OF FARM BUREAU FULL OF INTEREST

The annual report of the Pennington County Farm Bureau, just completed by J. J McCann, county agent, shows much in the way of progress during the year just closed by the local bureau. Many important matters have been given attention during the past year and the farm bureau has been instrumental in bringing about better conditions generally for the entire county.

Interest Increases.

A representative membership of 325 citizens, three executive officers, eight directors and fifteen committeemen make up the Farm Bureau organization in this county. The officers and directors formulate the program they wish to have carried out during the year and the committeemen give assistance and advice to the farm bureau directors in the activities they have to deal with in their respective communities. The above number does not represent those who make use of the farm bureau as different residents of the county have requested and are receiving assistance in one form or another during the year. The policy of the bureau has been to assist non-members as well as members. The old members who have stood by and supported the farm bureau from the beginning deserve much credit for its success and permanency.

Many Organizations Co-operate.

The farm bureau has assisted and has received assistance from the various organizations of the county by helping to co-ordinate their lines of endeavor so as to secure the best results. Meetings of many of these organizations have been held in the offices of the farm bureau and assistance given by the county agent or by specialists from the state and U. S. departments of agriculture.

Educational Meetings.

County Superintendent of Schools George M. Gunderson planned a series of educational meetings thruout the county at which several school districts were represented. At these the rural school instructors in each section had charge of the program for each meeting, securing the assistance of a doctor to lecture on public health, an attorney to explain the school law, city superintendent of schools who advanced the theory of educational tests for children and the county agent, who introduced the club work as a desirable rural school subject. These meetings were held every other Friday thruout the winter months and a large attendance greeted the speakers in every case.

Much Financial Assistance Given.

Twenty-four thousand three hundred and fifty-two dollars were given and distributed to the residents of the flooded district in the eastern part of Pennington county. This was taken from the state funds set aside for emergency purposes. The local farm bureau sent application blanks to all who applied for them. This relief fund was for emergency only, to distribute among those who were in need of clothing and food for their family and live stock to the end they might be able to get thru the winter and start anew in the spring. Three months of the county agent's time, as well as that of the office help, was taken up in this work.

Assist Public Health Association.

The County Public Health Association, of which the farm bureau manager is secretary, accomplished much good along public health lines this year. Three baby and dental clinics were held in the county, conducted by specialists from the state department. Many defects were found in the school children, who were advised to consult their family physician so that the defect could be remedied.

Community Clubs Assisted.

There are at present seven farmers' and community clubs actively operating in the county. All of them have received assistance from the farm bureau in getting speakers or materials for their programs. The county agent attended 40 such meetings with an attendance of 5,000 people.

Banks Help in County Work.

The bankers of the county have done their utmost to assist and promote all progressive and agricultural work taken up by the farm bureau department, both in spirit and financial backing. Due to their efforts a carload of phosphate was purchased and financed until sold to the farmers. The Citizens State Bank has twice given $50 each to promote the boys' and girls' club work, the First National Bank has given $50 premium in the Dairy calf contest, the Thief River Falls and Peoples State Bank has donated a $50 silver loving cup for the fourth annual poultry show and the Farmers and Merchants State Bank has also given a $50 silver loving cup for the poultry show. Next year the Pennington County Bankers' Association has agreed to finance a Guernsey cattle exhibit at the state fair in 1921, which will do much to advertise the dairy interests of this section of the state.

Program for 1921.

The further development of the farm bureau will be carried on with the following program for the year of 1921:

Extension of members to all parts of the county. Selection of community committeemen to assist in project work.

Soil improvement—Peat land reclamation. Phosphate demonstrations on mineral and vegetable soils.

Miscellaneous — Co-operation with other organizations; farmers' clubs; community clubs; commercial clubs; live stock breeders' associations; creameries; fair association; live stock shipping association; poultry association; potato association; bankers' association; county public health association; national farm loan association.

Certified Seed in Demand.

Twelve potato growers have applied for having their potato plots registered under the state certified seed law, which means that they are inspected twice during the growing season and once in the bin. To pass as certified seed they must not show variety mixtures, be clean, free from disease and true to type. Of the 58 acres applied for certification only eight were passed on, as the others contained a large percentage of blackleg. Many farmers are to sow certified seed next year and are more sure of success as they better understand the requirements.

SHERIFF GOES TO DULUTH TO BRING BACK MAN ON WIFE DESERTION CHARGE

Sheriff J. W. LaBree left for Duluth last night to bring back Wm. W. Gregoire, a former resident of this city and who was employed as a barber here for some time. Gregoire is wanted on a charge of wife desertion. For some time past he has been engaged in the precarious occupation of bootlegging, according to the authorities, and finally was picked up at Crookston and let off with a fine of five hundred dollars, which about cleaned up his bank roll. He then left Crookston for Virginia and other parts and it was just recently that the authorities learned he was in Duluth. He deserted a wife and three small children and has been gone since September 15th.

The wife and three children were left at Crookston shortly after the fine was imposed by Judge Watt and nothing has been heard of him since that time. The wife and children were brought to this city and have been on the county for some time past waiting for the husband and father to show up and take care of them. After waiting for some time for the husband to come back and take care of his family, the wife and mother decided something should be done and swore out a warrant for his arrest in municipal court and the sheriff left the same day for Duluth to round up Gregoire. He will be brought back to this city and tried on a charge of wife desertion.

Commercial Club Luncheon.

The regular Commercial Club luncheo will be served again this week and next, the last two times before the holidays, and the excellent menus should prove sufficiently tempting to draw good crowds each week. Thursday seems to be about the best day in the week for these noonday meals down town and business men, whether members of the club or not, are cordially welcome. The meals are served sharp at 12 o'clock, followed by a short business session with adjournemt at 1 o'clock.

Poultry Winners in This Issue.

Take Down Fence at Fair Grounds.

The west and north sides of the high board fence around the fair grounds have been removed by the grounds and buildings committee. It has long been thought best to remove this fence, as it causes snow to pile up along the Jefferson Highway, making the road almost impassable at times. A high woven wire fence will take the place of the board fencing.

Mr. and Mrs. Way Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Way delightfully entertained thirty of their friends at their home, 710 Duluth avenue north, Saturday evening. The evening was spent in playing cards and visiting, following which a delightful luncheon was served. All present enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

Full plates, 50c; half full plates, 25c.

SATURDAY WAS VERY BUSY DAY IN MUNICIPAL COURT

JUDGE N. W. TARANT BUSY HEARING CASES OF DIFFERENT NATURES.

Saturday was a busy day in the municipal court and Judge N .W. Tarant was kept busy most of the morning hearing cases of one sort or another.

The first case was that of Fred Westphal of Wylie, who was haled into court on the complaint of the county superintendent of schools, Geo. M. Gunderson, who claimed that Mr. Westphal failed to keep his two children between the ages of eight and sixteen years in school. Mr. Westphal claimed the children were ill most of the time and that he sent them when he could. He also called attention to the crowded condition of the school and other matters that will be taken up with the board in that district. His case was continued until the 27th of December.

Mike Herron, also of Wylie, was brought in on a similar charge and when questioned claimed he was sending his children with the exception of one who was sick most of the time. His case was also set over until the 27th of December and if at the end of that time the two families keep their children in school the cases will likely be dismissed.

Jack Schipper, of Wylie, was brought into court on the charge of issuing worthless checks. He issued a check to H. M. Hicks for $35.40 and one to the Hermanson Hardware Co. of this city for $5. Neither of the checks proved to be good and the two men entered complaint in court and Mr. Schipper was brought to justice.

He asked for a little time in the matter, claiming he had the money and would straighten the matter up in a day or so. He was given until today, the 30th, to make the checks good, which he says he can do with little difficulty.

Mail Parcels Early.

Postmaster Morgan sails attention to the fact that its is wise to mail all Christmas parcels early this year to avoid congestion at the holidays. In late years people have waited until the last minute to mail parcels, thus overtaxing the mail service and making delivery uncertain. For the benefit of postal employes and those to whom the parcels are mailed, it is well to see that all parcels are in the postoffice early, and especially those which are to go a long distance.

Trinity Lutheran Church.

Rev. T. E. Sweger, Pastor.

Sunday school 9:30 a. m. English service 11 a. m.; Norwegian services 7:45 p. m. Prayer meeting at the home of Gilbert Sandum Wednesday evening, Dec. 1. Ladies' Aid Thursday, Dec. 9. Confirmation class Saturday at 10 a. m. Choir rehearsal, Thursday 7:30.

FOURTH MAN IN AUTO ACCIDENT DIES AT HOSPITAL

The fourth victim of the automobile accident last Friday noon when the Great Northern passenger train crashed into a Ford car south of Red Lake Falls, is dead.

Carl E. Gjesdahl, who was the only one to escape instant death, was rushed to the hospital at this place and died Monday morning. Everything possible was done to save his life, but his injuries, which were in the head, proved of such a serious nature that nothing could be done and he died about 3 o'clock without ever regaining consciousness. A fracture at the base of the skull is given as the cause of death.

The other three men in the car who were killed instantly were A. Gjesdahl of Crookston, 68 year old, and father of Carl Gjesdahl; W. Riel of Oklee, 35 years of age, and Peter Bolstad of Cooperstown, N. D., 45 years old. Carl Gjesdahl, who died in the hospital at this place, was 22 years of age.

All of the men will be buried at Crookston with the exception of Mr. Riel, who was buried at Oklee.

Strange Bolting.

One of the exceedingly amusing incidents of the closing days of the recent campaign was the announcement a few days before election that Professor Harry A. Garfield had "bolted" to Cox. Garfield was a supporter of the democratic candidate for president in 1912 and 1916 and was fuel administator by appointment of President Wilson. Never since he attained national reputation has Garfield been a supporter of the republican ticket. "Bolting" to Cox was an impossibility in his case.

PARTY LINES TO BE FORGOTTEN IN FIGHT FOR AGRICULTURE

FIRST STRENGTH TEST WILL BE MADE ON KENYON-KENDRICK PACKER BILL

Washington.—Party lines are to be obliterated and forgotten by midwestern and western members of the house and senate this winter in an effort to remedy the situation which has stirred resentment among farmers and livestock raisers.

Informal conferences held among Republican and Democratic senators from western states have resulted in a decision to hold a formal conference of all senators from Western states soon after the December session begins, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska states.

At this conference, a working program is to be mapped out if possible for concerted action by senators from farm and livestock states, regardless of party, in the interests of the producers.

The first test of their strength is to be made on the Kenyon-Kendricks bill which will come before the senate as soon as it meets.

Senator Hitchcock said he and other Democratic senators will support the bill energetically and will seek to amend it to reach some of the evils the wheat and corn farmers are complaining of.

Senators hostile to any regulation of the packers are preparing to talk the bill to death, but Senator Hitchcock predicted they would have difficulty sidetracking the measure because of the strong support it will command.

"The farmers of the corn and wheat sections have been aroused to great resentment ," said Senator Hitchcock, "because of conditions which have lowered prices to an extent which makes their future ruinous. Corn is selling at less than the cost of production and some corn farmers are threatening to burn it rather than buy coal. The famers feel there is something wrong in the marketing system or control of the markets and they demand that some corrective measures be taken.

"We westerners are going to try to get together regardless of party on measues in behalf of our constituency."

Certainly "we westerners" have our ears to the ground. We know the American Farm Bureau is going to demand things and we know our heads will come off if we do not "do business." Party ties are to be forgotten in the fight to aid agriculture." We might be led to believe that agriculture had never before asked for anything. Our congressmen and senators have been "swallowed up" by the eastern and manufacturing Big Interests. Year in and year out agriculture has wailed for help with no one in Washington to hear. The American Farm Bureau is not yet fully organized, but it is on the way, and when it is organized both Democratic and Republican senators and congressmen are going to be responsive and affable and courteous to the Farm Bureau representatives. This is all fine. We will be much obliged, but we will not owe congress much. We have waited till the last; they have legislated for everyone else. We owe the American Farm Bureau much for finding a way to wake up congress.

ITALIAN DIPLOMAT EXPRESSES VIEW ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

London—The fate of the league of nations depends upon the moral cooperation of those peoples who, inspired by a true sense of justice, are conscious of the necessity for solidarity in international relations, Count Sforza, Italian minister of foreign relations has written in a circular letter to Italian diplomatic agents abroad.

In his instructions to Italian diplomatic agents, Count Sforza expressed the state which contributed to its forthe realization of its imperfections by the states which contributed it its formation and of the necessity for the admission of states not yet members in order that the league's authority can be secured and its structure perfected.

As a result of bitter criticism and loud praise of the league there has been considerable scepticism of the new institution, wrote Count Sforza, therefore making the diffusion of exact knowledge of what the league of nations really is the more valuable for restraining diffident and sceptical censors as well as superficial and irresponsible eulogists. He continued:

"It is necessary to instill the firm conviction that the new institution, which has been invoked for centuries by the Italian philosophical and legal doctrine, represents a higher degree of the evolution of law based on a higher unity than that of the state. The creation of the league of nations aims at securing the integrity of its members and maintaining international peace. It does not therefore exclude the hypothesis of war; it excludes it as the supreme right of the strongest, as the supreme appeal to violence, as an event abandoned to the caprices and vicissitudes of fourtune; it admits it, on the contrary, as an affirmation of the morsl power of right for re-intergrating the community of states broken by the disturbances of international peace and thus its function comes to correspond to the penal function of each state within its own borders."

Italian diplomatic agents abroad are informed that it is the duty of Italy to promote knowledge of the league. They are requested to report all manifestations regarding the league to the special department for the league of nations in the Italian foreign office.

DISCOVER LEAK

The internal revenue is at work on plans to curtail sharply the sale of "medicines" and other preparations containing more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol.

Under the proposed regulations, patent medicines should be sold at drug stores only; perfumes, toilet water and the like at drug stores and department stores featuring drug departments; flavoring extracts to be handled only by groceries. In every case the sale would be controlled by drastic regulations.

Little by little the devious ways of evading the prohibition laws are being discovered and stopped. Before long it will be found by the majority of people that securing alcoholic beverages is more trouble than it is worth. In the meantime a vast number of persons are finding life appreciably brighter without any "morning after," while the jails and other reformatory institutions bear witness as to the true worth of the anti-liquor movement.

WHO IS GROWING RICH?

Council Bluffs Nonpariel: There is just one phase of our national life to which we wish to call attention. There is discontent in the minds of a great many people who have not accumulated as much wealth as they think should have been their apportionment. These people center their minds upon this proposition until they become obsessed. They forget America. They forget that they have had equal opportunities with thousands of others who have passed them in this business of accumulating property. And this brings us to the question: Who is growing rich in America?

Talk to a farmer. He can show any man right now that he is not making money. Interview a workman who may be earning from $6 to $10 a day. He points to the high cost of living and tells you that he is just barely making a living. Go to the retailer and he can open his books and show you he is not growing rich on his profits. The only retailers who are making money are fellows who are working themselves 16 hours per day physically and using their heads besides.

A great many people note what appears to them the big incomes of the railway workers, notably conductors and engineers, and insist that those fellows ought to be rich. Then we take a slant at the wages of carpenters, masons, plumbers and others and we reach the same conclusion.

Now, who is it that is growing rich. These workers note the prices they pay for almost everything that enters into their living and conclude that the people who are getting rich are the fellows who are selling them coal, clothing, sugar, etc.

Now, who is it that is growing rich? Every class of workers or business men in America can present an alibi if charged with this crime, so-called. But there is a class of our people who are growing richer as the days go by. These are the savers. It is not the volume of wages or profits that men receive that counts, it is the amount of their savings.

We have rich farmers in this country. How did they grow rich? They worked hard, lived economically, saved every nickle possible, bought a piece of land, later on bought more with their savings, and now the land has increased in value and they are rich. Why? Because of the savings which bought the land.

We have people in Council Bluffs who have accumulated wealth as railway workers. How did they do it? It wasn't their salary that counted, it was their savings. We have men in the retail business in the city who have laid up something for a rainy day. It was not due to big profits but to savings. Probably the richest man in Council Bluffs is a bricklayer. Some of the fellows this man started out with are still laying bricks. This fellow saved some of his early earnings and made investments.

Who is it that is growing rich? It is the savers.

It is quite possible to work hard and still take life easy. It is all the way you look at your job.

OLD GLORY ON THE SEA TO STAY

Sioux Falls Press: Slow but steady progress is being made in the establishment of an American merchant marine. A slight reaction in world shipping, resultant of ocean freight rates and a new schedule of ship values has caused some delay, but in many ways American ships are getting into world trade in a manner that indicates permanence.

One significant incident of recent weeks was the completion of the first 'round the world" cruise of an American steamer on a regular schedule. This accomplishment was attained by the steamer "West Kasson," owned by the Pacific Mail Steamship company, which by the way is the oldest steamship company operating under the American flag. The "West Kasson" left San Francisco March 12, heading westward. It stopped to discharge and receive freight at Honolulu, Yokahama, Kobe, Tientsin, Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Singapore, Calcutta, Port Said, Marseilles, Barcelona, Bilboa, Boston, New York, Baltimore, Norfolk, Christobal, Los Angeles and completed the trip by arriving at San Francisco October 4, not quite seven months after leaving. The distance was a little over 29,000 miles. One interesting comment concerning this history making trip was that by an officer of the company who said that "American vessels were seen in all ports in sharp contrast with conditions prior to the war, and as many as twenty American vessels were seen in some ports of the Orient. In all the ports the general attitude toward American shipping was favorable."

Regular ocean steamship service is one of the great needs of American commerce, for dependability is essential to the building of regular international trade. It has been the effort of the shipping board to assign its ships to concerns that will establish a regular schedule between ports where there is no such service at present and where there is a good chance of creating new markets for American goods. Naturally if the only regular service between some South American country, for instance, and the outside world is with Europe, the bulk of the business will go to Europe, even though an irregular service may be maintained with America. Although the new "round the world" steamship service will touch at comparatively few ports, yet the certainty of the service will induce many ships to at other ports to send and receive their goods over short branch routes connecting with one of the ports at which the "round the world" lines touches. The Pacific Mail has out 7 steamers on the route and since the trip takes about seven months, it is obvious that there will be one a month service.

Another interesting and significant development in connection with the merchant marine is that out of 160,000 officers and men placed on American ships thru the offices of the shipping board, 88 per cent were not Americans. It is asserted that not since the early days of the republic, when American shipping occupied a leading position in world commerce, has the proportions of Americans on American ships been as large as at present. Since the civil war, in particular, there has been a decline in the American merchant marine, and there has been little to attract Americans to a sea-faring life. With the renewal of ocean shipping as an American enterprise, and especially with the better conditions on shipboard, the merchant marine presents a greater attraction and it is evident that the United States will regain most of, if not all, her former prestige as a carrier of ocean commerce.

WHY NOT CHRISTMAS?

Already the people are talking of Christmas and its joys. In a few weeks we will again celebrate the birthday anniversary of the Redeemer, who liveth.

A long, long time ago there crept into the English language an abbreviation for the word Christmas, that many feel ought to be eliminated. It is the abortive "Xmas."

Why not write it out plainly, "Christmas?" It is only a few more letters. "Xmas" isn't satisfying. It doesn't seem to show the proper respect for an occasion so great.

It is easy to see how the use of the shorter word came about. "X" happens to be the first letter of the Greek word for Christ. The fact that the letter X is cross-shaped also lent color to its use in the abbreviated "Xmas." And history tells us that in the catacombs X frequently stands for Christ. But things that are old are not necessarily good.

Is the world in such a hurry that it cannot stop to write out the full name? What would the world say if in some reference to the Savfour he was called "J. Christ?" Sacrilegious, and correctly so. The cafes seem almost parallel.

DEATH, DOGS AND DEMOCRACY

According to news reports from North Carolina there has been an avid development of the sheep industry following an effective campaign for the elimination of the predatory dog. This news is encouraging, coming as it does coincident with reports from other sections that the sheep industry is depressed by imports from Australia, Argentine and New Zealand. These items of news serve to recall the old saying that there are three handicaps to the American sheep industry—death, dogs and democracy.

Adoption of the most approved methods of handling will remove most of the losses by death. Extinction of the homeless hound will remove a menace that causes many men to hesitate to put small bands of sheep in their fields. But neither better handling nor killing of dogs will suffice. If the bars are let down for the free importation of sheep, wool and from meat from any nation having a surplus, the American farmer is not safe in investing in herds of sheep. The restoration of a republican protective tariff is essential to the permanency of sheep growing as an incident of general farming or sheep grazing as a special undertaking on the plains of the west.

Tradition has it that the ground where New York City stands was bought for a bottle of whiskey. "Unless all signs fail," said President Butler of Columbia university, "it will not be long before it can be bought back at the same price."

A farmer of Peconic, Long Island, who brutally horsewhipped a boy taken from an institution to work on his farm, has been sentenced to prison for two and a half years and to pay a fine of $1,000. The punishment is not too severe. Cruelty to children—even to children who have irritating qualities—is cowardly, mean, and contemptible. There is another side to incidents of this kind, a side the law does not take into account but which farmers should consider; it concerns boys who might go on farms but who, hearing of such cases as this, will not. The job of the farm laborer is not so popular under any circumstances as to make discouragement of prospective agricultural workers wise.

The Minneapolis banks make a very excellent showing. Last year as high water mark they had deposits in 1919, $253,866,913; this year, 1920, same date, deposits, $242,706,783. About 4 per cent less, or $10,568,130. With over sixty per cent of the farm crops still unsold,when they are sold and turned into cash, we will be right back to normal.

The drive to sell Christmas Seals in Minnesota will be conducted December 1st to 8th inclusive. The chairman for Thief River Falls is Mrs. J. J. Richter. The seals are sold for the benefit of the Public Health Association and the money is all expended for public health promotion. The Red Cross have had the seal sales in the past, but the funds always went to public health. Now the activity is conducted by the Public Health Association with Red Cross support and co-operation. Mrs. Richter states the business part of the city will first be canvassed for the sale of seals. The residence section will follow later. Ward captains and solicitors will be named tomorrow.

7,000 Illinois Wool Growers Pool 1920 Clip

A cooperative wool pool last year by 3500 sheep men of Illinois, supervised by the Illinois Agricultural Association, saved them about $50,000. This year twice as many wool-growers from 37 counties are following the same plan, which consists of shipping, grading and storing the wool until the most favorable market is presented. The middle man is eliminated, the growers selling direct to the mills. The local pools are called by the Farm Bureau advisors in each county. Thirteen middle-

WANT A ROAD TO RED LAKE RESERVATION

In August last a meeting was held in this city, the object of which was to start a movement for the securing of laying out and construction of a highway from the Red River valley to Red Lake. About 25 miles of the distance will pass thru the Red Lake Indian reservation. At that time an organization known as the Red Lake Highway Association was formed with Daniel Shaw of Thief River Falls as president. A committee was also appointed, of which B. B. Brett of Stephen was chairman, for the purpose of securing federal aid for the project. This committee and a goodly nmber of the members of the Warren Commercial Club and other citizens interested in the project met at the club rooms on Tuesday forenoon, B. B. Brett presiding, for the purpose of meeting Congressman Halvor Steenerson, who had kindly come to the meeting and who is himself interested in having the proposed highway established. Mr. Steenerson has corresponded with the department of the interior relative to building a road thru the reservation and was referred to a general law that covers the matter, which he read for the information of those present. Right-of-way for public road thru an Indian reservation may be obtained from the secretary of the interior upon application from a county, state or corporate body. Mr. Steenerson did not think it feasible to obtain funds for the construction of the road from any Indian appropriation and he did not think the poor Indians should be asked to pay for the road.

Mr. Daniel Shaw, of Thief River Falls, being called upon, said there were a large number of Indians upon the reservation north of the lake and they were trying to farm under difficulties as they have no direct outlet for their products except by crossing the lake to the south side or going the long way around. The road therefore would greatly benefit these Indians and he thought they or the government whose wards they are ought to help build the road. He did not think the three counties of Marshall, Pennington and Beltrami, with their own big road problems, would be willing to build the road thru the reservation.

W. J. Brown, of Thief River Falls, was also of the opinion that the counties should not be asked to build the road. But he said he was informed that the state of Minnesota had several millions of unusued federal aid money which it had not been able to use because the state or counties had not put up their half, the only basis on which the money can be expended. By the passage of the Babcock good roads amendment, the state will be in position to furnish its share and the federal road money will be available. Congressman Steenerson also affirmed this as being correct.

R. C. Mathwig being called upon said he hoped some practical plan would be evolved for building the small gap of only 25 miles thru the reservation. Red Lake, he said, is the largest fresh water body lying wholly within the boundaries of the United States and he thought it a pity that the people of the Red River valley should not have access to it for their pleasure and recreation. He had lived in the valley more than 25 years and had never seen the lake owing to its inaccessibility.

After the question had been discussed in all its phases, it finally resolved itself into whether the Interior department, acting for the Indians, or the state with its abundance of federal aid money should undertake to lay out and build the road thru the reservation. The whole matter, including the legal features, was finally left in the hands of a committee of lawyers consisting of B. B. Brett, Julius J. Olson and W. J. Brown, to study out. The concensus of opinion seemed to be, however, that the road should be laid out and maintained as a state road and constructed with the aid of the federal road money soon to be available.—Warren Sheaf.

Mr. Suitor (calling unexpectedly)—How dreadfully pale you are today, Miss Sweetie! Whatever have you done with your beautiful color?"

The South Dakota collections for the three years were $48,563, $1,171,328 and $4,139,239.

Red River Valley Stock Sale.

Sales of pure bred live stock are picking up again. At Livingston, Mont., there were sold recently 27 head of pure bred Shorthorn cattle at an average of $448.14 per head. Recent sales of other breeds have been equally successful in spite of the tightness of the money market and the present values of farm products.

Inquiries received by the officers of the Red River Valley Live Stock Association indicate that the winter live stock show and sales to be held in the association pavilion at Crookston from February 7 to 11, 1921, are attracting even more attention and will be more largely attended that ever before. With the new building recently completed there are 55,000 square feet of space available for live stock and industrial exhibits, making this Red River valley affair one of the big events of the year.

Farmers from every county in the valley look forward with much interest to this event. Without question all the counties will be represented by living exhibits in all classes. About $5000 is hung up in premium money thru the co-operation of valley, state and national associations. The premium list will be issued in the near future.

JEWS EMIGRATING TO PALESTINE

THE NEW REGULATIONS ALLOW CONTROLLED IMMIGRATION OF 17,000 ZIONISTS.

Vienna.—Emigration of Jews to Palestine is increasing rapidly in central and eastern Europe and the new Palestine immigration regulations would allow of a controlled immigration of about 17,000 Zionists of the poorer class during the coming year, said S. Landmann, secretary of the Zionist organization, in an interview.

Mr. Landmann, who is now in Vienna on a special mission in connection with Jewish emigrants to Palestine, said the selection of the emigrants is being made by the Zionist organization which has established offices in the important Jewish centers. Preference is given to young people, strong in body and determined in spirit, who have had actual experience in agricultural or other manual work and who know Hebrew.

Several thousands of such pioneers —known by the Hebrew name of Chaltain—have already left and others are waiting in the large centers until proper arrangements for their transport can be made and until new openings for employment in Palestine are reported.

One of the features of the pioneer movement in that it includes a fair proportion of girls of well to do families who have decided to devote their lives to the new Palestine. They act as land-girls and take care of the domestic arrangements in the Jewish colonies.

Legion Loses on Entertainments.

The local post of the American Legion is having a hard time to make any of their entertainments pay out. They lost money on the last dance and also on the Bel Canto Quintette, and as a result have almost decided to discontinue anything in the entertainment line. The public should patronize these Legion entertainments a bit more liberally and help the boys keep Elmer J. Eklund post on the right side of the ledger so far as finances are concerned. The report of receipts and expenditures on the Bel Canto Quintette entertainment below shows how they came out:

Upon her return home from the park, little Alice greeted her mother enthusiastically confiding the emotions she had expeienced as she swung around the curves of the roller coaster.

"Weren't you frightened, dear?" questioned her mother.

"No, I wasn't frightened," Alice replied, "but when I went around those awful turns so fast I felt just as if I had freckles on my stomach."

OBITUARIES

Hanson.

Edwin Hanson, of Rocksbury township, died last Saturday at the age of 31 years. Death was due to cancer of the throat. Mr. Hanson was a single man and was employed on a farm. The body was shipped to Winger, Minn., yesterday morning.

Althoff.

Theresa Elisabeth Althoff of Rocksbury township died November 24th at the age of 17 years. The funeral was held Saturday and interment made in the Catholic cemetery.

Opstad.

Thor Opstad, a patient at the Oakland Sanitorium, died Friday of tuberculosis at the age of 28. There are no relatives or friends of the young man and the body will be buried at the expense of Kittson county in the local cemetery.

To Build Up Legion Membership.

Strength developed by the Legion in the next 60 days will be a large factor in securing the passage of the American Legion four-fold bonus bill which provides for the loan of $4,000 for purchase of home or farm and farm machinery at 3½ per cent interest, liquidated entirely in 20 years, or $30 cash settlement for each month of service. The house has passed the bill and it is the American Legion bill the membership of the Legion will determine its popularity among the men. Only paid up membership counts, not button members, and those behind in their dues or those who take advantage of all the good things the Legion puts across, but to actual bona fide paid up members.

The service rendered the ex-soldiers by the American Legion has not and will never be limited to its paid up members, for the reason that there may be some service men who cannot afford to join and may need the service of the Legion in fighting for their claims but there have been too many ex-service men who refrain from joining the Legion but who accept all its benefits and these men should fall in line.

Notices will soon be mailed to all members of Elmer J. Eklund Post No. 117 of the American Legion and a prompt response is expected. Every ex-service man is requested to write to his U. S. senators urging support of the bonus bill.

Sugar Beet Growing Arouses Interest

During the last two years the farm bureau has conducted experiments with the growing of sugar beets in the county. Small plots were planted, the yields checked for purity and sugar content by sending to the sugar beet company. The success of these plots seemed to warrant the growing of a large acreage, so in the spring the Minnesota Beet Sugar Company consented to allot the county 100 acres to be planted with seed furnished by them at 25 cents per pound. Returns from nearly all of the fields show that sugar beets could be raised for profit. The yields ranged all the way fom six to twenty-two tons per acre, with an average of around ten tons. This is much lower that it would have been if experienced help had been used in caring for the beets, but as it was the first year the beets were not properly thinned and cultivated in many cases.

More Pure Bred Livestock.

The farm bureau has assisted four Holstein breeders of the county in purchasing twenty-two head of pure breds from Detroit. Animals of good breeding were secured at a very reasonable price. These breeders were then assisted in selling the grade stock in order to make room for the pure breds. Many high class Holsteins are now in the county and these breeders are fast coming to the front in dairy production.

The Guernsey breeders of this section showed much activity and fine cooperation in every move that was for the advancement of their breed of live stock and for the promotion of dairy interests in general.

Animal Diseases Checked.

During the spring of 1920 a live stock breeder of Smiley township reported that he had lost a valuable Holstein from an unknown cause. A sample of the blood was sent to Dr. Boyd of the University of Minnesota who pronounced it blackleg. The farmer was shown how to vaccinate with vaccine pills all animals under two years of age and as a result lost no more cattle from that disease. In three other cases the county agent was called upon to identify diseases which were killing valuable poultry. It was found they were dying of roup and when properly treated with boracic acid the disease was checked.

County Still Leads.

Pennington county has reached a reputation for having the largest number of accredited herds in the country. Two thousand three hundred and forty-nine head have been tested and 120 herds duly accredited. Seven federal veterinarians worked three weeks in the county and still remained four weeks longer to clean up the work.

Boys' and Girls' Club Work.

Four clubs are maintained in the county for boys and girls. The Farm Bureau directors voted to carry on all four club projects for the boys and girls in the most important industries of the county, which were named as potato, poultry, dairy calf and sheep clubs. Sectional meetings were held every two weeks thruout the county in co-operation with the county superintendent of schools. In this way over four hundred boys and girls were interested in these projects. These folks are very enthusiastic over club work and a much large enrollment is expected for next year.

A few days ago he went over to pay the debt with a $20 bill, expecting $7.33 in change.

But this neighbor did not have the change. He went to the house and borrowed from the other members of the family, taking some from the baby's bank, before the correct change could be given.

And when the family went to town again they got some small change and returned to each one the sum borrowed to make up the change. It was a lot of trouble for one transaction.

But suppose that man had been using the checking system. He could then have paid his neighbor quickly, with the exact change, and it would have ben ae business like transaction.

Every one admires the man who is careful and business like. The checking system deserves its poplarity. It is safest and best.

MUCH BUILDING OVER THE STATE IS PREDICTED

REPORTS FROM BANKERS THE STATE OVER SHOW SERIOUS SHORTAGE

Thousands of homes, stores, warehouses and apartment buildings are needed in several hundred Minnesota cities, towns and villages but their construction in 1921 depends to a vital extent upon the cost of labor and materials, and the availability of money, judging from authoritative reports received during the week from bankers in every section of the state for the weekly review of Minnesota enterprise, prepared by the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul.

Less than two per cent of the bankers heard from declared that housing resources in their city and section were adequate. Less than five per cent of the bankers forecast extensive building operations without adding a qualifying phrase.

Irregular reports were received regarding the cement situation. Shortage exists in some counties. In other sections cement is as abundant as stored grain. Similar reports were received regarding public building projects. Extensive work may be done in some counties and cities. In others no projects have been proposed.

It was noticeable, however, that nearly every county expects to do considerable road improvement work.

The weekly questionnaire sent to bankers thruout the state by the Merchants National Bank included these queries:

"What are prospects for building and construction work in your territory?

"Is there a home shortage? If so, is there a prospect of building next year?

"Is there any industrial or public building being done? What is the prospect?

"What is being done toward road building in 1921?

"Is the cement shortage being relieved?"

A number of the bankers who replied commented quite freely upon conditions in their districts. Millions of dollars worth of farm building will be delayed until the farmers have funds or credit, and are able to have the work done at prewar prices. It was stated, also that several boards of county commissioners intend to consider spring prices before taking action upon possible building contracts.

Data obtained from leading dealers in building materials show that prices have been declining. Lumber has dropped sharply and further declines are forecast. Wholesale and retail lumbermen believe there will be adequate supplies to meet the state wide demand in the spring and summer.

The money situation will determine the amount of building in Mahnomen and vicinity, a Mahnomen banker forecasts. Estimates for road work were being obtained. There is still a cement shortage. The home shortage in Polk county is not serious and building possibilities for 1921 are not considered regarded as extensive. The county will spend $200,000 on roads. Demand for cement has fallen off.

There is a shortage of houses in Detroit and some building will take place in the spring. Road building will be very heavy in Becker county. There was little building in Wheaton this summer but 1921 prospects for Traverse county are for light construction work.

CO-ORDINATED CLUB WORK RECOMMENDED BY STATE UNIVERSITY

Judge Frank T. Wilson of Stillwater was in the city Wednesday afternoon and spent considerable time with Secretary Scott Laird of the Commercial Club regarding the work of the state university in effecting a permanent heretofore and a better and more harmonious feeling between rural and city people is being worked out by the university. Judge Wilson will be asked to explain the plan to the people of this city according to action of the club yesterday.

NO MUNICIPAL TREE FOR CITY THIS YEAR--- MONEY TO GO TO NEEDY

There will be no municipal Christmas tree in Thief River Falls this year. Instead the money usually spent for this purpose will be distributed to the needy families of the city who will receive plenty to eat on Christmas day.

The Salvation Army has for several years past seen to the distribution of the dinners furnished by the Elks and other fraternal and civic organizations. They will again do so this year and the funds which will be placed at their disposal will be greater than ever before if the action of the Commercial club members is carried out.

The matter was up for discussion at the regular meeting of the club and a committe composed of President E. M. Stanton, Math Barzen and Mayor John Bratrud was named to solicit funds from all fraternal and civic bodies within the city to secure funds to provide the needy of the city with a substantial dinner for Christmas, as it was believed that there were quite a large number of such families.

NO CAUSE FOR DEPRESSION IS VIEW OF BANKERS

MINNESOTA ASSOCIATION OF BANKERS SEE BETTER TIMES AHEAD

Bankers generally the state over look for brighter conditions in Minnesota and see no reason why business should not hold up as good as ever and continue along sound and conservative lines. In the opinion of several bankers in session at Minneapolis several days ago, the general sentiment expressed was that the country is in good shape and aside from the fact that there has been a sharp decline in some lines and especially those lines affecting the farmer, still it was held the condition was one which called for no alarm on the part of the public and the general expression was that the state would go forward and that business would continue as usual. A complete account of the meeting together with the sentiment expressed is a follows:

There was no disposition to be pessimistic over present financial conditions in Minnesota, members of the executive council of the Minnesota Bankers' Association said. They met in the Northwestern National Bank building in Minneapolis to review business conditions and to out a program for their work in the coming year.

"The lessened liquidation of debt is no doubt due to a period of extravagance following the inflated values incident to the world war," said a brief statement given out after the meeting by George G. Richards, secretary of the association. "Reports from each district indicated that there were marked tendecies toward saner expenditures and bankers present felt it was only a matter of a reasonable time until financial conditions would gain be normal."

Plans for helping the Minnesota Highway Improvement Association wind up its affairs and raise money to meet its deficit after its successful campaign in behalf of Amendment No. 1 were taken up by the executive council.

Bankers who attended the meeting of the executive council were O. M. Nelson, president; M. J. Dowling, past president; C. L. Hansen, Thief River Falls, treasurer; W. A. Shaw, Clearwater; Will Wilkie, Gray Eagle; H. S. Erickson, Detroit; D. D. Devine, Albert Lea; W. A. Streator, Mankato; A. M. Schaefer, Jordan; W. F. McLane, Minneapolis, and George G. Richards, Minneapolis.

State Forestry Board Meeting.

A meeting of the state forestry board is being held in the capitol to consider recommendations to the governor and to prepare plans for the ensuing year.

The board is made up of M. M. Williams, president, Little Falls; W. B. Douglas, St. Paul; Frank S. Lycan, Bemidji; C. H. Scott, Duluth; Daniel Shaw, Thief River Falls; W. M. Tuber, Park Rapids; W. H. Tomlinson, L. Sheurr; C. C. Andrews, secretary, St. Paul; E. G. Cheney, as director of the forestry school, University farm; St. Paul and Roscoe; and W. Thatcher, for office, as dean of the Agricultural college, University Farm.

RAISE IN PHONE RATES TO HIT ALL CITY PHONES

JUST WHAT THE RAISE WILL AMOUNT TO HAS NOT BEEN DETERMINED.

Increased telephone rates ranging from thirty to forty per cent will soon be in vogue providing the Interstate Commerce Commission grants the amounts asked by the telephone companies operating within the state.

Just how the increase will affect Thief River Falls has not been learned and according to Manager G. L. Sterns of the local branch of the Northwestern Telephone Company, the increase, whatever it may be, will no doubt be equally divided between telephone rentals and toll calls. This has been done in other states where an increase was granted and while Mr. Sterns has no definite knowledge as to how the situation will be handled here he is under the impression that it will be the same as in other states and that no certain branch of the service will be called upon to bear the entire load.

The Northwestern Company states they have been operating at a loss for some time past and have only been able to pay five per cent on the money borrowed and at one time were able to only pay 3.5 per cent on the actual money borrowed. They claim that while the increase coming at this time when other commodities are dropping may seem peculiar to many people, the fact that the company has been operating at a loss for considerable time makes it imperative that something be done to take care of the increased cost.

The exact amount that the city of Thief River Falls will be asked to stand has not been determined and will not be known for some time in all likelihood. The general method followed by the company in the past has been to ascertain the operating costs and maintenance of the branch and thus establish an increase sufficient to take care of this expense.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has set the hearing over until December 10th, when the matter will be gone into and an increase in all probability will be granted, the exact size, of course, to be determined by the commission.

Plummer Poultry Show a Winner.

The annual poultry show held at Plummer this week and attended by a great many fanciers from this city, is reported as being the best held at that place for years. The exhibits were large and varied and in the opinion of those from this city in attendance, the show eclipsed anything of the kind ever held in the vicinity of Plummer and was a close second to the big show here last week.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE NOW ON IN CITY AND COUNTY--WORKERS BUSY

The city of Thief River Falls and Pennington county will be asked in the next week to raise an even $1200 to carry on the work of the Minnesota Public Health Association in this county and for state purposes.

Mrs. J. J. Richter has been elected chairman of the drive in this city and will in the next few days, with the assistance of ward chairmen, make a canvas of the city and bring the drive to a close in short order. The $1200 asked this year is $600 more than last year and it is held that the increased amount is necessary if the association is to carry on the work in the atte in the manner it should and give attention to all those worthy.

The work of the association in the year just closing has been one of inestimable value and has greatly helped in every possible way.

J. J. McCann, county chairman, states he has appointed workers in every town in the county and feels sure the drive will be put across with the customary dispatch. Those selected by Mr. McCann to take charge of the work in the county are: Mrs. Wm. Kordsel, Highlanding; Miss Mabel Patterson, St. Hilaire; Mrs. E. H. Dahl, Goodridge, and Rev. A. K. Lockren in Sanders township.

TRIAL OF WIFE DESERTER IS HELD OVER A FEW DAYS

The case against Wm. Gregoire on a charge of wife desertion has been postponed for a few days until word can be received from a friend of Gregoire's at Virginia, to whom Gregoire has written asking for money to help him out of his present dilemma. It is more than likely Gregoire will be allowed his freedom on a suspended sentence and allowed to return to Virginia, where he has employment. He will take his wife and children with him as soon as he is allowed to leave the city.

Gregoire was located at Duluth and Sheriff LaBree made a trip over and brought the young man back to face trial. He has very little to say and will in all likelihood plead guilty to the charge of wife desertion. There are several other charges against him that could be brought up at this time, but which will likely be dropped in case he takes care of his family and remains on his good ochavior. The case will be tried as soon as word is received from the friend at Virginia.

CLUB ROOMS FOR LEGION POST ARE TO BE PROPOSED

AUXILIARY TO LEGION WILL WILL UNDERTAKE PLANS TO SECURE QUARTERS

The Legion Auxiliary, composed of mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of former service men, which was organized last Saturday, held a meeting Wednesday afternoon and have already started the ball rolling toward necessary and better things for the service men.

The most important move discussed by the auxiliary and one which will without doubt prove interesting and agreeable to the service men, is the fact that steps will be taken to secure suitable headquarters for the local post. The rooms will be in the nature of a club room and will be open at all times to the service men. This movement is one that should have been taken up some time ago and one which should call for no hesitation on the part of the citizenship of the city.

Such a local post is certainly entitled to a club room where they can hold their meetings and enjoy the headquarters in any way they see fit. In many other towns over the country, and many of them much smaller than Thief River Falls, have decided this question long ago and prepared a suitable place for the former service men. Many cities have given the legion a building outright and in one locality the city gave the post the large auditorium to use as they saw fit and to take whatever revenue they might be able to make from the building.

The auxiliary plans to take up the matter with the Commercial Club and other civic organizations in the near future and see if it is not possible to make arrangements whereby the local post will have suitable quarters.

Erick Modin arrived from Middle River the first of the week to attend a meeting of the Tri-County Sanitorium Board. Mr. Modin was recently appointed to succeed Chris Rundtrum, resigned.

CITY EMERGENCY HOSPITAL IS HELD VERY ESSENTIAL

COMMERCIAL CLUB WILL URGE NECESSITY ON CITY OFFICIALS AT NEXT MEETING

An emergency hospital or substitute therefor is to be urged on the city officials at their next regular meeting according to steps taken yesterday by the Commercial Club following a quite general discussion of the situation as it exists at the present time and has for several years past.

When the flu epidemic started to spread in this vicinity three years ago, it will be recalled, there was no place where such patients could be cared for and the Red Cross co-operated with the local physicians and city officials in providing a temporary hospital.

Since then there was another outbreak and a ramshackle affair was fitted up, but was far from satisfactory. Rather than have a similar occurence this winter it was deemed wise by those at the club meeting Thursday to have the city provide an emergency hospital for contagious diseases, so that local people who should be quarantined may be properly cared for as well as outsiders who might happen to be stranded in the city and suffering from some disease which should be isolated.

Dr. O. F. Mellby, George L. Sterns and Scott Laird were named by President E. M. Stanton to wait on the city council and ask that steps be taken to provide such a building without any further delay as smallpox and the flu are already spreading in various sections of the state and might break out here again.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES AGAINST CONTRACTORS HAS BEEN DISMISSED

The claim that a suit for damages in the sum of $1,300 had been filed by Charles Alexander of this city against Coolsaet Brothers & Drees of Marshall, the contractors installing the sewer system for the city, for damages sustained when the fourteen year old daughter of Mr. Alexander was injured by falling over debris left in the streets by the contractors, is unfounded.

Mr. Alexander, in an interview this morning with the Tribune, stated that there was absolutely nothing of the kind to be attempted by himself in connection with the matter. It was thought at one time by Mr. Alexander that he would not make settlement until it was determined just how badly the girl was injured, but after it was seen she was going to recover a settlement was made in short order with the contractors. The notice of suit was merely made in order that the council might be made familiar with conditions and to hold up settlement with the contractors until the matter was fully adjusted with Mr. Alexander. Mr. Alexander says so far as he is concerned the entire affair is settled. The girl is as well as ever and is attending school, suffering no ill effects whatever from the accident.

FARM BUREAU DRIVE TO SECURE LARGE INCREASE

PURPOSES AND AIMS OF FARM BUREAU WILL HELP MUCH IN GETTING MEMBERS

The contemplated drive to be staged by the Pennington County Farm Bureau in the next few days for new members is one that should interest the entire county and one that should meet with a hearty response from every man in the county. The drive is staged for the benefit of every member of the farm bureau and will be the means of helping every farmer in the county to better farming and better prices.

Not the least of the problems that the farm bureau will be able to undertake and help straighten out is the farm marketing problem that is of such serious moment to every farmer in the state. And by becoming a member of the state federation and the American farm bureau federation the local bureau is in a position to accomplish many things for the farmer that would otherwise take considerable time and perhaps be entirely sidetracked were not the channels of these two great organizations open and working continuously for the farmer.

A brief summary of the work of the American Farm Bureau Federation, of which the county organization is now a member, may prove of interest to a great many people of the county and is published herewith for the benefit of those interested:

The American Farm Bureau Federation is a league of the farm bureaus of the nation in which the common interests of all county organizations are united in the advancement of agriculture in the United States of America, economically, educationally and socially on a constructive basis.

The American Farm Bureau Federation was organized March 4, 1920, at Chicago. Twenty-eight state farm bureau federations were represented at this meeting.

The affairs of the American Farm Bureau Federations are directed and controlled by farmers thru a board of directors, consisting of one official and one additional representative from every state for each 20,000 members or major portion thereof, and by an executive committee consisting of three members of the board of directors from each of the four regional districts of the United States, all of which officers and directors shall be acutally engaged in farming.

1. It represents 31 states which have been accepted into the organization. The total membership in the 31 states is over 900,000.

2. It represents 797 county farm bureaus each of which has an official board of farmers.

It represents every community. Each county farm bureau provides for a director from each community or township, a co-operator from each school district and a well distributed membership.

4. It represents all agricultural interests. The members, officers and directors of the various county farm bureaus include individuals engaged in all of the general and specialized lines of farming. And all are united in the advancement of agriculture economically, educationally and socially.

5. It represents the various agricultural organizations. The farm bureaus do not aim to replace any other organization. They include in their membership representatives of all farmers' organizations. The federation encourages community organization and co-operation.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is not a political organization, believing that more can be accomplished in safeguarding and promoting the agricultural interests most vital to the welfare of the entire nation by the united action of all concerned on measures of common interest regardless of factional or political differences.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is not a panacea or cure-all. It depends for its strength upon the kind of support given to it by the local, county and state organizations and the quality of co-operation it receives from the various agencies interested in the welfare of agriculture.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is representative in its membership by using the referendum in getting the viewpoint of its membership upon all great public questions.

ROSEWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thompson entertained about 30 of their friends and neighbors at a Thanksgiving party at their home northwest of town Thursday evening. The evening was delightfully spent, the chief diversions being music, conversation and dancing. A dainty luncheon was served at midnight.

A farmers meeting was held at the Rosebank school house last Saturday evening to discuss the present market conditions of grain and live stock, which are at present in a very unsatisfactory condition and with but slight prospects of being remedied until the present crop has been disposed of. Swen Swenson, who has been investigating the conditions in this state, in a short talk compared grain conditions here to those in Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and Nebraska, where the federal Wheat Growers' Association has control. Practically the only hope held out for a remedy was an organization in this state similar to those above, when the farmers like other industrial branches can control the sale and price of their products and eliminate the wholesale gambling now carried on along those lines.

The Rindal Young People's Society held their monthly meeting at the church on Thanksgiving afternoon with a fair sized assemblage. A high class program including a number of juvenile selections and considerable music was presented and a dainty luncheon was served at the close. THE NECESSITY FOR INCREASED TELEPHONE REVENUE

Because telephone service is a necessity in the life of a community, it is important to you as a telephone user, as well as to our employees and investors, that this Company's revenues shall be sufficient to meet its requirements.

Our revenues must be such as will enable us to pay all operating expenses, including fair wages to our employees and a reasonable return on the value of our property, if we are to meet the demands of the public for service.

A fair and reasonable return upon the value of our property is a fixed charge which must be earned, just as we have to pay wages to employees and buy materials. Otherwise we could not attract money from investors to make necessary extensions and improvements as required by the public.

On our capital stock, which is substantially less than the value of our property as sworn to before the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission, we have not paid a dividend of more than 5 per cent for fifteen years. During this year we have been forced to stop the payment of dividends, and we are not earning the interest charges on money borrowed.

This situation makes it necessary for us to ask the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission to approve an increase in our rates.

In order to understand why telephone rates must be increased at this time when many other prices are dropping, one must realize that the same conditions have not existed in the telephone industry as in private business. The prices of most things were advanced sufficiently to meet higher costs, but telephone rates have not been as our increased expenses have exceeded our increased revenues.

The telephone is subject to state regulation and when we require additional revenue we must apply to the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission for higher rates. The gathering, assembling and presenting of information demanded by the Commission requires considerable time. Because of this, necessary increases in rates are slow in being obtained and the Company must operate at a loss until relief is granted.

This statement is made in accordance with our policy of giving the public as well as our employees and investors full information about our affairs, and we feel sure that it will be accepted in the same spirit of fairness and cooperation that has always characterized your attitude toward this Company.

GERMANY'S FOOD SHORTAGE

All recent reports from Germany emphasize the dangerous food situation to be faced by the former proud empire during the coming winter. The wheat crop of the country is estimated at 83,000,000 bushels against a pre-war average of 151,800,000. Rye production is pinced at 193,000,000 bushels, as compared with 438,235,000 before the war. Germany expects to import 1,000,000 tons of wheat, rye, corn and barley before the next harvest, but the question is how to pay for these products, which will cost 12,000,000,000 marks at the present rate of exchange.

One of the plans for establishing credit in the United States is to induce the American government to permit the use of seized German property in this country as a basis. Unless we intend to give the property back to Germany it is difficult to see how it could be used for the purpose designated. Yet we can't see the German people starve, as we are sympathetic, even toward those who have wrongeil us.

Germany's low crop yields are attributed to the lack of fertilizers and the diminution of the grain areas by the Versailles peace treaty. Climatic conditions in Germany were mostly favorable this season.

SIT TIGHT.

"Chamber Offers Membership to Farmer Agency" reads the heading in a Minneapolis daily. The article under it says the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce has offered to admit a commission company who shall do business on a co-operative basis for associated co-operative elevators.

The plan is not new. It was suggested some years ago by the grain exchange but it was never acted upon by the farmers. Possibly it had to them the appearance of "Greeks bearing gifts."

Northwest Farmstead is inclined to the belief that the offer is made in good faith. It hopes so, anyway.

But it earnestly counsels its farmer friends to go slow. Right now the farmer co-operator is in a very strong position. He has working for him some of the keenest minds in the nation. Really working for him, too. Some of the best lawyers in the United States are drawing pay from the American Farm Bureau Federation on this very problem, that of grain marketing. The Committee of Seventeen is soon to report.

The committee may recommend this very plan. If so, it will be in a form in which the farmers' interests will be guarded by the best talent in the U. S. A.

They may report an entirely different plan.

Until they do report the co-operators will do well to sit tight.—Farmstead.

We feel very proud where we find the Tribune in complete harmony with the Farmstead from week to week on the paramount issues that vitally affect farming. The Chamber of Commerce is naturally against everything the farmers want. They own, control and manipulate the machinery that fixes and juggles a gambling market, in the interest of the gamblers in Minneapolis. When the Chamber of Commerce invites the farmer to make use of the marketing machinery and "come in" it would be prudent, as we have heretofore suggested for the farers, if they accept the invitation, to wear their side arms while the recipients of this proffered hospitality. The Farmstead's suggestion to have the plan passed upon by the "keenest minds in the nation" is based upon the same suspicion of the Chamber of Commerce.

ARE YOU WITH US?

We choose no aloofness, we shirk no obligation, we forsake no friends. We never have, we never will. But we built in nationality and we do not mean to surrender it. We crave fraternity, we wish amicable relations everywhere, we offer peace and choose it, but we demand our freedom and our own America.—President-elect Harding at Brownsville, Texas, on Armistice Day.

You can't add anything to that. If the "Irish referendum" was not striking enough to convince the outside world that America is for Americans, first, last and all the time, the outside world should get from the above excerpt adequate conception of what the policy of the administration will be for the next four years.

When you set yourselves down and reflect, don't you vastly pleased that while we recognize we owe something to the outside world and should participate in a way in the struggle for universal peace, the United States is to continue to "demand our freedom and our own America."

You might paraphrase that grand old Christian hymn, without becoming sacrilegious, to something like this:

Hark the Herald Angels sing
"Peace on earth, let all men bring:"
But lest we become accursed,
Let's assure our own peace first.

PAY AND PRODUCT.

The British miners recently went on a strike in an effort to force their demand for more pay and the British government replied that they may have it on one condition—that they dig more coal.

British mining wages have been low, compared with American standards, but when a similar comparison is made between the British and the American output, there seems to be a good deal of justice in Lloyd George's position. British miners are said to have been producing only 200 "long tons" of coal a year per man. In the United States a coal miner digs two or three times that much. Our mines have more machinery to help them, but there is also an obvious difference in the spirit in which the men work. No one maintins that the British miner has been overworked. Unless he has been really underpaid for the work he did, it is a fair business proposition that he pay for increased wages by increased production.

The principle has its application just now in this country in a slightly different way. With prices of commodities going down, there is natural pressure brought to bring wages down with them. Those wages, generally speaking, have been adjusted to enable the workman to meet living conditions at high price levels. Some manufacturers can well afford to reduce prices considerably and still maintain high wages. Others cannot. Some of the latter have already reduced wages to some extent in several industries, with the consent of the workmen, who prefer lower pay to the alternative of closed factories and no jobs.

There is one way, and only one, as practical business men and professional economists have pointed out, by which American labor can avoid such reduction of its income. It is by producing more.

Just how generally this can be done is a matter of debate. The current view is that in most occupations the workmen can still speed up quite a little without harmful overwork. Where this is the cast it is the obvious remedy for the situation, and also a guarantee of the greatest prosperity American labor has ever enjoyed.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

Board of Trade men say farmers can't set prices. They talk about "the law of supply and demand."

Of course, the farmers can't arbitrarily "set the price" and make consumers buy.

But the Board of Trade's law of supply and demand is not such a mysterious, immuntable thing either.

The man who has something to sell, if he knows enough, can make that great law dance to his music. He can, to some extent, regulate the supply if he wants to. And it isn't such a difficult thing to affect the demand. Californians used to sell 20,000 tons of raisins at 11 cents a pound. Then they organized and put a good advertising man to work. Everybody has read for the past several years the ads of the "Sunmaid Raisins." Now the growers sell 200,000 tons at from 6 to 10 cents a pound.

Demand! Why, four-fifths of the human race hardly knows what wheat is. They eat rice and dates and barley. Nobody has ever really tried to sell wheat. The farmer has taken what was offered. The efforts of a single mill in Minneapolis has done more to really "sell" wheat than 18 producers have done in all history.

Let producers but organize and appropriate one one-hundredth of a cent a bushel to pay a good advertising man and he'll make the law of supply and demand jump thru a hoop and turn three summersaults in the air.

The demand is there—dormant. It ought to hustle us enough to furnish the supply.—Farmstead.

Here again we find vindication of our position on the controlled markets. The law of supply and demand, as a natural law, is obselete. Prices are controlled. The farmer pays trust prices on almost everything he buys. He has the right to control the price of what he sells and he is going to do it. Ten years from now a good farmer will keep books. He will know what it costs to raise grain and stock and he will be doing business on the basis of a salary for himself, his boys and other help, plus depreciation, plus other expenses, plus interest on the money invested in the farm and outfit plus a good percentage of profit in addition thereto. Join the Farm Bureau and help give the farming business a national position of strength and influence.

ON THE RETURNS.

The Federal Land Bank case was argued the other day before the United States supreme court.

The land bank officers think that the arguments of the farmers' lawyer, former Justice Charles E. Hughes, are unanswerable. The farm mortgage bankers, on the other hand, think their lawyer had the best of it.

Northwest Farmstead has read the three voluminous briefs and hesitates to make a guess on the strength of them.

But this paper is willing to bet the land bank wins, just the same. Every party platform and every candidate was pledged in favor of the land bank in the late campaign. And to quote the inimitable Mr. Dooley:

"Does the constitution follow the flag? I dinnaw. But I've always noticed the supreme coort decision follows the liction returns."—Farmstead.

WARNING TO COAL TRADE

Chicago Tribune: Suggestions for the nationalization of the coal industry in the United States have been made to the senate committee on reconstruction. A suggestion is far from accomplishment is such a complicated matter, but it is evidences of the depths to which public opinion have been stired by our coal troubles and prices. To that extent the coal trade will do well to look upon the suggestion as handwriting upon the wall.

It is far from probable that the idea will even be formally considered by the committee, much less introduced into congress. It is contrary to American ideals of private enterprise and individualism in effort and reward. But even our fixed ideas can be shaken by such conditions as have marked the coal business of the country. We do not believe in nationalism of coal mines, railroads or similar properties. Neither do we believe in the exploitation of the people by such interests.

Exploitation by the railroads brought about corrective legislation which swung to the other extreme. Regulation brought them near collapse. If the coal business of the country does not court a similar fate it will begin to provide better service at more reasonable prices.

Exploitation by the railroads. Certainly the railroads of the United States were largely built by extortion, political control and subsidies. The people have paid for the railroads and the stockholders own them. We have finally come control over the transportation system of our country and while we have high rates, we do have some equality. Then came plunder methods that robbed the people thru railroad domination for so many years have more recently turned their attention to the necessities of life and we find these same piratical methods in our packing, milling, mining boards of trade and other marketing machinery and to the great detriment of the farmers. The prices of the farmers' products are controlled downward, while coal, machinery, wood goods and about everything the farmer buys is controlled upward. Join the Farm Bureau and become a unit in the great national movement to better conditions for the farmer.

STUDY RURAL CREDITS

Proposals to establish a rural credits system in Minnesota whereby the state might loan money to those who are developing agricultural lands were discussed at a conference called recently by J. A. O. Preus, governor-elect.

Those attending the conference besides Mr. Preus were N. J. Holmberg, commissioner of agriculture; J. H. Hay, deputy commissioner; Ben Faast, director of the Federal Farm Loan Bank, and others.

The governor-elect is holding a series of conferences to discuss various proposals that may be included in his inaugural mesage.

At the recent convention of the Farm Bureau Federation in St. Paul representatives of the organization went on record as favoring the state establishing a rural credits system. South Dakota has been a leader in this line. That state has marketed bonds and loaned money to the farmers. More than $27,000,000 has already been loaned out there.

With the inability of the federal government to continue loaning money at this time, the problem of granting such aid to Minnesota farmers has become more acute.

The establishent of a rural credits system is one of the methods proposed for encouraging land development and settlement, particularly in northern Minnesota. Provisions to loan up to 75 per cent of the value of the property have been suggested. This would encourage the owners of cut-over lands for instance, to continue developing. The more improvements made the more money could be borrowed.

In South Dakota there is a rural credits commission which handles this work. It is likely that such a commission probably working in the department of agriculture, might be proposed here.—Minneapolis Tribune.

In studying the rural credits plan adopted by South Dakota, Mr. Preus is going to an excellent place for information. Theodore Roosevelt, shortly before his death, stated that South Dakota had enacted more logical, progressive legislation than any other state in the Union. Mr. Preus is on the right road. He has a mind for constructive progressive things. He is young, able, honest, a worker. He is not under suspicion because of the old machines. He is out in front with a running start and on his way. Mr. Preus is likely to loom as a very big man as time goes on. We expect him to.

The Times is all "het up" about the Preus Primary Election plans. Certainly, the Times was for Hodgson.

It would be perfectly safe to dare the Times to say one plain, honest, non-straddling word, editorially, for the Farm Bureau. They have never done it yet, probably for the very good reason that the "controllers" of the Times are not in favor of the Farm Bureau.

Your Neighbor's Girl

Your neighbor's girl is lucky. Her parents are training her to make a success in life.

They do not want her to have to enter business to make her own way in the world, but they are teaching her to do useful work.

This girl will probably be mistress of a home some day and the success of that home will depend to a large degree upon her skillful management.

Her parents are teaching her to spend money wisely. She gets a certain amount each month and she buys all her own things. She is learning to handle money.

The girl earns some—spend with good judgment and she has a growing savings account.

Of course this girl will have a big advantage over the average girl when the test comes.

What about your girl?

The American Farm Bureau Federation is free from political entanglements. Whenever any officer or director becomes a candidate for state or national office he must immediately resign his office in the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the state bureau federations and the various county farm bureaus represent only a nominal investment on the part of any one individual. The entire upkeep of the farm bureau and the state federations in the American Farm Bureau Federation uniformly apportioned, costs the farmer less than one cent an acre on his land, including federal, state and county appropriations and membership fees. From one-half to two-thirds of the necessary finances for the support of the county agent movement comes from public funds to maintain the agricultural extension educational work carried on thru farm bureaus, but no public funds go to the support of the state or American Farm Bureau Federations. The American Farm Bureau Federation depends entirely for its support upon the funds thru the individual farm bureau membership fees, of which it receives not to exceed fifty cents per member.

While individual businesss corporations are spending millions annually in promoting their interests before the general public, the future demands an investment on the part of the farmer more commensurate with his interests.

Answer Your Door Bell---

Emerson said that if a man did something better than his neighbor, no matter what it was, the world would make a beaten path to his door.

But times have changed. Nowadays the men who make the "better" things are "making paths" to your door.

Every time a newspaper comes a host of people are ringing your door-bell. Merchants and manufacturers are waiting on the doorstep to spread their goods at your feet for you to look at.

Don't let the opportunity that advertisements offer you slip by. No matter what you want, clothing, groceries, a fountain pen or a farm you will find the "better" ones in the advertising columns.

The advertisements tell you where you can get what you want when you want it.

Buying with a definite knowledge is so much better than shopping at random. Study the advertisements.

WILSON MEN ARE WIPED OUT IN WHOLE DELEGATIONS

SEVERAL STATES ELIMINATE ALL DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSMEN.

How complete is the utter demoralization of the democratic party in congress as the result of the Harding landslide is indicated by the complete or nearly complete elimination of all representation in many of the most populous states of the union.

In Ohio not a democrat is left to defend his political faith. Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, who has been in the house off and on since his first term in 1873, when he and "Uncle Joe" Cannon came in together, lost out, as did Gard, Welthy, Brumbaugh, Davey, Mooney, Babka and Ashbrook, whose district was regarded as impregnable. Among the new members will be Theodore E. Burton, who was formerly chairman of the house committee on rivers and harbors, succeeded by Joseph B. Foraker in the senate and was the choice of his state for the presidency in 1916. Not even Pennsylvania did as well, for, while six democrats fell by the wayside, one yet remains in Guy E. Campbell of Pittsburgh, who was also endorsed by the republicans.

In Indiana the delegation remains as it was—all republicans and all re-elected. So it is in Iowa, with the exception of Kopp, a republican who succeeds Kennedy, another republican who retired. In Illinois every democrat went down to defeat for the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Likewise, Connecticut is now all republican, as is Kansas by the defeat of Ayres a democrat in the eighth district, and Michigan by the defeat of Doremus in the first district. Minnesota purged itself even of an independent by leaving at home W. L. Carss and now every member is a republican.

Most remarkable of all was the shift in Missouri, when ten democrats went to defeat, including the veteran Champ Clark, and where all but one of the sixteen representatives are now republican. The majority was so large that the state is now considered safely republican, for a long time at least.

Montana was bereft of its one democrat and Utah defeated its two democrats and substituted two republicans Nevada sent one republican instead of a democrat. California sent three more republicans instead of two democrats and a prohibitionist, so that the delegation will contain nine republicans and two democrats.

In New Jersey four democrats were beaten and only one now remains in the delegation of twelve. In New York eleven democrats were snowed under in the awful blizzard of November 2. Nine now remain out of the forty-three in the delegation, which also includes one socialist. J. V. Ganley and R. F. McKinley, "huddies" who lived at the same hotel, had adjoining offices as well as districts and were inseparable, were among the casualties

In Oklahoma five republican members will grow where only two grew before and this leaves only three democrats. Exactly the same shift was made in Tennessee, except that there are five democrats left. The one republican from Texas is considered the great miracle of the election, as great as was considered the election of a republican senator from Missouri in the Roosevelt landslide of 1904.

South Dakota gave up its one democrat and now has three republicans, and West Virginia threw out M. M. Neely, a veteran democrat, so that the delegation of six would be entirely republican. In Wisconsin three changes were made, but the delegation of eleven is entirely republican.

MOTHERS, WHICH ? PRODIGY FROWN OR THE HAPPY SMILE

American mothers should think twice before wishing that "her Johnny" was a prodigy like some of the children whose exploits are heralded occasionally. So say able writers, who have studied the latest child prodigy to visit American shores, Samuel Rzeschewski, the 8-year-old Polish boy, who is admitted to be the chess wonder of the age.

Samuel's uncanny ability to play chess was demonstrated in his first appearance here when playing 20 games at the same time against West Point experts; he won 19 games and scored a draw on the other. Still he cannot write his name nor read.

In comparison, it is pointed out, take the normal 8-year-old boy from the average American home in the small town or rural community. He is in the third or fourth grade at school: he can read and write; he is sturdy in sports; he can perform chores with ability and aptness—and he is happy.

The two portraits at the top of this sketch show, first, Samuel's sad and moody face; the other—the smiling face of the happy American boy, which can be found in any square quarter-mile of our great nation.

PRICES HIGH IN CUBA IT IS DECLARED

LIVING COSTS IN HAVANA ARE NEARLY DOUBLE THOSE OF AMERICAN CITIES.

Havana—American women, disturbed by the mounting cost of living, ought to come to Cuba. The trip would make them satisfied with conditions at home.

Broadly speaking, prices in Havana are just about double the high mark in top notch American cities. One cause, according to dealers, is the unprecedented port congestion, apparently with little hope of early clearing, and which has resulted in the ruin of hundreds of tons of necessary products. Whatever the cause, the island is going thru a period of high cost, described by the papers here as more burdensome than that found elsewhere on the face of the earth.

Even here where it is produced in sufficient bulk to supply millions elsewhere, sugar retails on the Havana market around 24 cents a pound. Grape fruit, going to waste a few miles from town, sells at New York quotations. Financial depression, the demand for ready and available cash and the moratorium, under which banks limit withdrawals to ten per cent, have failed to start price reductions in the hope of unloading luxuries to meet weekly pay rolls, until the moratorium ends December 1, hotels will not permit patrons to sign bar and cafe checks, a time honored custom here. Cash is needed and a man pays when he eats.

Conditions in Havana are of little concern to the wealthy element from the states that will be coming here soon by the thousands for the winter and racing season. But for folk of ordinary means, with two weeks for recreation, a big bank roll is needed. About the lowest hotel rate is $7 a day for room and bath. And this is not at the best places, for there are rates much higher, and along toward the middle of November the $7 rooms will fetch $15.

Americans living in Havana pour out a tale of woe to friends from the states. The women seem to be hit the hardest. Price tags in stores selling men's wear show that a good pair of men's low shoes costs as high as $28. The rainy season is not ended, and $8 for an umbrella is a "bargain." Flannel trousers are there for $25 and silk shirts for $20. A lot of odds and ends that a man needs cost more than twice the mark at home. The correspondent saw a panama hat valued at $450 and the dealer declared that sugar men pay it without blinking.

Cigarettes selling at home for 20 cents a package cost 60 cents here. For a $2 box of American candy they ask $7. Two cent American papers three days old cost 12 cents. You may get a reasonably fair suit of clothes out of stock for $100. In most cases women's shirt waists, it was explained, cost three times the home figure.

FLOUR MILL EARNINGS CALLED PAPER PROFITS

Earnings of the northwestern group of flour mills, placed by the federal trade commission as 24.4 per cent on the total capitalization for a five-year period, are largely paper profits which have been and are being largely reduced during the declining price period, according to W. C. Edgar, editor of the Northwestern Miller.

More representative figures on the earnings, Mr. Edgar points out, are those which show the rate of profit on actual sales which are given by the commission as from 3.5 to 6.5 per cent. Mr. Edgar also makes the point that the trade commission's report is based on a five-year period, including abnormal war years, and therefore the figures cannot be taken as a truthful index of the business operations of the milling industry of the country over a period of years.

Can you beat it? The United States auditing department, the best men in the world, are not competent to make the figures. This is like a bootlegger calling the jury a bunch of crooks.

BANK ROBBERS CAUGHT SHORTLY AFTER HOLD-UP

TWO ROBBERS HOLD UP CASHIER OF BANK AT GATZKE, SECURING $800.

A life sentence is facing two young men who held up the State Bank of Gatzke last Friday afternoon about 2 o'clock, relieving the bank of something over eight hundred dollares in currency.

The two young men entered the bank with a rifle and ordered the cashier to throw up his hands. The cashier, who was conversing with a farmer, took it for a joke at first and did not comply with the request. At this the bandit began to swear and again ordered the cashier to throw up his hands, saying, "I mean what I say; throw 'em up." The cashier responded at once when he saw the seriousness of the situation and the two men entered the cage and took what currency they could find.

Leaving the bank the pair entered a car and hit the trail. There was considerable snow on the ground and they were traced to Mud Lake Bottom; from that place the sheriff traced them to Ellerth. All the towns along the line were notified and at Donaldson the citizens turned out en masse and attempted to stop the car. In this they were unsuccessful and several shots were exchanged. At Hallock the sheriff was on the lookout and when the car came in sight he succeeded in stopping it and arresting the occupants. All of the money except a small amount was found in the car and the two robbers admitted they were the guilty parties.

When questioned by the authorities they gave the names of Earl Cook and Tom Brown. The youngest of the two was barely 21 years of age and the other a trifle older. Since giving the names of Brown and Cook they have admitted that these were not their real names.

The reason given by the robbers for entering the bank and holding up the cashier is that they are whiskey runners and there are several high-way men along the border who have been making a practice of holding up the whiskey runners and taking all their money before they have a chance to enter Canada and secure their cargo of liquor. This is what happened to these two, according to their story, and the only solution they could think of was to rob a bank in order to secure enough money to get their cargo of liquor on board.

They both have pleaded guilty to the charge of bank robbery and will be sentenced to life imprisonment. They are at present held by the authorities at Warren.

HUNTING SEASON FOR BIG GAME CAME TO A CLOSE LAST SUNDAY

The big game hunting season closed on Sunday of this week and the game in this section of the state will again be allowed to roam at will without the molestation of mere man and a rifle.

County Auditor Andersen states there were 125 hunting licenses sold this year for the hunting of big game. So far as we are able to learn no fatalities resulted from the open season on deer and man in Pennington county. A large number of deer were brought in by hunters and good luck generally visited those who went forth in quest of the fleet footed.

Other states have been less fortunate in the loss of life during the hunting season. Wisconsin reports fifteen men killed during the season. This is appalling when one stops to consider the matter, and gives cause for thankfulness that this state and county escaped the ordeal of being called upon to record the death of a man.

CALLED TO CHICAGO BY ILLNESS OF DAUGHTER

H. W. Protzeller was called to Chicago the latter part of last week on account of the serious illness of his daughter, who with Mrs. Protzeller has been visiting relatives in Pennsylvania and was taken sick on the trip home. A letter from Mr. Protzeller to friends here this morning states they will not be home for some time as pneumonia has set in and it is hard to say how long it will be before the family can return.

LAST LUNCHEON BEFORE HOLIDAYS AT CLUB TO BE HELD THURSDAY

The last Commercial Club luncheon before the holidays will be held on Thursday at the club rooms and it is expected there will be much business of importance to transact following the luncheon.

The club luncheons have proven extremely popular during the past few months and the business men have turned out in force to take advantage of the excellent menu set forth by the club and to discuss matters of every day interest to all.

The meetings have been very helpful to all and have done more to form a get-together spirit among the members than anything of a like nature. The last meeting was well attended and many important suggestions were brought out by the members present and action on the more pressing is being taken and no doubt the result in many necessary and highly progressive measures of interest generally to the city.

The luncheon on Thursday of this week should be well attended and every club member should be present.

FINE MEETING AT GOODRIDGE LAST EVENING

J. H. HAY SPOKE TO FARMERS OF THAT VICINITY CONCERNING FARM BUREAU

A very enthusiastic meeting was held at Goodridge last evening at which J. H. Hay spoke to the farmers and citizens generally along constructive lines and conditions generally facing the farmer at this particular time.

The meeting was held in the school building, which was crowded to overflowing. The Goodridge band was on the job and the meeting is reported to have been one of the most enthusiastic and successful of the year.

Mr. Hay, among other matters, took up the drive that is soon to be made by the farm bureau for members and discussed the question in all its many phases, pointing out the absolute necessity of the organization of the farmers in a non-political way if they hope to overcome the difficulties they are daily facing. He pointed out the many advantages that arise by being a member of the farm bureau and being extremely familiar with this subject, his talk was sound and logical, showing clearly the many necessary and important steps the farm bureau has taken in its efforts to serve the farmers of the state and nation.

Stuart McLeod also made a short address and touched briefly on the work of the farm bureau. Mr. McLeod is one of the state men sent out to secure members in the farm bureau and he set forth some of his experiences and also brought forth the one great fact that above all other organizations of like character the farm bureau stood supreme and was conducted wholly for the farmer and was primarily a farmers' organization and one that should receive the support of every farmer in the state.

The general sentiment expressed at the meeting was very favorable to the farm bureau and leads those interested in the drive to believe a large number of new members may be expected from Goodridge when the drive opens.

Twentieth Anniversary.

The Presbyterian church has sent out invitations to a celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the organization. Dr. James Wallace of St. Paul will speak at 11 o'clock in the morning and at 8 o'clock in the evening on Sunday, Dec. 12. The church has invited the Methodist Episcopal congregation to be present in the evening. Two great addresses will be delivered. The public is invited to hear them.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 16, the people of the church will gather for a banquet in the church basement. The program will consist of the history of the church and addresses of a reminiscent character.

Christmas Seals Going Fair.

The sale of Christmas seals in the city and county the past week has gone fairly well, according to J. C. McCann, who is chairman of the drive in the county. Mr. McCann states that while the sale of seals has been fair, still the total of last year will not be reached by any means.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY IS CELEBRATED

MR. AND MRS. ROLLAND MARRIED FIFTY YEARS AGO LAST SUNDAY.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Rolland, residents of this city and vicinity for the past thirty-seven years, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday at their home, 812 Duluth avenue north.

Mr. and Mrs Rolland have lived in the immediate vicinity of this city during a considerable portion of their fifty years of wedded life and have raised a family of ten children, all of whom were present on the anniversary.

A four course dinner was served, the color scheme being white and gold. The residence was very prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. A large wedding cake decorated the center of the table. Mr. and Mrs. Rolland received many beautiful and valuable presents, among them ten pieces of gold from the ten children.

Those present were O. R. Miller and family, of Crookston; John Rolland and family, city; E. L. Rolland and family, city; H. L. Rolland, of Erskine; C. M. and Alfred Rolland, of Hibbing; Gus Hanson and family, city; Marius Rolland, of Kansas; August Rolland, of St Hilaire, and Miss Marie Rolland, city.

RED CROSS DRIVE NETS TOTAL $410 FOR CITY THIEF RIVER FALLS

The Red Cross roll call in the city of Thief River Falls, which has just been completed, netted $410 in the city, $22 of which is to be credited to the staff and patients at the Sanatorium.

The result of the drive in the city has been very satisfactory and while not up to the standard of a year ago, there was not the need for money this year due to the fact that the local chapter has several hundred dollars on hand from last year. However, the drive was necessary to keep the local chapter in existence and the solicitation of members and funds was merely to keep the chapter going and to keep the work of the Red Cross going in full swing.

The solicitors in the last drive are to be congratulated for their part and for the work accomplished. Soliciting these days has proved to be a man size job and the workers have done very fine under existing circumstances and are to be commended. Mrs. Andrew Craik, chairman of the drive in the city, feels the total result is all that could be expected and is well pleased with the outcome.

Those who assisted in the drive are as follows; Dr. H. G. Milan, Mrs. J. O. Seher; Mrs. A. Sapero, Mrs A. Holmberg, Mrs. C. G. Streeter, Mrs. L. F. Fisher, Mrs. H. W. Froelich, Mrs. C. M Adkins, Mrs. Chas. Alexander, Mrs. T. F. Anderson, Mrs. L. Hermianson, Mrs. F. E. Hunt, Mrs. L. H. Lawrence, Mrs. A. G. Gabrielson, Mrs. R. G. Cook, Mrs. H. D. Cady, Mrs. C. B. Bradley, Mrs. Jno. Cronkhite, Mrs. C. R. Crandall, Mrs. Margaret Makin, Mrs. E. M. Stanton; Misses Carrie Trogen, Una Nelson, Ida Tandberg, Elisabeth Johnson, Karen Knutson, Jane Morely, Lorna Dodge, Ruby Ness, Mary Vance, Eileen Herron, Mildred Bottleson, Anna Leimers, Adlynn LaBree and Beatrice Sgadum.

Elks' Dance.

One of the most entertaining and delightful programs of the year has been arranged by the local order of Elks for the evening of Dec. 17th, when they will give a leap year ball at the Auditorium. The lodge will hold an initiation earlier in the evening and the visiting ladies and wives of the local members will be entertained at the Auditorium by a musicale and card party. Following the initiation the men will adjourn to the hall where the dance is to be held. The committee in charge of arrangements are working hard to make this one of the most enjoyable events of the year and from all reports they are certain to succeed.

Swedish Ladies Aid.

The Ladies Aid of the Swedish Lutheran church will be entertained by Mrs. Emil Johnson and Mrs. E. Crown in the church basement Thursday afternoon, Dec. 9.

Legion Notes

The local post of the American Legion, is making an effort to broaden its scope of usefulness to legion members and all service men and is following out the suggestions offered thru the national post, the most important of all no doubt being the plan set forth for the helping and cheering of men in hospitals.

A summary of the attitude taken by the legion posts of the country shows the following duties should be held above all others by the posts, and to which Elmer J. Eklund post heartily adds its endorsement:

"Specifically, it is our duty to see that every service man in every hospital in the United States is visited at least once a week by individual members or committees from the Legion post or posts and auxiliary unit nearest him. To see that he receives the compensation due him from the government and that he is put in touch with his comrades in the Legion by sending him the American Legion Weekly and by furnishing his name to some of his former buddies so that they can write to him. To see that the general public is interested in the welfare of the men—not as an abstract problem, but as a concrete debt that they owe. To see that the men are supplied with books, magazines and smokes—not in an occasional outburst of generosity, but as a regular routine. To see to the organization of outings, automobile rides, entertainments, dances, get-together meetings, etc., for the men who are well enough to enjoy them. To have our women-folk provide a basket of fruit or a bunch of flowers for the men in the wards; and above all, first, last and always, to show that our slogan, 'We fought together—let's stick together,' means something."

Re-enlists in Army.

Omer Anderson, who for the past year has been employed by the Hermanson Hardware Company, re-enlisted in the United States army and left last night for Fort Snelling where he will be stationed for the present. Mr. Anderson spent considerable time overseas with the American Expeditionary Forces, and has re-enlisted in the engineer corps for a period of one year.

MEMORIAL SERVICES OF ELK LODGE LARGELY ATTENDED LAST SUNDAY

The memorial services held Sunday afternoon by Thief River Falls Lodge No. 1466, B. P. O. E. at the Masonic Hall were largely attended by the public.

The services were impressive and a most appropriate program was rendered.

The headliner on the program was the address given by J. H. Hay, former superintendent of schools in this city. Mr. Hay made a very pleasing address in memory of the departed brothers of the local order and lauded upon their activities in all civic and state affairs.

The following program was rendered:

Prayer, E. M. Bennes, Chaplain.

Called to Laverne.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Connell were called to Laverne by the serious illness of Mrs. Connell's father, Dr. Spaulding, one of the leading physicians of southern Minnesota. Dr. Spaulding was reported to be in a serious condition and but little hope was held for his recovery. No word has been received in this city since Mr. and Mrs. Connell left as to the condition of Dr. Spaulding.

Miss Senate Dies.

LETTER RECEIVED BY FORMER RESIDENT SHOWS CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

The following clipping concerning a letter received by Elmer Zeh, a son of Phil Zeh of this city, now employed at Crookston, in which conditions in Germany are set forth, gives an insight into the condition of that country at the present time. The article says in part:

"Elmer Zeh of the Crookston Mercantile Co., received a letter this morning from Berlin, Germany, dated the 6th of November, which told in an interesting manner the present deplorable conditions in this city, as they existed under the control of the revolutionary forces. The letter stated that 'due to the striking street car men there is no street car service. Water and lights have been turned off and there is no coal to provide heat.' People are obliged to break up box cars, fences, bridges—anything to provide fuel during the cold season. The German mark has depreciated so greatly in value that today 68 marks are not valued at more than a dollar in American money."

WHEAT GROWERS DECIDE AGAINST ORGANIZATION

MEETING HELD ON SATURDAY WELL ATTENDED—NOTHING OF IMPORTANCE DONE.

The forming of a wheat growers' organization in Pennington county, which was to have been perfected last Saturday has gone by the board and the farmers of Pennington county have decided for the present they can get along without such an organization.

A short time ago a stranger hit the community and began to organize the farmers for the purpose of protection, securing a membership fee of $2.50 from each member. He succeeded in securing a few memberships and suggested that a meeting be called on some day when it would be convenient for the farmers of the locality to attend. Accordingly the meeting was arranged for Saturday and a large number of farmers were in for the meeting.

After waiting considerable time for the speaker and organizer to appear and after several attempts to locate him about the city, it became apparent that he was not to be found and evidently was working other fields. As a result the meeting terminated in a general discussion of present conditions and the advisability of organizing at this time. The concensus of opinion was against organizing at this time and the meeting dispersed without further action.

The most important part of the meeting was the discussion held by those present concerning everyday conditions and the best remedy suitable to apply at this time. Much good was brought out at the meeting and leads one to believe these meetings would be a mighty good thing for the farmers of the county to hold regularly. To get together in a body like the meeting of Saturday and discuss problems confronting the farmer is one that would certainly help everyone present and have the effect of helping solve many problems that the farmer is attempting to figure out individually. A meeting of this kind every month for the farmer of the county would in a short time prove to be a great help to everyone.

Giving Big Doll Away.

The Sapero Company are giving away a big doll on Thursday, Dec. 23, to the person holding the lucky number. With each purchase of $1 a ticket is given which entitles the holder to one chance. On the date above mentioned the person holding the lucky ticket will receive this big doll free of all cost.

Ways to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. A. Way left yesterday afternoon for Los Angeles, where they will spend the winter. They will stop over at Billings, Montana, Ogden points on the way visiting old time friends and acquaintances. From Portland they expect to make the trip via the automobile route.

Store to Close.

The stores of the city will be closed all day Christmas, but will remain open evenings on the 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd and 24th until 10 p. m. in order to give patrons a chance to lay in their needs before Christmas.

POSTPONE DRIVE FOR MEMBERS IN FARM BUREAU

IT IS THOUGHT AT THIS TIME THAT DRIVE WILL START IN A WEEK OR SO.

The drive for members in the Pennington county Farm Bureau which was to have started this week has been postponed on account of the inability of the state men who are to conduct the drive to reach this place on the date specified. It is expected by County Agent McCann that the drive will be started next week some time the exact date to be determined later.

The sentiment over the county in favor of the Farm Bureau seems to be growing more favorable each day and those best informed on the situation believe the drive will secure a large number of new members and will greatly strengthen the local organization.

Farmers generally are anxiously looking for an organization that will help them solve the many difficulties that at present are confronting the average farmer. In this respect the farm bureau stands alone and holds the undisputed attitude of helping the farmer and working for his interests only. Many other organizations formed for the benefit of the farmer have turned to politics in the past and practically discontinued their work for direct benefit to the farmers. The farm bureau is recognized by those best acquainted with the inner workings as being the only organization of a non-political nature that is doing everything possible for farmer.

Since becoming linked with the state and national farm bureaus, the local bureau is in a position to accomplish more for the farmers of Pennington county than heretofore. In this work they are to have the united support of the state and national bodies and will without doubt prove to be one of the most influential means toward bettering conditions for the farmer possible to organize.

First, membership in a large and strong strictly farmer controlled organization in your county.

Second, membership in an ever-increasing state clientelle of the county farm bureaus of your state.

Third, membership in a national association of federated bureaus of the states—31 states with a total membership in excess of 900,000.

Fourth, membership in non-political and non-sectarian associations which have for their prime object to propose the organization of the farmers of the United States for the advancement of the farming business thru a constructive program with reference to existing associated businesses and organizations that are necessary and lawful. To aim at making the business of farming better and surer, being free from uncertain and unsteady markets with selling prices governed by profitable cost of production sale.

Fifth, protection against exploitation of all undesirable stock salesmen who are peddling "blue sky." Warning and caution are essential, for the spirit of sound investment must not be ruined, since the healthy economical development of our state and nation depend upon it.

A School Party

Members of the high school and faculty enjoyed a party at the Auditorium last Friday night. A playlet was given and dancing indulged in. A burlesque orchestra was a feature of the entertainment and evoked much merriment. Dainty refreshments were served, and everybody present had a most enjoyable time.

POST-WAR ARMY IS MODEL, SAYS BAKER IN ANNUAL REPORT

ORGANIZED FOR QUICK EXPANSION INTO FORCE ADEQUATE FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Washington.—The post-war reorganization of the army marks a new era in the military history of the country, Secretary Baker declares in his annual report, as it provides an effective model on which great armies could be swiftly built in time of emergency.

Reviewing the military activities of the nation since 1776, Secretary Baker says that although the United States was "the most peace loving of all nations," it had been engaged in major domestic or foreign wars about one out of every four years during that period and that the military power of the country had been in active use in war or military operations of some kind about three out of every four years.

Need Army Model.

"It is apparent, therefore, that while we do not need a great standing army we must live in the world as it is while we struggle to make it what it should be," Mr. Baker says. "We must have a body of trained men large enough in numbers to be an effective working model upon which great armies can be swiftly built in event of emergency.

"A justice loving people may be forced by tragic necessity to resort to war, but it has no right to ask its sons to fight its battles outarmed and outskieled by an adversary."

Infantry Still First.

In studying the lessons of the world war the war department had proceeded on the accepted theory that the infantry remained the backbone of the army, the report said, although the importance of other arms of the service had been greatly developed by the swift developments of war.

"Profund and fundamental changes in armament were introduced and many of the instrumentalities devised are apparently only at the beginning of their development," said the war secretary. "The infantry itself is no longer the foot soldier armed with the musket, but the foot soldier armed with the long range, high power repeating rifle, the automatic rifle and the machine gun, which in some of its uses is analaous to light artillery. The advance of the infantry is no longer merely covered by protecting artillery fire, but the path of the advance must be cleared of obstructions and its position, once attained, must be protected by artillery of great power and extreme mobility."

Mr. Baker makes no comment on universal military training, a plan rejected by congress in enacting the new army reorganization bill but in reviewing the provisions of the new militar law, he says that one of the most important features of the legislation is the provision for a "constant and systematic relationship between the National Guard and the regular army."

This provisin, Mr. Baker declares, will do much to "prevent antagonisms which have in the past been the not unnatural but nevertheless unhappy characteristic of the relationships of the two forces."

Is a New Army.

"The army is essentially a new army," Mr. Baker continues, "not merely another army than that which existed prior to the war, but new in its attitude toward the country and the country's attitude toward it. The extent to which a new era has dawned for the army is shown by recruiting. The difficulty of securing the necessary enlistments for our small pre-war army had in great part disappeared and although the stimulus of active operations has now entirely disappeared the total strength of the army Nov. 3, 1920, was 215,067."

Mr. Baker declares that the one-year enlistment period authorized by congress has not justified itself and asserts that "from the point of view of the efficiency of the army one-year enlistment periods are of little value."

Educational Program.

The report reviews at length the new educational and recreational program established since the war and declares that "the time will come soon when the peace time army will be thruout an educational institution from which men will graduate better equipped to enter civilian pursuits and with a larger and firmer grasp on citizenship and its responsibilites and privileges."

The total cost of the war through the war department is placed by the secretary at about $18,730,300,500 and it is stated that in the liquidation of claims and contracts the department saved the government 87 per cent of the outstanding obligations at the end of the war.

Selling Surplus Stocks.

Discussing the disposal of surplus war stocks, Secretary Baker recommended that in the future the department's plans keep in mind an effort to have on hand at the termination of a war supplies of a character, so far as consistent with army needs, that could readily and quickly be absorbed into the country's commerce.

Declaring that he is happy to have to his successors in the war department the assurance that "in any national emergency they have but to use and direct the limitless capacity and willingness of the American people which spontaneously offers itself when a crisis comes," Mr. Baker concludes his report with a tribute to the navy and civilian war organizations for cooperation during and after the war, and declares that "in equipment, personnel and spirit the army of the United States today is an object of just pride to the country."

Bright Future Predicted for Edith May

Edith May, of Monroe, Wis., the winner of the salesgirl contest, is now in New York and in the limelight for the first time. The beautiful little country girl is 17 years old and, according to Director Welsh of the Mayfield Film Corporation has that "subtle something" that many screen beauties lack. She is shown before the movie camera for the first time.

PERILS GALORE FOR LOUIS L. COLLINS

The following interesting story of the experience of Louis L. Collins will be of interest to his many Pennington county friends, which was published in the Twin City papers recently:

"Louis L. Collins, lieutenant governor-elect, just can't go to Leech lake without having narrow escapes.

"You may, it will be recalled, he was a member of a party of duck hunters trapped on Bear Island by rapidly forming ice, the whole party finding it necessary to remain on the island for several days, waiting for the ice to become thick enough to bear their weight, with nothing between them and starvation except a few sacks of flour, several sides of bacon, 125 deceased wild ducks and half a ton of canned goods.

"This year Mr. Collins again visited Leech lake with a duck hunting party. When the cold wave came ice began forming rapidly while the lieutenant governor-elect and his guide were in a duck boat on a marsh. The whole lake showed signs of freezing over in a hurry and fearing a repetition of last year's experience, the party started for Walker, 25 miles across the lake, in a motor bot, battling scum ice to beat the final freeze up.

"For a time all went well. Then the inveitable happened. The cook's blanken caught in the mechanism of the boat's engine, putting the motor out of commission. For eight hours the boat drifted and rocked amid rapidly thickening ice floes, while the whole crew cussed and tinkered feverishly with the ailing engine. It looked as if the party would be left virtually without shelter to walk possibly for days until the ice should be firm enough to bear the weight of a rescue party.

"Just as all hands were abandoning hope, the motor suddenly started of its own accord and the party finally reached Walker at 11 p. m., a lumber boat breaking a channel ahead of them.

GIRL MAKES DARING PARACHUTE DROP

Miss Sylvia Hoyem, of England, recently staged an act in Denmark which made ten thousand people hold their breath, when she dropped over one thousand feet from an airplane by parachute in a terrific gale. She was fortunate to land in a swamp, which broke the force of the fall and left her uninjured. A few minutes later she continued her journey by plane to Copenhagen.

$12 MINIMUM WOMAN'S PAY BOARD RULES

After innumerable hearing thruout the state, after scores of working girls and social workers testified that a minimum wage of $15 is essential for women, women in industry are to receive only $1 a week increase, bringing their weekly salary to $12, according to the wage commission's decision at St. Paul last week.

This minimum of $12, however, will apply only to women working in towns of more than 5,000 population. The wage in towns less than 5,000 remains to be set. Members of the wage commission said the small town girls will know their fate within 60 days.

It is not believed that the latter will fare so "well" as those who work in the larger cities, as the cost of living is less in the smaller towns and the demand for increased wages was based on the higher cost of living.

J. P. Gardner, chairman of the commission, said the wage in the smaller towns will not be increased at all as it is expected the cost of living will be lower then.

Apprentices in the larger towns will receive $9 for the first three months, $10.50 for the second three and $12 after the first six. These less than 18 years old will receive $8 the first three months, $9 the second three, $10.50 the third three and $12 after that. Working women and minors in general will receive $12 from the start.

The present award will not be announced officially until a formal announcement is worked out by James E. Markham, assistant attorney general, Miss Eliza P. Evans, secretary, said. This is to protect the award from being attacked on the ground of its wording.

The award goes into effect 30 days after formal announcement and Miss Evans will try to have it announced on Dec. 5, the date on which two former awards were made, she said.

The present minimum wage scale of $11 went into effect Dec. 5, 1917, Miss Evans said. The scale before that was $9, which went into effect in 1914 she said. The commission was created by an act of the legislature of 1913.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE CLASS BEATS H. C. OF L.

That women's and misses' dresses can still be made at a reasonable price, is attested by the above picture of the four Austin, Tex., high school girls, in the domestic science classes, who have manufactured these clever house dresses at total cost of $2.35 each.

Five yards of cotton at 40 cents a yard was used in each garment, buttons and thread costing approximately 35 cents.

The retail price of a factory-made dress of this sort would cost at least five times this amount.

PACKERS, NOT MEAT RETAILERS, ARE TO BLAME FOR PRICES

SO SAYS F. O. SIMONSON, ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF MARKETING, AFTER INQUIRY.

Sioux Falls.—F. O. Simonson, assistant director of South Dakota markets, has issued a statement in which he asserts that the packers and not the retail meat dealers are responsible for the retention of high prices for meat.

"Since the statement made in regard to the wholesale price of meat on the Chicago market," said Mr. Simonson, "I concluded to make an investigation of the wholesale prices of meat of packers doing business with local dealers. I visited five big establishments and inquired as to why the price of meat to the consumer was not following the downward trend of the market. In each case the proprietor showed me the invoice of meat from the packer, and from an examination of these invoices I gathered that the fault lies not with the retailer, but with the packer.

"I intend to go out thru the country and see if I can learn more about the reasons for the wide gap between the prices of hogs at the Sioux Falls stock yards after they have been shipped in from the country and the prices charged to local dealers by the packers. In also intend to figure out whether or not the packers pay the farmers the same price for their hogs when they are brought to their plant in wagons and trucks as they would pay a shipper for his hogs brought in by rail and why."

Whole carcasses are sold to retailers at a flat rate of 14½ cents per pound for medium grade heifers, 14 cents for grass heifers and the prices of first class steers are higher, according to Mr. Simonson.

He also states that many hogs are bought out thru the country and that this would indicate that the stockbuyers' profit is also saved to the packers in their buying at the current rate. He expects to leave soon on a trip thru the state to investigate the complaints of farmers and consumers that somebody is getting more than they ought to and plans to lay his findings before his constituents upon his return.

FOR BALL PLAYERS

The historic "Good morning judge" will be literal for major league ball players for the next seven years at least. The new deal in baseball which resulted in the naming of Judge Landis of Chicago as supreme dictator in baseball—and his acceptance—makes this so. The two big leagues will attempt to settle all questions by club vote but when this fails, presidents of the league will go to Judge Landis

MONEY DOUBLES QUICKLY

Clifford B. Upton, who without question was the most productive of the government thrift experts during the world war days, declared recently that "the opportunities of this nation have been greater than any other nation ever knew, yet only 3 Americans out of every 100 saved enough to support them for the balance of their days without assistance from relatives or their communities." Upton continuing said: "To my mind the most important detail of the education of American young folks concerning the simple matter of thrift—and their elders need the teaching quite as much as they do, although I do not believe the habit, nothing more, can as readily be established among the older people as among the young, I hold no brief for anything but thrift.

"High wages, now, are being and have been spent on luxuries. That is silliness. As a matter of fact every time a man or woman spends $5 on a luxury he begins a process whereby five years from now he will have paid $10 for that luxury, and at the end of 34 years that luxury, long forgotten and never beneficial, will have cost him $20—four times as much as the original cost. The same money invested in a Liberty bond would be thrift.

"Invested in a luxury it is sheer waste. At 4 per cent money doubles in 17½ years, quadruples in 35 years and is multiplied eight times in 52 years. If I put $1,000 in my new born baby's name today and it is constantly invested so that it will draw compound interest he will have $8,000 when he is 52 years old. In the same 52 years $10,000 would grow into $80,000, a comfortable small fortune obtained without effort on the owner's part.

"The person, who, being young, wastes a single dollar, is wasting actually $8 that belongs to his old age.

"The greatest of opportunities now is before the nation to take advantage of the lessons which it learned during the great war. Will it take advantage of them? Whether it does or not will lie with the educators and the newspapers. 'Get the habit of saving' should be the American slogan.

"To achieve the habit one should begin as early as possible in life at the systematic process of laying away money. Psychology tells us that if one forms a habit one must never permit irregularity or interruption in the habitual process and it is very vital that this should be in the minds of those desireus of forming the habit of saving.

"If a young man desides to put $10 every month in a savings bank it is a very serious matter if he allows a single month to pass without so doing.

"Another very big element in the establishment of thrift is the determination that all one's interest earnings are reinvested for this means that one will draw interest on interest, which is the magic process of compounding. Few people realize the remarkable speed with which money will grow under the influence of compound interest after it has once been given a test.

"We have been talking much about the Pilgrim Fathers lately. If, when they arrived, one of them had put $100 at compound interest for the benefit of a child to be born in 1920, that child would have inherited a fortune of $18,000,000 at birth and that same $13,000,000 would have become $26,000,000 when that child was 17½ years old, that is 17½ years from today."

NOT WORTH THE CANDLE.

Harvey's Weekly: The gunning season in the eastern and middle states opened this year in characteristic fashion. The earliest items of news respecting it reported several fatalities from the "accidental" discharge of guns and the summary ending of the season by proclamation of the governor of Massachusetts on account of the number of forest fires that had already occurred. These episodes were only a few among many circumstances which raise serious questions as to the economy, the propriety and the practical common sense of maintaining the present game-law system in the densely populated parts of the country.

Every year sees deplorable loss of life or serious bodily injury of many persons, from what are ephemistically termed "accidents" in the hunting field. In nine cases out of ten these "accidents" are the result of ignorance or carelessness so gross as to indicate unfitness to be entrusted with firearms. The average so-called sportsman in the metropolitan district and elsewhere thru these crowded industrial and residential regions is a novice in the use of guns. He engages in the sport for only a few days in a year; not long enough to become familiar with his gun or rifle or to gain proficiency and confidence which are the best assurance against "accidents." It is a dangerous thing to permit any man who wants one to get a permit to take a shotgun or rifle and go out indiscriminately blazing away in a densely populated community.

As for forest fires, it has long been notorious—it has been officially reported in some states—that the great majority of them are started by hunters in one of three ways. Some are caused by bits of burning gun-wadding falling among dry leaves. Some are caused by gunners carelessly throwing down lighted matches from their pipes or cigars or failing to take proper precautions from their campfires. Some are deliberately started by gunners to drive game from covers into the open. From fires thus started, the country incurs every year the destruction of many millions of dollars' worth of property.

There are, of course, parts of the country, even extensive areas in some of the eastern states, where populations are few and game animals and birds are abundnt. Such areas might properly be designated as game preserves and under control of judicious laws for the conservation of game. But the maintenance of game for gunners in densely populated and highly cultivated urban semi-suburban districts is a foolish anachronism.

SLIGHTLY TWISTED.

Collected by the Outlook: My little nephew, age 5, indulges in some really topsy-turvy pronunciation. He calls me Mary Auntie, says casesuit for suit case and calls caterpillars pillarcats.

A woman, speaking of an occurance which came to her knowledge, remarked: "I don't blame me; I lay it all to propaganity (propinquity)."

A lady discussing the merits of a physician of her acquaintance, said: "He isn't a cancelating physician, he is just a general parctioneer."

We live on the same street as the George Washington university. A package came which did not belong to us. I asked the janitress about it and she said, "Oh no that belongs to the universe."

At an association meeting I heard one man speak of another as "not being legible for membership."

An old colored preacher admonished his flock at a burial, thus: "As we stand around this open sepulcher, let us all dissolve to do better."

A small boy, when asked how he liked school replied that he liked the teacher all right, but didn't like to have so many "stupefiers" (supervisors) coming into his grade.

Another boy said they all sat up straight when the teacher said "Cigaret" (sit erect).

A visitor to San Diego was impressed with the number of stores bearing the sign, "Ship Chandlier." Returning to his inland home he said he "never knew that ships used so many chandeliers. I saw ever so many places where they sold nothing but ship chandeliers.

THE KING TRADITION.

Kansas City Star: When Constantine, deposed king of Greece, talked grandly in his exile of "y people," Americans were disposed to smile. They took that at the traditional kingly style and pretension but attached no meaning to it other than as it seemed to illustrate the fugitive king's inability to grasp the fact that he was a back number.

But there was a fact in connection with the exile's hopes and patient waiting there in his Swiss retreat that Americans themselves didn't grasp. That fact is the inborn respect and veneration for the kingly office and person that mark indelibly so many of the populations of Europe. At the same moment when the Greek people were voting to recall Constantine to the throne, the Hungarians, despairing of getting a Hausburg back, were soliciting a Scandinavian prince to come and be their kin.

Kingship is the oldest institution in Europe, a fact to be remembered in any attempt to understand the politics of the old world. For a thousand years that institution has been upheld by the most powerful interests that go to the policies of nations, as well as by the most potent influences that shape the thoughts and inspire the beliefs of the masses. To millions any attempt even now when so many ancient thrones are down a king is a being to be spoken of with bared head. A superstition as fixed as a belief in witches still invests his name, person and office with a curious mixture of veneration and dread, especially for the children of the soil, and to a lesser extent to all whose fathers for untold generations believed that kings were the viceregents of the gods.

The processes that have gone to combat these beliefs are new, and have been under way so short a time compared with the centuries during which the kingly institution was taking root that it still reveals in many quarters a healthy and vigourous state.

The English, while they boast a democracy as complete as any that exists so far as government is concerned, retain kingship as a social if not a political institution. They abolished it once in a quarrel, neither side intended to go quite so far, but after a very few years of the substitute events thrust upon them they revived kingship with an enthusiasm, a devotion and an excess of loyalty that enabled one of the worst kings they ever had to give them the worst government they ever had. The French abolished kingship with a violence never before witnessed. They wrote it down in blood that kings were a violation of the laws of nature. They said the history of kings was the martyrology of nations. They said a good many more harsh things about kings—and then they took them back. They abolished and took them back with considerable regularity all thru the last century and within very recent times they almost took them back again.

Kingship, it is said, is adapted to the "genius" of certain of the peoples of Europe. It is a style of government that strikes the imagination. It has a certain splendor and glow, an appeal to the senses, a high pretension and a ritual that pleases and elevates the emotions. Beside it the republican forms look drab. Americans ought not to disregard it as of deep political meaning. Those peoples who want kings are going to have them at whatever cost. If it could only be ordered that the cost should fall upon them alone and not upon the world, probably everybody would be satisfied best kinds at $4.50.

REFORMS IN MARKETING.

Farmer and Breeder: Prices on farm products are shot to pieces—but they won't stay that way. Don't forget that for twenty years before the great war farm prices had risen proportionately higher than the prices of manufactured goods. Then for a year or two farmers prospered by selling at war prices the foodstuffs they had grown at pre-war costs. The war ended, foreign demand fell off, free trade brought in more agricultural products than we exported, we grew a bumper crop of corn—and the bottom fell out. The bottom is still out, but if the farmers of the country work together they can copper rivet the bottom so tight that it will stay put.

First, they must ask congress to pass the bill giving them the legal right to collective bargaining—the same right that congress expressly gave to union labor. Second they must devise an effective system of marketing their products than nation-wide co-operative movement built on the California plan. Third, congress must revise the tariff on imports of wheat, potatoes, corn, butter and all other farm products, giving sufficient protection to American farmers so that they can sell their commodities in fair competition with cheap foreign labor.

A program like this cannot be carried out in a hurry, for no great reform can be effected without laying a strong foundation of economic righteousness and building upon it with patience.

There are forces at work today that promise to bring about great reforms in the marketing of crops and livestock. If they continue to work and plan for the good of all, they will succeed.

Farming is the basic industry of the nation. It must be protected and encouraged, not alone for the good of those directly engaged in the business of agriculture and rural home making but for the welfare of the whole people, including those who live in cities and towns. The trouble with the demands of the labor unions is that too often they make no provisions that their employers and the general public are also served and protected.

No great movement for class betterment can succeed that does not take into consideration the rights of all. We believe that at heart the farmers of this land are inclined to ask nothing that is not absolutely right. All they want is some assurance that they will get a decent income from their labor, their investment and their risk.

THE PASSING OF NOME.

There are "has-beens" among cities as well as among men. Some towns, like many men, have their day, their little hour of success or more passing prominence, and then drop out of sight. Such a fate is particularly frequent in the case of mining towns, when the source of their existence is exhausted, and left desolate. Most of us had supposed that the Alaskan settlement of Nome was a "live" and permanent city of our frontiers, but Nome also is passing like many a mining town before it in this and other countries. According to report, the fall exodus leaves fewer than 200 people in the once famous beach camp where, in 1898—the year after the first Klondyke rush—15,000 people "surged, fought, swore and caroused."

The quotation is from the Spokesman-Review of Spokane, Wash., which relates: "With the sailing away of the steamship Victoria, bearing 250 Nome residents, most of whom announced their purpose never to return, the brooding spirit of melancholy came in with the long, long winter. Again the 'wolf's long howl' is heard on Unalaska's lonely shore,' and the little remnant of population is left with memories and disappointed hopes. Yet a few will cling to the deserted beach to the last breath of life, for such is the unfailing record of every famous camp, to live over again in memory thru the long Arctic night the stirring scenes of twenty years ago."

ONE OBJECT IN VIEW.

By Roger W. Babson: A man boarded a street car. His dog which had been with him continued to follow the car.

They had gone only a few blocks when another dog ran up and tried to start a fight. Then a third dog came, and then a fourth.

The first dog took no notice of the other dogs, but continued to follow the car that his master was in, paying no attention to anything but that car.

His one object was to follow his master and this he did.

When the car stopped and his master alighted, there was the dog almost immediately, looking happily into his face. He never thought, faithful creature, of the sacrifices he had made to follow and to stick to his master.

He only thought of his object and nothing else made any difference to him.

Singleness of purpose is a very necessary thing to win success or to attain one's desires.

The man who has an object in view and sticks to it is bound to succeed.

To succeed we must do one thing at a time and stick to the chosen work as faithfully as the dog sticks to his master.

Wouldn't Answer at All.

"The sportsman strode into a poulterer's shop and, with the air of a man who meant business, said:

"'Can you sell me a nice, plump pheasant?'"

"'I'm sorry, I have not a pheasant left, sir,' replied the shopman, "but here are some fine sausages that I can highly recommend. I'm sure your wife will be delighted with them.'"

"'Sausages be hanged,' yelled the sportsman. "How can I tell my wife I shot sausages?"

LARGE AMOUNT FOR HIGHWAY WORK AVAILABLE

BILLION DOLLARS FOR ROAD WORK AND MAINTENANCE IN THE COUNTRY.

Washington—Over a billion dollars is now available for road building and maintenance in the United States of which approximately $550,000,000 will probably be expended during 1921 according to figures compiled by the A. A. A. Good Roads Board.

State bonds for highway improvements aggregating $530,800,000 have been authorized during the past three years. During 1918 state bonds amounting to $60,000,000 were authorized in Illinois and $50,000,000 in Pennsylvania. The following issues were authorized during 1919:

| California | $40,000,000 |
| Oregon | 12,500,000 |
| Nevada | 1,000,000 |
| South Dakota | 4,500,000 |
| Wyoming | 2,800,000 |
| Maine | 10,000,000 |
| Michigan | 90,000,000 |
| Utah | 4,000,000 |
| Total | $124,800,000 |

Owing to the shortage and high price of labor and materials, to the lack of open top equipment on the railroads and to the condition of the bond market, very little money as yet has been expended.

During 1920 a total of $300,000,000 of state highway bonds have been voted as follows:

| Alabama | $25,000,000 |
| Idaho | 2,000,000* |
| Oregon | 10,000,000* |
| Colorado | 5,000,000* |
| Maryland | 3,000,000 |
| Minnesota | 75,000,000 |
| West Virgina | 50,000,000* |
| Missouri | 60,000,000* |
| New Jersey Vehicular tunnel | 29,000,000* |

*Authorized Nov. 2nd.

The Kansas constitution prohibited the state from engaging in internal improvement, but this difficulty was removed by the referendum at the recent election. That state may now pay one-fourth the cost of not to exceed 100 miles of road in each county and not to exceed $10,000 a mile.

The mount of bonds outhorized in the state of Virginia was not fixed in the referendum measure, but the legislature may under the law vote bonds to the extent of approximately $50,000,000.

A proposal in California increasing the interest on the state highway bonds from 4½ but not to exceed 6 per cent which will permit the state to dispose of the $40,000,000 in bonds authorized in 1919.

The $29,000,000 bonds authorized in New Jersey are for the purpose of paying the state's share of the cost of the vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river.

During the past year bond issues have been authorized in the various counties in the United States amounting to approximately $362,000,000. The amounts authorized in each state are as follows:

Alabama, $5,000,000; Arizona, $8,400,000; Arkansas, $2,400,000; California, $24,685,000; Florida, $1,515,000; Georgia, $15,245,000; Indiana, $7,373,000; Iowa, $18,475,000; Louisiana, $5,850,000; Michigan, $2,300,000; Mississippi, $15,700,000; Minnesota, $15,753,000; Missouri, $13,504,000; Montana $6,283,000; Nebraska, $3,000,000; Nevada, $1,200,000; New Mexico, $200,000; North Carolina, $13,609,000; Oklahoma, $1,159,000; Oregon, $9,696,704; Pennsylvania, $21,337,553; Rhode Island, $8,500,000; Tennessee $7,185,09; Texas, $86,023,000; Vermont, $2,766,000; Washington, $8,225,000; West Virgina, $7,-$39,200; Wisconsin, $36,545,000; Wyoming, $2,800,000; total, $361,971,857.

Officials of the Bureau of Public Roads estimate that there is still available approximately $160,000,000 of federal aid funds for allocation to projects in the various states. This, bond issues, from direct levies and other sources of state revenue, from county bond issues and appropriations will, it is estimated, make available for expenditure at present between a billion and a billion and a quarter dollars.

The funds derived from state and local bond issues, however, and that to be received from the federal government will be spread out over a period of years and it is doubtful whether much more than one-half of this vast sum will be applied to the construction of standard U.S. Government highway construction and maintenance of roads during 1921. Assuming that the expenditure will continue to increase at about the same rate as those for the past two years it is estimated that there will be expended for road purposes during 1921 approximately $650,000,000.

At the recent election bond issues were defeated in these states, Florida, $20,000,000; Montana, $15,000,000; Washington, $30,000,000; New Mexico, $2,000,000.

FARM LEGISLATION PROGRAM ADOPTED

PROFITEERING, GRAIN FUTURES AND FARM LOANS CONSIDERED BY CONFERENCE.

At a recent conference held in the Twin Cities by members of the state legislature, committees were named and started work at once drafting a dozen or more bills endorsed by the conference, which will constitute the most comprehensive and advanced program of agricultural legislation ever submitted in the state, though lacking some of the radical features of Nonpartisan league advocates.

To reach profiteering in all necessities of life, the legislature will be asked to create an industrial court, which will have authority over all unfair trade practices. This and some of the other bills endorsed are for the benefit of consumers as a whole. One will assert state regulation of coal docks, and another will provide state inspection for cold storage products after they leave the warehouses, to see that they are sold as such by the dealers.

Farm Loans Provided For.

One measure to be drafted will be an amendment to the constitution making it possible for the state to make loans on farm lands, under a system by which South Dakota has $29,000,000 in farm loans now outstanding.

Following the approval of bills to prohibit trading in grain futures and to force admission of farmers' organizations to membership in the grain exchanges, Senator F. L. Cliff attacked the federal grain grades and demanded restoration of Minnesota grades for buying grain at local points or selling it to be milled in the state. This came in connection with the proposed bill turning the state experimental mill over to the department of agriculture for tests of the milling value of wheat.

Subcommittees Named.

Subcommittees were named to draft the measures. The ten house members and four senators on the special committee are represented on the committees and will have help from the department of agriculture. The entire committee will meet later at the call of Chairman R. A. Wilkinson to pass on the bills reported by the subcommittees.

Mr. Wilkinson is exoficio a member of all subcommittees. Other committee members named by him to prepare the different bills follow:

Admission of farmers' organizations to grain exchanges, Senator F. A. Ganrud and Representatives A. E. Rako and W. I. Norton.

Prohibiting speculation in foodstuffs, Senator F. L. Cliff and Representatives O. C. Neuman and Geo. Wicker.

Profiteering legislation, Senator Cliff and Representative Wilkinson.

Providing for audit of co-operative associations' books and uniform accounting, Representatives Rako and Moen.

Improving the noxious weed law, Representatives Victor Holmquist and Rako and Senator Cumming.

Cold storage law amendment, Representatives George Wicker, John G. Gerlich and Hugh J. Hughes of the department of agriculture.

Inspection and regulation of packing companies, department of agriculture and Representative Wilkinson.

Amendments to department of agriculture law, Representatives Elias Nordgren and W. I. Norton and Senator Gandrud.

Coal dock regulation, Representatives Wicker and Gerlich and J. H. Hay.

Providing for state crop reports, Representatives Moen and Nordgren and Mr. Hay.

Amendments to the co-operative law, Senator Gandrud and Representatives Nordgren and Neuman.

BOOZE WOULD LAST 36 DAYS AT OLD RATE

KRAMER FIGHTS MOVE TO RELEASE STOCKS FOR PERSONAL USE.

Washington.—If all the liquor in bonded warehouses was put on the market, it would last only 36 days if Americans would drink at their old rate. There would be less than a half gallon of booze per person and in the good old days the people used to drink, in terms of straight whisky, at the rate of five gallons a year for each man, woman and child in America. At the present time there is in storage the following liquors:

| | Gallons |
| Whisky | 46,444,071 |
| Rum | 407,919 |
| Gin | 962,513 |
| Brandy | 830,396 |

Have Two Views.

Owing to the fact that this liquor could disappear as though it had flowed into a sewer, in so short a time, two views are taken by the prohibition enforcement division her in regard to the recent decision of the supreme court in the W. G. Stroud case, in which Street is permitted to withdraw his booze from a New York warehouse for personal use.

One view is that the internal revenue bureau should open wide the flood gates and let the booze be withdrawn from the warehouses as quickly as possible. The other opinion is that the bureau should construe the right to withdraw liquor for personal use in cases exactly like the Street case and draw the lines still tighter around the booze in the bonded warehouses.

The view taken by John Kramer is that the booze in the warehouses should not be turned loose. The ruling is now being prepared. That Kramer's view will prevail is a good bet.

The present supply of liquor will last only two more years at the rate it is being withdrawn under "strict enforcement." When the 18th amendment took effect January 16, 1920, there were 71,000,000 gallons of liquor in storage, and in less than a year 22,500,000 gallons have been drawn out for "medicinal, scientific and sacramental purposes." Only one distillery is now running.

What It Would Cost.

If Uncle Sam would let it be drawn out for beverage purposes, the owners would pay the government $310,783,264 in taxes, at the rate of $6.40 a gallon. But if the government refuses to let it be withdrawn for beverage purposes, the government will get $204,000,000 less, or about $100,000,000.

Many of the banks hold booze warehouse receipts as collateral for loans. There is probably less than $50,000,000 loaned on these certificates. If they were redeemed the money paid into the banks would relieve the present money stringency a little. But ultimately it would only mean there would be a shifting of money from the hands of those who drink to the hands of those who own the or hold the certificates.

BOOK A WEEK WILL BROADEN OUTLOOK

CAPITAL LIBRARIAN GIVES LIST THAT WILL BE A HELP TO ALL.

Washington.—It's far, far cry from the day an English printer hoped he'd live to see "a Bible chained in every church in England" to the American public library with its thousands of volumes.

When only one man in 10,000 could read, now book reading has become the national "indoor sport."

Miss Clara Herbert, assistant librarian of the District of Columbia public library, has assembled a short list of books printed within the last few years that will give the man or woman who reads them a new outlook on life.

They are books some folks would call "heavy." They treat of public questions, of the lives of great men, of the minds of the people and of the achievements of those who have pioneered or who are not pioneering the way to new goals of mankind. The local library can furnish most if not all of these books.

Have You Read These?

Following is Miss Herbert's list:

OLD SLEIGHS NEED NOT BE REMODELED

ERROR ON PART OF CLERK OF SENATE RESPONSIBLE FOR MUCH CONFUSION.

Senator O. A. Naplin has called attention to an error in an article published a few weeks ago in which it was stated that all sleighs used on the highways of the state after the first day of January, 1921, must be four feet six inches from center to center of runners. This would require the remodeling of practically every sleigh in the state and there has been much inquiry as to whether or not this would be necessary. In order to get the straight of the matter a copy of the law as passed has been secured from Senator Naplin. It is known as Senate File No. 31 and reads as follows:

"Section 1. On and after the first day of January, 1921, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation in the state to sell any new or first hand sleigh to any person or persons residing in the state for use therein, unless the runners of such sleigh shall measure from center to center not less than four feet six inches. And on and after such date it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to use upon any of the public highways of this state any such sleigh purchased at first hand, after said first day of January, 1921, unless the runners shall measure from center to center not less than four feet six inches."

This was the bill as passed, according to Senator Naplin. In engrossing the measure the clerk omitted the words "purchased at first hand," thus making it appear that the law applies to all sleighs, old as well as new, when no such provision was intended. The attorney general has held that where the legislature's intent is clearly shown an error on the part of those into whose hands the bill may subsequently fall can have the effect of changing its purpose. This simply means that old sleighs need not be remodeled to meet the requirements of the law, but that any new sleigh purchased after the first day of January must be four feet six inches from center to center of runners. The law makes it a misdemeanor for a person or concern to sell any sleigh not meeting these specifications after that date, but does not prevent anyone owning such sleigh from continuing to use it without going to the expense and trouble of having it remodeled.

PROBE BALKED COUNTRY-WIDE PRICE CONTROL

NEW YORK "BUILDING TRUST" QUERY TENDED TO LOWER PRICES, IS BELIEF.

New York.—Disintegration of the contractor-dealer-labor combines forming New York's alleged "building trust" has begun and prices of construction and materials have dropped since active warfare against these interests was opened, it was revealed by witnesses before the joint legislature committee conducting the investigation.

Increased productivity of labor also has been apparent since the investigating committee began exposing one scandal after another and the grand jury started returning indictments, employers' testified.

Mingled with these developments came evidence to show combinations for country-wide control of production and prices in marble, cement, limestone and other trades. National associations are throttling these industries, it was alleged.

Testimony that the cement trade of the country is under control of a national association and that there is a "very rockbound agreement" in the granite and marble industry was given by High White, vice president of the George A. Fuller Construction Company, one of the largest concerns of its kind doing business throughout the United States. He expressed the hope that he might soon see "competition" in building material trades and labor.

Collusion in bidding among contractors and dealers in brick, sand, marble and other building materials was intimated during Mr. White's testimony. A mass of estimates "unvarying in amounts" and with even the wording "absolutely uniform" submitted to the Fuller Company by the dealers in various materials, was offered in evidence. Correspondence of that company to various cement manufacturers asking direct sale of cement and replies refusing the requests also was submitted.

Mr. White declared his company, before asking for estimates from various dealers, knew there was "no use" in having more than one, but always held the hope that "a break" would come.

The cement men's national association has divided the country into districts, he testified. Manufacturers will not sell to dealers outside the sphere assigned them. Similarly dealers will not deal with contractors beyond their designated territory.

Certainly we have price control on cement and on most everything else. We have it on automobiles, machinery, clothing, shoes, flour, groceries, fruit both fresh and canned, and on most everything we eat, wear and buy. Prices controlled by the Big Interests and manufacturers on everything nearly except grain, meat and the farmers' products. The Farm Bureau will do two things ultimately. It will reduce prices for us on some things we buy and it will give to the farmer a greater percentage of what his stuff now costs the ultimate consumer. The prices and markets are controlled by the "higher ups." The only way is to get in and control the price on farm products. Then we will be in shape to barter with them for our part. The man who thinks the law of supply and demand operates in this trust ridden country at this time went to sleep with Rip Van Winkle and has not yet waked up.

"Now, Elsie, how many times have I told you not to ask Mrs. Gray for chocolates?"

"I did exactly what you told me to do, mother. I didn't ask her," replied Elsie. "I know where she keeps them."

FARM BUREAUS OF NATION START WAR ON PRICE DECLINE

President Jim Howard, of the National Farm Bureau Federation, invited the brains of the nation to attend the first called national convention of his organization at Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 6, 7 and 8. An attempt is to be made to overcome the low-price level for corn, wheat and cotton by a new marketing arrangement. One million three hundred thousand farmers will be represented.

The Community Service Pictures.

Reports have come in from some rural school communities that several of the parents are opposed to the showing of moving pictures in the rural schools.

Now, the main opposition seems to be based on the fact that the churches of Thief River Falls carried on a campaign against the showing of films in the city. This, I believe, is misunderstood, and by conferring with some of the pastors of the Thief River Falls churches, I am informed that the campaign was carried on against the showing of films on Sunday only, as this reduced church attendance.

Prof. A. D. Leonard, the manager of the Community Picture Service, has been a missionary or carried on mission work. He has also on several occasions filled pulpits in different churches. Therefore, this is sufficient proof that the pictures shown are not of an immoral character.

Some time ago he held one of his entertainments in the Swedish Lutheran church in this city. After conferring with Rev. Larson, pastor of the church, and finding that he had only words of praise for Prof. Leonard and his pictures, I feel that Mr. Leonard and the Community Picture service can be recommended to schools, teachers, pupils and parents of this county.

Mr. Leonard showed films to the teachers attending the Northwestern Educational Association at Warren. He gave a lecture on visual education at the Minnesota Educational Association convention at St. Paul. As near as I can ascertain he gave entire satisfaction.

The films he will show thruout Pennington county are in the interest of health and child welfare movements of the county. The teachers and parents are concerned about the health and welfare of the school child and in no other way can this better be brought home than thru these pictures.

Prof. Leonard is doing this work not so much for profit as the good it may do the schools as will be noted by the price of admission charged, 25c for adults and 15c for children. He is giving these entertainments with the approval of several of this state's most noted and able instructors. Several schools are placing their projectors or moving picture machines in their schools to better their system of instruction. The Thief River Falls schools have already one of these machines and are contemplating the purchase of a second one.

The teachers of the rural schools and myself are arranging for these entertainments. We have the best of terms—50% of the proceeds to cover the expense of prof. Leonard, 25% for the local place where the entertainment is held. If the series of entertainments prove a success, Prof. Leonard is willing to apply all of the proceeds toward the purchase price of the machine for the future use of our rural schools. His expenses, of course, must be paid out of the proceeds.

In visiting the several schools thruout the county and thru questioning several of the rural school pupils tell me they have never had an opportunity of witnessing a moving picture program. What a delight these pictures will be to those pupils. They will leave an impression upon their minds that they will never forget. Why do we not give these boys and girls a part of the pleasure that city boys and girls are enjoying continually? These rural boys and girls are just as bright, just as studious, and in most cases make just as great a success in this world as the city boys and girls. Let teachers and parents and the rural population in general join hands in giving them this one pleasure by taking them to these entertainments and by attending themselves. The another mission will have been performed by Prof Leonard, a mission for health and happiness of our rural school boys and girls.

Schedule of entertainments: St. Hilaire, December 7, 8 p. m.; Wylie, December 8, 2 p. m.; Sanders Dist. No. 140, December 8, 8 p. m.; Erie, December 9, 2 p. m.; Highlanding School House, December 9, 8 p. m.; Goodridge, December 10, 8. p. m. Mavie, December 11, 2 p. m.; Silverton, December 11, 8 p. m.; Thief River Falls December 12, 2 p. m.; Hazel, December 13, 8 p. m.

Sincerely,
G. M. GUNDERSON,
County Supt. of Schools.

LEGISLATORS AT WASHINGTON TALK FARM PROBLEMS

SENATE AND HOUSE COMMITTEEMEN HOLD SESSION TO CONSIDER RELIEF.

Washington.—Agricultural committees of the senate and house met in joint session the latter part of last week to consider possible relief measures for the agricultural situation. The meeting was in response to an invitation from the senate members.

Revival of the war finance corporation, further extension of credits to farmers, placing a tariff on wheat imports, utilization of funds in hands of the alien property custodian as a basis of credit to Germany and subscriptions by congress to 51 per cent of stock in companies formed for export business under the Edge law, were some of the measures which were considered.

Amendment of the federal farm loan act to permit short time loans on cattle and agricultural products and a resolution directing the commerce department to make immediately available reports on crop conditions in foreign countries as received from commercial attaches were also discussed.

Remember the two or three or four days before Christmas last year? Remember the worry and hurry? Remember the crowded stores? Remember?

If you do you will recall that belated gift buying isn't a pleasant task. You'll not have a cheerful recollection of that hustle-tussle time when it seemed as if everyone wanted to do a week's shopping in a day or two.

In this appeal to you---Mr., Mrs. and Master Shopper---we urge you to do your Christmas shopping NOW. Avoid the usual last minute crowds. Come early when selection is complete and assortments are choice. Come early when salespeople are highly efficient. Come early when shopping is truly a pleasure---during the forenoon if possible.

AWARDED $6,500 DAMAGES IN RED LAKE COURT

WILLIAM LEE, LIVING NORTH OF CITY, AWARDED VERDICT AGAINST R. R. ROAD

William Lee, a farmer living eight miles north of this city, who was injured in November, 1919, in a collision when the train on which he was riding was wrecked, and who brought suit against the Great Northern Railway Company for damages in the sum of $15,000, was awarded $6,500 by the Red Lake County District Court on Wednesday morning of this week. The account of the trial as given by the Red Lake Falls Gazette is as follows:

To date but one case has come to trial, that of William Lee of Browns Creek vs. Great Northern Railway Co. for $15,000 damages alleged to be due on account of personal injury. The jury Wednesday brought in a verdict for $6,500.

Lee was riding in the caboose of a freight train on the Great Northern between Petersburg and Minot, N. D., in November, 1919, and was enroute to Red Lake Falls. An extra freight came up behind and a rear end collision resulted and the case grew out of the injuries Mr. Lee received.

Mr. Lee took the stand in his own behalf and exhibited the coat he was wearing at the time of the accident, which coat was badly torn. Witnesses in his behalf were Dr. C. F. McNiven of St. Paul, Mike McCann, of Thief River Falls, who worked for Lee this summer, Pat Roark of Thief River Falls, Dr. J. C. Wilkinson of this city, and Nels Berg, one of the wrecking crew. Boughton & Boughton were the attorneys for the plaintiff.

The counsel for the defense were Countryman & Janes, and they introduced as witnesses J. P. Cameron, freight conductor; Louis E. Hunt, brakeman; Claude M. Thompson, fireman, Mr. Davidson, J. P. Shepler, and Mr. Sanrope, other railroad employes; Dr. Schimonek of St. Paul, railroad physician, and Dr. H. W. Froelich of Thief River Falls.

The trying of the case took most of Monday and Tuesday and the case went to the jury about 5 o'clock on Tuesday. A sealed verdict was returned at 9 o'clock the next morning and the plaintiff was awarded $6,500. The defendant asked for a stay of proceedings for 40 days, which was granted. The railroad company will doubtless appeal the case to the supreme court.

SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS NOW ON IN CITY AND ENTIRE COUNTY

Tuberculosis killed 2,224 men, women and children in Minnesota last year, the "white plague" taking its toll in every county but one, Cook county, which has a scattered population of but 1,840, according to official figures of the state board of health supplid to Christmas Seal sale workers here. The toll in Pennington county was 19.

Deaths resulting from this preventable disease were more than from any other cause, health experts emphasize. Pulmonary tuberculosis caused 1,861 deaths and 375 were from other forms of the "white plague." Eight deaths cannot be classified as to counties until further verification is obtained.

Hennepin county heads the list with 506 deaths, 465 of them in Minneapolis. Ramsey county is second with 294 deaths, 288 of them in St. Paul. St. Louis county is third with 217 deaths, 79 of them in Duluth.

Funds raised thru the sale of the Christmas seals and Health Bonds are used to fight tuberculosis and other diseases in every community in the state thru edgcation, demonstration and promotion of legislation. The bonds are the equivalent of seals in the amount of the face value of the bond. Seals are for use on all letters and packages mailed during December. The sale of Christmas Seals is now on in the city and county.

Neglecting a Patriotic Duty.

There should be some organization in the city of Thief River Falls willing to undertake effective steps toward the erection of some substantial memorial in honor of the boys from Pennington county who gave their lives in the service of their country and humanity in the late war. While we are all busy with our own affairs we should take a little time to consider our duty to our dead and thereby perpetuate their memories. We should not allow this matter to drop and now is the time to give it consideration. The funds could be raised and it is but a question as to who will do it.

TOURIST TRAVEL IN STATE NEXT YEAR HEAVY

COMMUNITIES OF MINNESOTA PLAN MUCH TO ATTRACT TOURISTS NEXT YEAR

Every county in Minnesota and practically every city and town in the state already is planning to take care of 1921 tourist travel and a number of cities—"with live commercial clubs" as several bankers have expressed it—will spend substantial sums for the convenience and attraction of automobile travelers.

Activities of the Ten Thousand Lakes association caused many business men to realize that Minnesota had only to advertise her scenic resources to attract tens of thousands of visitors to the state during the spring, summer and fall. Summer resort hotel keepers informed bankers this season that an impressive majority of persons who spent their vacations in Minnesota for the first time declared they would be regular visitors in the future. Many business men who motored thru the state during the summer returned to hunt or to fish.

This information was obtained during the past week from bankers in every section of the state by the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul for its weekly review. The questionnaires sent to bankers read:

"What plans are being made or have been made, for road building in your vicinity during 1921? Is there to be any trunk line or arterial work? What special plans are being made for 1921 tourist trade? Is your community establishing tourist information booths or other conveniences for automobile visitors?"

It was noticeable that activities already started were, for the greater part, in cities adjacent to summer attractions. Several hotels are to be built, others are to be enlarged and at least two that were burned this year are to be replaced by modern inns. Garage keepers in every city plan to establish "unofficial information booths;" chambers of commerce will have official headquarters for travelers and a number of bankers declared that their institutions might be regarded by strangers as places to seek information regarding local or county resources or regarding roads and tourist conveniences.

Some cities are erecting, or preparing to erect, advertising signs along important highways leading into their cities. Immediately after the first of the year, quite a number of chambers of commerce or business men's associations will hold meetings to consider effective programs to attract summer visitors and to provide conveniences for them.

St. Paul, as headquarters of the Ten Thousand Lakes association, already is doing some work on the 1921 campaign for tourists. Booklets are now being distributed in Iowa and Illinois and it is probable that with the betterment of roads next year, there will be an increased number of tourists visiting Minnesota.

Wadena—Tentative plans being made for road improvement and considerable work will be done on the Jefferson Highway. Plans regarding tourist travel will probably be considered after the holidays.

Fergus Falls—City council and the county fair association are planning to turn the county fair grounds over to summer tourists for camping purposes and to fit the same up with conveniences usually found in auto parks and camps. The grounds are within the city limits.

Duluth—Considerable state road work to be done. Plans for tourist activities will be considered after the first of the year.

Wheaton—Hotel accommodations will be improved. About $80,000 will be spent on Traverse county roads.

Bemidji—Birchmont Hotel, destroyed by fire in September, will be rebuilt. East and west road on Roosevelt highway to be completed and remainder of building program is extensive. Local chamber of commerce maintains a tourist bureau.

Pine River—There is a local free camping park on the river, which is a scenic spot and adjacent to splendid fishing. Scenic highway and other state roads will be in fine condition.

Crookston—There will be road work on two trunk lines and on other highways.

Mahnomen—Road surveys being made. Mahnomen will have adequate accommodations and conveniences for tourists.

[illegible] development noted is that most of the larger cities in the state are planning to maintain hands and to have concerts one or several nights a week. Newspapers are supporting the plan and in some places popular subscriptions have been started. American Legion posts also are active. Visitors made voluntary contributions last summer.

In this connection it was noted that community enterprises probably will take the place of carnival attractions which visited many Minnesota cities. Some of these organizations seemingly were satisfactory, but a majority of them were not.

It was noticeable, also, that a number of cities and towns have decided to wait until money conditions are more satisfactory before taking aggressive action regarding maintenance of tourist conveniences. If conditions are favorably readjusted, several chambers of commerce will build exclusive quarters and a portion of these buildings will be placed at the disposal of tourists.

BILL IS INTRODUCED BY STEENERSON TO REGULATE EXCHANGE

Congressman Halvor Steenerson on Monday, Dec. 6, introduced a bill in congress to regulate grain exchanges in the United States. It provides that every organization maintained or operated in the regular place of business or trading room for members only, in which the members sell or exchange grain for themselves or others in interstate or foreign commerce, or buys, or ships, or handles grain in accordance with the United States Grain Standards act and grades established thereunder shall be public markets and subject to the provisions of this act. It then provides that all such organizations shall admit organizations of formers organized on the co-operative principle to seats on the exchange on equal footing with other members and on like conditions. The attorney general is given authority to enforce complaints with provisions of the act in the United States courts.

WIFE DESERTER GIVEN CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD —MUST REPORT REGULAR

William Gregoire, who was arrested two weeks ago on a charge of wife desertion, has been released on probation and is to take care of his family and to report to the authorities at this place every two weeks.

It will be remembered that Gregoire, who was formerly employed as a barber in this city, was arrested and fined at Crookston for hootlegging and then disappeared, leaving his wife and three small children. They were finally located in this city and have been cared for by the city since September. Gregoire was arrested at Duluth by Sheriff LaBree and brought to Thief River Falls and tried. He wanted the trial postponed until he could hear from his former employer at Virginia, to whom he had applied for money. The postponement was granted until it was apparent no relief was to be received from outside sources and Gregoire was taken before Judge Grindeland and pleaded guilty to the charge of wife desertion. The judge released him on probation. He is now up to Gregoire to take care of his family and to report to the authorities every two weeks. In case he fails to live up to the requirements he is subject to a sentence upwards of five years for the crime.

CITY'S PIONEER BUSINESS INSTITUTION ANNOUNCES FIRST SALE IN HISTORY

The Oen Mercantile Company, one of the pioneer institutions of the city, are holding a big readjustment sale, starting Saturday of this week. In all their years of merchandising in this city, this is the first sale of any size ever conducted by this establishment.

The mammoth stock is to be placed on sale at rock bottom prices and it is the intention of the company to place bargains before the people of Thief River Falls and vicinity that will overshadow and eclipse all former attempts. The sale is to be conducted at a time that will prove most acceptable to the buying public. With the holidays in the offing and the buying that accompanies this season of the year at hand, the public will no doubt make this a practical Christmas in many respects and will consequently look for bargains all down the line. The announcement of the Oen Mercantile Company will be found in today's issue of The Tribune.

GREENBUSH BANK CLOSED—POOR COLLECTIONS

FAILS TO OPEN FOR BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY—CANNOT MAKE COLLECTIONS

The State Bank of Greenbush failed to open Wednesday for business, due to the inability of the bank to collect on outstanding paper, according to reports. The bank is in good condition other than the fact that it has too much paper outstanding at this time and because of the inability of the farmers to meet their notes, has temporarily closed. It is believed the closing will not be permanent and the bank will be open again in thirty days at the most.

C. J. Andersen, formerly of this city, is cashier of the bank. The depositors will not lose by the closing of the bank and reports show the bank to be in good condition other than the fact that cannot collect outstanding notes when due.

This is the first bank in Minnesota to be forced to close for this reason. North Dakota has a total of twenty-three banks which have been forced to close and Iowa has one.

START DRIVE FOR BUREAU MEMBERS NEXT WEDNESDAY

STATE FEDERATION TO HAVE MEN IN COUNTY TO CONDUCT DRIVE.

The Pennington County Farm Bureau will start their drive for members in the local bureau on Wednesday of next week, according to J. J. McCann, county agent.

Word was received from the state organization yesterday morning saying that there would be five men and possibly more here next Wednesday to start the drive.

A meeting is to be held on Wednesday afternoon in the farm bureau office at which it is expected there will be a large gathering of farmers. This meeting is to perfect plans and formulate ideas with reference to conducting of the drive for members and it is especially necessary that all farm bureau members who can possibly do so be present.

Considerable has been said concerning the coming drive of the farm bureau and the many benefits to be derived from becoming a member of the local organization, incidentally becoming a member of the state and national bodies. The Tribune feels, however, that all the many articles published before concerning the importance of the farm bureau have not by any means covered the many good points of the organization and it would be hard to do this as there are so many good points to cover that it is practically impossible to enumerate them all. It should be borne in mind, however, and this is the one important feature of all, that the farm bureau is primarily a farmers' organization, conducted solely for his benefit, and one that he should take a reasonable amount of interest in—sufficient interest at least to become a member.

The state federation, composed entirely of Minnesota farmers and business men, is recognized as one of the strong organizations of the country and is doing much to help the farmers of the state. A brief resume of the principles of the state federation may prove of interest to the farmers of the county in view of the fact that the local farm bureau is now a member of the state federation.

Under the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation the farm bureaus of the state, by means of their common interests, are united in the advancement of agriculture, with a definite program at all times in mind to make it profitable, permanent, wholesome and satisfactory.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation bands together the farm bureaus of the state for the purpose of comprehensive study of rural life for social, economic, financial, educational, sanitary and other needful purposes, with a view of securing permanence and consistency in rural progress.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation is also called upon to deal with all questions affecting the business and social conditions surrounding agriculture and its development as the one great basic industry.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation became a permanent organization on November 8, 1919. Previous thereto several meetings had been held and an organization committee at that time presented a draft of articles of incorporation, which were by delegates from practically every county in the state, adopted substantially as presented.

The affairs of the Federation are directed and controlled by the various county farm bureau associations, constituting the membership of the Federation, thru a board of directors consisting of one official representative from each such county organization and an executive committee of ten.

The first annual meeting of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation was held at the state capital on January 30, 1920. At that time there were a total of 44 county farm bureau associations that had made formal application for membership and which, at that time, were admitted as members of the state federation. Since then quite a few county organizations have sent in their applications, while in practically every county that has not joined, it has been decided by vote to make application before the first of next year.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation is purely representative thru the various county farm bureau associations, namely: (1) it represents every community. Each county farm bureau association provides for an organization that represents each part in the county and this organization

FINE CHICKENS ARE EXHIBITED AT PLUMMER

RED LAKE COUNTY POULTRY SHOW HAS LARGE NUMBER OF FINE BIRDS.

"I saw more fine chickens at the Red Lake county poultry show at Plummer today than I ever knew were in the world," said a Red Lake Falls man Wednesday night on returning from the second annual show held by the Red Lake County Poultry association last week.

There were more than 500 entries of all the standard breeds of poultry and there was not a scrub bird in the entire show. Three birds were disqualified when entry was requested. The birds are the property of some 59 exhibitors from Red Lake county, other Minnesota counties, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin. Exhibitors were there in person from Mahnomen and Bemidji and other points outside the county.

The show opened Tuesday morning in the Johnson building on Main street and ever since that time there has been crowing and cackling by the various fowl. There has been a good attendance and the officers of the association are more than satisfied with the results attained.

"The show is certainly a success, according to the comment of exhibitors and visitors," said President C. A. Krueger of Plummer, "and the association is well pleased with the interest that the show has created."

Prof. C. E. Brown, poultry expert from the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston, was the judge and completed his work by 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. President Krueger established a record by mailing out premium checks to all prize winners Wednesday night, a day before the show closed. To the best of our knowledge this speed record has never been equalled by any exhibitors association any time, anywhere, and Mr. Krueger is to be complimented upon his untiring labors in attending to this very important feature.

Miss Ward of the faculty of the Northwest Schgol of Agriculture at Crookston gave a chicken canning demonstration this morning. A. J. Kittleson, assistant state leader of boys and girls clubs, lectured in the afternoon on club work and at 3 o'clock the Red Lake culling team, championship winners at the last state fair, gave a culling demonstration The poultry association concluded the show by giving a dance in the evening at the village hall, but at that time no chickens with feathers on were admitted.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

"How many tragedies there are in women's lives."

"Ah, yes. If it isn't the wrong man, it's apt to be a double chin."

They were having a lesson in history at a public school. The teacher was examining the pupils on the subject of British sovereigns.

"Who came after Henry VIII?" asked the teacher.

"Edward VI," answered a pupil.

"Right. And who succeeded Edward VI?"

"Mary," answered the second little bright eyes.

"Correct. And who came after Mary?"

There was a puzzled pause. Then a pupil who had heretofore not contributed much to the program of the learning had an inspiration. He raised his hand and, being called on, answered triumphantly:

"The little lamb!"

The earth tremors to the southwest some days ago and the Everett True furniture breaking noise in a nearby city, the home of a great man, was not the result of a "touch" by any next friends, wet nurse or badge bearing emissary for big business in the interests of the Tribune. The earth tremors and lurid glow was not caused by the receipt of a letter to the effect that a remittance for service rendered during the campaign would be appreciated by—The Tribune. No, it was not caused by a letter written on behalf of the Tribune. No, not the Tribune!

CLOSED DOORS.

Necessity, we are told is the mother of invention. It may be. But be that as it may, the inability to secure booze has converted many a family cellar into a home brewery. Old recipes have been dug up, new ones have been studied out, and the work of brewing the home drink goes merrily on—behind closed doors.

Thirst is a mighty hard thing to buck. It gets you and tears you and demands insistently that it be quenched. And water, some say, is a very weak and unsatisfactory substitute. Yes, home is a great institution in this happy land of ours, and the brilliancy of its inventive faculties is never dimmed. Perhaps that is why they call it "home brew."

THAT NAUGHTY MEMBER.

Tongues often run away with people and sometimes they don't know when to stop. The dashing manager of a fashionable hotel in a great city allowed his tongue to become indiscreet when an opera singer claimed there was an error in her bill.

His unruly member applied certain epithets to her which gentlemen do not use in the presence of ladies. A jury awarded her $5,000 damages. The manager didn't have the five thousand. Now he is in jail and the singer is paying the county $3.50 a week for his board. She is happy, and hopes she will be permitted to continue her "charity" for an indefinite period.

An unruly tongue is a naughty thing to have. It is about as profitable to the average mortal as it would be the split tongue of a serpent. At least without the five thousand.

THEY WOULD, BUT THEY CAN'T

Japanese statesmen seem to be peeved. If they continue in their present frame of mind they may eventually become vexed. The Japs are determined to secure racial and social equality with us Americans. They are very persistent and even intimate unpleasant consequences if we don't open the door and invite them in. But most people of this country have other views. We are in the habit of choosing our associates, especially when we invite them into the family circle—the Aemrican holy of holies.

We are perfectly willing to exchange commodities with the Japanese. That is trade. But we are not willing to exchange daughters. That is a matter too close to our hearts to let policy interfere with our judgment. We wish them well and they have our good will in material things that are wise and just. But, much as they may desire it, they cannot have our daughters. And racial and social equality means nothing else.

OF COURSE—WHY NOT?

The women of this country are among the best dressed of their sex in the world. There may be other countries where more extreme styles are used and where a more spectacular appearance is noticeable, but nowhere is there to be found a more refined elegance in dress than among the American women. This applies to rich and poor alike.

In many of the foreign countries women of the poorer classes do not preserve the same neatness of inexpensive simplicity that we find among the less fortunate of our own land. With a very few exceptions, the American woman is naturally neat in her dress and personal appearance. She cannot be anything else. Sloppiness is foreign to her nature. The cheapest kind of a dress is invariably worn with a grace which is an inherent peculiarity of the womanly. Possibly our freedom from the old world caste may have something to do with it.

We have no blooded aristocracy, and we have no peasantry. Every woman has a legitimate right to consider herself as good as any other woman, though one may be reveling in the lap of luxury and the other feeling the pinch of poverty. The woman who aspires to make both ends meet today may be the wife of a president a few years hence. The door of hope stands open to every American woman, and hope begets pride, and pride demands neatness, cleanliness and purity. In dress, as in all other desirable traits the American woman has few equals and no superiors.

OBEYING THE LAW.

It is said that English citizens obey the laws of England much better than Americans obey the United States laws.

If you will take pains to investigate you will find that the English criminals are brought to trial almost immediately, at least the same year the offense is committed. You will find also that criminals being transported on England's railroad trains are hustled headlong thru the Pullman car window and evade recapture. England brings her offenders into court and gives them immediately what the law stipulates they shall have, so that wrongdoers in England have a most wholesome regard for the statutes.

Imposition of punishment on a criminal is the only weapon at hand for safeguarding the interests and lives of the public. The man with murder in his heart is often restrained from committing the act by the fear instilled by the punishment meted out to previous offenders. If the law has a reputation of calling the culprit to account without favoritism the law will be respected.

If a certain city has the reputation of being the most wicked city in the country. There is nothing in her climate or topography or any other natural law that would make the city a haven of criminals; the only immunity from the law's punitive provisions and what is true of vice and crime-ridden Chicago is true of other cities and sections. The trouble is not in the law itself and so it must be in the people chosen to enforce the law. If that is true, law-enforcement officials are less capable in America than in England. If we insist that we are just as capable, we must admit that we are less honest, which, in the light of some of the political machines that are built up and thrive thru catering to the criminal element, is an inevitable conclusion. When gambling is notorious and without any semblance of restraint, when houses of ill repute thrive in open violation of law and decency, when holdups wax fat and murderers escape, why should not criminals congregate where their friends are and laugh at the law? Small towns of the country are affected in a smaller way. What's the remedy? Choose officers who will enforce the laws!

Any rumor to the effect that candidates have been approached since election by the "next friend" of a newspaper soliciting a contribution for support and services rendered during the campaign, does not refer to the Tribune. The Tribune never has and never will be obliged to defend against such an accusation. Did you ever hear of such a thing? Have candidates been obliged heretofore to dig? Have we progressed to a point where the "touch" comes after election? Is the standard of ethics changing?

FALSE PRIDE; FALSE SELF-RESPECT,

Learning that there were many thousands of idle workingmen in Detroit, Mayor Cousins offered a thousand jobs at street cleaning and other municipal labor at what used to be a fat wage. Here is Couzens' report:

"Of 265 jobs at street celaning, paying $6 per day, and garbage collecting, paying $6.50, which the city offered, only eight were accepted. The unemployed apparently don't want jobs; they want positions, while the Detroit officials conclude that, after high wages in automobile factories, Detroit's 75,000 unemployed are 'too proud' to do ordinary public labor."

"It is well for mankind that men who formed a mighty army in a great factory, associating with better fellows than ever before, standing higher socially and in their own self-respect, should rebel in pure pride against rolling a garbage can or chasing street refuse in a gutter for $6 a day on any other wage."

And yet the farmer does exactly those same things every day in his barn and his feed lot and in his fields and he does them with pride and self-respect. Would it be well for mankind if the farmer refused to clean out the cattle stalls every day or twice a day? Would it be well for mankind if the farmer, thru pride, refused to trudge in mud and dirt behind the plow and cultivator, following the example of the city workman who declined to work on the streets?

It would not be well for mankind; mankind would starve from the face of the earth.

The trouble is that there is too much false pride and too much false self-respect among all the other false things in our cities. Hauling garbage to the incinerator and cleaning the streets is a good deal more important work, so far as humanity is concerned, than working in an automobile factory, and the men who do these jobs should have pride in the knowledge that they are accomplishing the necessary in this world of people.

SOUTH AMERICAN SENTIMENT.

The reports from South America indicate that the Spanish republics have joined the League of Nations not only because they regard it as a big and forward looking movement, but because they want protection from the Monroe doctrine. That doctrine was enunciated at a time when the principal European governments were land-grabbing imperialisms and it sought to protect Spanish America as well as the United States. But Europe is now respected as formerly and what many South Americans fear is the development of an aggressive imperialism in the United States itself. Even those who do not share this preposterous notion confess an unfriendly attitude toward the Monroe doctrine or its modern interpretations. They say Uncle Sam is its sole custodian, while it should belong of right to the two Americas, that this country claims the sole right to define it and that the definitions never fail to be in the interests of the United States. Insofar as the doctrine is for the protection of all they approve of it, but they are enormously irritated by interpretations which establish for the United States a sort of general protectorate over all of Spanish America.

Undoubtedly there have been interpretations in later times that furnished basis for this view and the more our government tends to assume the position of a sort of paramunt chief among American republics the more popular the Monroe doctrine will become, particularly after the leading southern republics gain largely in population, wealth and power. There is no real conflict between the League of Nations and the Monroe doctrine as originally defined, but the popularity of the former and the unpopularity of the latter in South America is a development which our statesmen may well gravely note. Even if one administration at Washington could bind its successors, an exact definition of the modern Monroe doctrine might be difficult, but there is obvious need of an effort to make that doctrine more acceptable among Spanish Americans.

Some of our Democratic friends claim the League of Nations is a "going concern." At the rate nations are withdrawing from it or threatening to withdraw, it will soon be gone.

"BLUE SUNDAY."

Congress is to be urged to pass a law prohibiting business operations of every kind on Sunday. That this would do injury to the public health is obvious, it being sufficient to mention in this connection the single example of the non-delivery of milk needed daily by infants and the population generally. The avowed objects of the movement go even farther than the called-for law and propose a Sunday barren of all afternoon air-taking, recretion absolutely essential to millions who work uninterruptedly thruout the week. That some representatives of the churches do not approve of extremes in this matter is shown by the remark of Dr. Manning of Trinity church, New York, that the mistaken severity of New England's Puritan ancestors in regard to Sunday was responsible for much of the later laxity in the observance.

Bishop Berry also seems to think that the Lord's Day Alliance has gone too far in its campaign to enforce Sunday observance, for he gives expression to doubt as to whether congress ought to attempt to make regulations for the whole country. "It seems to me," he says, "that this whole question is a matter for state regulation." Presumably he means regulation by members of the state legislatures, but in such a matter affecting every individual the majority sentiment of the people themselves should rule. State legislators may be prodded and frightened by lobbyists until they vote contrary to their convictions. The only way to ascertain the real sentiment of the people is at the polls and thru the medium of the secret ballot.

The extremists need to be reminded that the "blue Sunday" of the Puritans was a new thing in the Christian church and a return to the rigid ideas of the Jewish sabbatarians who several times took issue with the Lord Jesus Christ in this connection. John Knox once called on John Calvin on a Sunday and found him playing bowls. This was before any of the Puritans landed in New England, enacted their "blue laws," and invented Thanksgiving as a substitute for Christmas, which latter, the greatest of all days in the Christian calendar, they refused to observe because English jollity at Christmas time had offended them. It should be worth while for the modern extremists to recall that a Pharisee once complained that the Saviour had healed the sick on the Sabbath and that "the Lord then answered, him, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox from the stall and lead him away to watering?" It is even related how the Jews "sought to kill Him" because "He had broken the Sabbath." In answer to the complaint that the disciples had plucked ears of corn on the Sabbath, Jesus said: "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." The new Testament makes nothing more clear that a real "Sabbath" or real worship is a thing of the heart and not a matter of the forced external observance of man-made restrictions run to extremes.

Hazel Senate.

Hazel Senate was born at St. Hilaire, Sept. 1, 1901, and passed away at the Oak Park Sanitorium Dec. 2, at the age of 19 years. Since the death of her mother, her father and a brother having gone before, she made her home with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Nordlum, of this city. Hazel had a kind and pleasant disposition and had won many friends. Thru faith in Jesus the Saviour, she met death without fear. As long as health permitted she was a faithful worker in the Swedish Mission Sunday school. She leaves to mourn her loss her grandparents, her sister, Myrtle, and an uncle, Walfred Nordlum, besides other relatives and friends. The funeral was held last Saturday, O. J. Lundell officiating. A trio from the Swedish Mission church sang two impressive songs. Interment was made at Greenwood cemetery.

selects its official representative in the state federation. (2) It represents all agricultural interests. The members, officers and directors of the various county farm bureaus include individuals directly interested in agriculture and all are united in the advancement of agriculture economically, educationally and socially, with the one main object in mind of making agriculture permanent and profitable. (3) It represents the various agricultural organizations. The farm bureaus do not aim to supplant any other organization. They include among their members representatives of all farm organizations. The federation encourages community work and co-operation, the development of farming, the betterment of country life and the general advancement of agriculture.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation is not a political organization and does not deal with nor take part in partisan politics, believing that more can be accomplished in serving and promoting the agricultural interests, most vital to the welfare of the state and nation, by united action of all concerned on measures of common interest regardless of factional or political differences.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation depends for its strength upon the kind of support given to it by the local organizations and the kind and quality of co-operation it receives from the various agencies interested in the welfare of agriculture.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation and the various county farm bureaus represent only a nominal investment on the part of any one individual. The federation itself is not and by its articles of incorporation cannot engage in a business for pecuniary profit. From one-half to two-thirds of the necessary finances in support of the county farm bureaus come from public funds and none of it goes to the federation. The federation depends entirely upon its support from the funds provided by the farm bureau membership fees, of which it has received to date not to exceed 80c per member. While many individual business corporations are spending millions in promoting their interests, the future of the federation depends upon the investment on the part of those interested in and dependent upon agriculture more commensurate with such interest.

A YOUNG MAN SAID:

Some days ago several young men were talking at a hotel about high prices. One of them said:

"A dollar is worth only 30 cents now-a-days. I can't see why the bankers are telling us to save it—it's not worth saving. Just as well blow it in at once and be done with it."

An older man listened to this talk for a few minutes and then he said:

"Boys, I want to remind you that money is worth as much now as it ever was if you save it. It is cheap only as you spend it while prices are high.

"Your banker urges you to save all you can now because he knows prices will not always be so high. He knows that your money in the bank will grow larger all the time and that some day you will be ready to handle important business matters for yourselves."

are not an experiment. Cooking authorities and myriads of America's good housewives enthusiastically endorse them. Cooking by steam "under pressure" brings out all the flavors and juices and makes all food, even toughest meats, tender and delicious, in ½ the time, with ½ the fuel. Positively will not scorch or burn.

Think of the hours of kitchen drudgery it saves, to say nothing of fuel—think of cooking onions or cabbage and having no odor in the house.

We want to show you this wonderful necessity for every home and ask you to come in the first time you are down town. We will send one on approval.

IMPORTANT BILL INTRODUCED BY STEENERSON

INVESTIGATION INTO FOOD TRADING IN WHEAT AS ASKED FOR BY CONGRESSMAN.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson has introduced a resolution in congress directing the Federal Trade Council to investigate the facts relative to alleged violations of the anti-trust laws resulting from the operations of foreign governments in the grain markets of the United States.

This bill was referred to the committee on the judiciary and ordered printed and will in all probability receive early attention. The bill in full is as follows:

Whereas, Julius H. Barnes, chief of the cereal division of the United States Food Administration, and president of the United States Grain Corporation, in a recent statement before the committee of investigation of the American Farm Bureau Federation, among other things, said:

"Not one of the importing countries of Europe has been able to return the overseas grain trade to private merchants. Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal—all of them make their overseas purchases thru official agents whose buying policies are influenced by financial or other home considerations which may, and often do, entirely defeat the ordinary considerations of supply and demand alone. I emphasize again that we must view their problems with great sympathy and aid their solution with great patience. Nevertheless it would be unfair to our own people not to point out how control of demand by these governmental policies affects America.

"For instance, the largest overseas buyer, whose normal requirements run to practically one-half the overseas purchases of wheat, has bought not a bushel of America since July 29—over three months ago—their policy directed by governmental consideration which would not have affected the usual import merchants abroad. They have abstained from purchasing during the period of crop pressure here and in Canada. Fortunately there has not been concerted action among all the governments and other importing countries have continued current purchases to a large extent. This particular importer has been able to so abstain because of large purchases made in America last May, June and July, providing an enormous hinterland stock which has carried them thru these months and may for some time longer. This is a total deflection of the operation of supply and demand as usually interpreted by commercial judgment. The merchant opinion of the world, freely operating, would never have dared accumulate such a supply of high priced wheat and there would never have been thus established the price level recorded last May and June, for nothing in the usual factors of supply and demand justified such urgent purchasing.

"Its harm has been two-fold. This inordinate buying last spring, at a time of railroad congestion, which hampered the usual marketing that the price might have attracted, created a price level in America that was disastrously disturbing to our growers. To the price paid at that time may be attributed more than to anything else the confident and misleading prophesies of a high wheat price level for this 1920 harvest, with the resulting bitter disappointment.

"This over-accumulation abroad of stocks from the old crop has been especially harmful because it resulted in the withdrawing from the market during crop-moving pressure of a large part of the usual buying which would have cushioned the decline in wheat, perhaps inevitable, along with the downward tendency of all commodities.

"These accumulated stocks may perhaps suffice to carry that largest consumer into the new movement of Argentine, Australian and Indian wheat.

"Already the purchases of the British government for shipments from Australia and India during the early months of this coming year are being consummated at a price level 25 cents below the present level of United States and of Canadian wheat. Moreover, these very sales typify the deflection of usual commercial bequiles these sales are made preferably to the British Empire and its allies by official agencies or colonies, themselves part of that empire, and giving preferential contract relations to the mother country.

"If this condition of government selling and buying promised long to continue, one could not, I believe, in simple justice do otherwise than urge the creation of a government agency to protect our own producers. The injection of government into business is most undesirable and only justified when our producers have been deprived of the usual protection of free competition. Fortunately it is very certain that Great Britain will in the near future dissolve its government agency and return to its import grain trade to merchants, and this example would probably be quickly followed by other governments as well.

"I wish here to make clear that I have no forecast as to whether this means higher or lower prices. I only wish to emphasize that normal trade judgment, the weighing of influences of supply and demand, has been measurably suspended by arbitrary government action and that current prices which should be made by the play of individual competitive judgment everywhere in the world are not fully made in that manner at present.

"It is manifest then, that under present conditions, supply and demand pressure do not freely counteract each other in the normal manner. Whether these obstructions have sustained the price level or depressed it may never be conclusively shown. If the period of foreign government control and influence or price is soon to cease, we may better bear this situation temporarily as an unavoidable step in re-establishing the normal operation of world trade and commercial exchanges. A measure of temporary injustice to be borne in the process of reinstatement of sound trade methods would be better for us than to inject, with resultant delay

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING IN THIEF RIVER FALLS SHOULD BE EASY TASK

The stores of Thief River Falls have beckoned in gala holiday attire many and varied are the practical and beautiful articles displayed for the holidays.

The assortments in this city are as large and complete as will be found in towns many times larger and the merchants of the city have taken extra pains to see that only the most desirable of merchandise is offered.

Then the many reduction sales before and during this time are also a help to the thrifty shopper and are helping a great many people to reduce the cost of gift buying very much. The store of this city have been the first in the Northwest to offer price reductions and as soon as it became apparent that there was to be a decline in prices the merchants of this city were the first to announce radical price reductions. Many other towns in the northwest are now following their lead, but did not get in on the ground floor as quickly as the home merchants.

All this coupled with the enormous stocks to be found in the stores of this city will doubtless have its effect in drawing an enormous holiday trade to Thief River Falls.

NOW CUTTING SEASON'S SUPPLY OF ICE---GRADE NOT VERY SATISFACTORY

The Red Lake Ice Company started cutting ice yesterday for the first time this season. The ice is not a very high grade and only measures about seven inches in thickness. The company say they will do all possibility be compelled to wait until later in the year when the ice is thicker and will put on an extra large crew to get the work thru with in time.

The ice usually cut by the company is from thirty to thirty-four inches in thickness, but owing to the mild weather this section of Minnesota has been enjoying the ice has not frozen very thick, and for this reason has retarded the company in laying in the season's supply.

The Red Lake Ice Company has five storage houses at this place and the usual amount stored for a season's use by the company is three hundred tons. The present year the company ran out of ice and were compelled to go on the market to take care of their customers. This immense amount of ice taken care of a great many towns in this section as the company ships ice to many different points.

The company usually has all five houses well filled before this time and unless colder weather sets in they will have a hard time in securing ice this season for re-store. However, it is more than possible that there will be plenty of cold weather later on and the company will have no difficulty in finding ice of this year's crop before delivering time.

FARM BUREAU DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS ON

MEETING TO BE HELD TOMORROW AFTERNOON IN FARM BUREAU OFFICE.

The drive for members in the Pennington County Farm Bureau will start on Wednesday of this week. Organizers from the state federation will be on hand to conduct the drive, assisted by local men.

Wednesday afternoon there is to be a meeting in the offices of the farm bureau and it is hoped as many farmers as possible will attend the meeting. The meeting is called for the purpose of perfecting plans for the drive and it is the desire of the local bureau to put the drive over in the shortest time possible and to have the assistance of every member in the county to this end.

The work of planning a drive of this size is no small undertaking and calls for the united co-operation of every member in the county. No one will be overlooked in the drive and from all reports there is every reason to believe the drive will be highly successful and many new members will be added to the local organization.

J. J. McCann, county agent, feels that the drive in the county should net at least three hundred or more members. There are approximately that number already belonging to the farm bureau and since the local organization has become affiliated with the state and national bodies it is thought the interest will be increased in the local bureau. At any rate there is every indication of a successful drive and the solicitors will find a great many of the farmers ready to join and to help give this worthy organization a boost.

Here are a few reasons why every progressive farmer and everyone interested in agriculture should join the farm bureau:

The farm bureau furnishes and provides: (1) Membership in a large and strong organization in your county, controlled by those dependent upon agriculture. (2) Membership in an ever increasing state federation of county farm bureaus (membership therein now number approximately 20,000). (3) Membership in the national federation of the federated bureaus of the several states, which organization now has a million members and in the final analysis is the national voice of agriculture. (4) Membership in a non-political association which has for its aim the study of the farming business. To make it free from being uncertain and to make it more satisfactory as well as profitable. (5) Protection against undesirable stock salesmen who are peddling "blue sky." The federation is for sound investment and saving and money making but those who try to make their living off the people and the farmers by selling stock in worthless companies will find it impossible to do so if the matter is taken up with the state federation.

Protzellers Home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Protzeller and children returned home from Chicago yesterday morning, where they have been forced to stay for some time on account of the illness of their daughter, Jane. The family were visiting Mr. Protzellers people in Pennsylvania and on the return trip were forced to stop at Chicago due to the illness of the daughter. It will be good news to the many friends of the family at this place to learn that the daughter is out of danger and will soon be in good health again.

Choirs to Give Joint Recital.

The choirs of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches will give a recital at the Methodist church next Sunday evening under the direction of Mrs. L. Fisher. The two choirs are practicing diligently for this occasion and lovers of good music will do well to attend this service. The two churches will unite in services that evening. Just what the musical program will be is not known at this time, but it is assured it will be of a very high grade and lovers of music will do well to attend the services.

DRIVE FOR FUNDS TO RELIEVE STRICKEN EUROPE STARTS SUNDAY

A drive for funds to aid the poverty stricken children of eastern and central Europe is to be conducted in Minnesota and the drive for funds will start in this community next Sunday. A. S. Sapero of this city has charge of the drive and he will appoint workers to make a house to house canvass next Sunday. There will also be others appointed in the outlying districts to look after the soliciting of funds for this cause.

Herbert Hoover, who is in charge of this drive, says in part concerning the conditions in Europe:

"Three and one-half million children in eastern and central Europe have no alternative to disease between now and next harvest except American aid. For months, because the needy were so numerous and the available funds so limited, these most helpless sufferers in the track of war have been admitted to American feeding stations only if tragically undernourished, and have received American medical aid only if desperately threatened by death from disease."

The drive for funds to help relieve these conditions will be made in all parts of the United States and it is the desire of those in charge to make the drive a consorted one and to wind up the solicitation of funds in short order.

THIRD NUMBER LYCEUM COURSE TOMORROW EVE AT THE AUDITORIUM

One of the best entertainments of the year is scheduled for this city on tomorrow evening (Wednesday) when Dr. J. Q. Robinson appears as the third number on the Lyceum Course given under the auspices of the Women's Club.

The subject of Mr. Robinson's lecture is "The face at the Window." This lecture receives its title from one of J. N. Darling's cartoons picturing Bolshevism as a tramp peering into the window of a workingman's home, where the mother and children cower in fear of him.

Dr. Robinson has crammed the results of a full life into this lecture. Contact with men and women of all classes, brilliant lecture tours from coast to coast, have recently been followed by a long period in Washington, during first hand information on matters that deal with the present unrest. Some surprising worth while things are in store for those who attend this number.

The lecture is to be given at the Auditorium and the advance sale of tickets will be at Larmbert's Drug Store.

Masons Elect Officers.

Northern Lodge 326, A. F. & A. M., held their annual election of officers last evening. The officers elected were are follows: Worshipful Master, O. E. Berge; Senior Warden, Ray Johnson; Junior Warden, Ray Spencer; Secretary, H. C. Durun; Treasurer, C. L. Hanson. The Masons and Eastern Stars will hold a joint installation of officers on Jan. 3rd.

Mrs. C. M. Adkins Very Ill.

Mrs. C. M. Adkins is critically ill at the hospital in this city and small hope is held out for her recovery. An operation was performed yesterday afternoon, from which she rallied in good shape, but reports this noon are not very encouraging.

Special Meeting of Elks.

There will be a special meeting of Thief River Falls Lodge 1308, B. P. O. E., on Thursday evening at the Masonic Hall at 7:30 sharp. The receiving and balloting on applications will be the principal order of business and it is requested that all members be promptly on time.

ELK DANCE ON THE SEVENTEENTH TO BE THE BIG EVENT OF YEAR

Friday evening of this week will be a gala occasion for all members of the local order of Elks and their families.

The lodge will stage an initiation at the Masonic Hall and later a dance at the Auditorium will be held.

During the initiation the ladies will meet at the Auditorium where the earlier hours of the evening will be spent with cards and music. Following the initiation the men will adjourn to the Auditorium and the big-gest dance of the year will be under way.

The committee in charge of arrangements have put forth considerable effort to make this one of the really bright affairs of the season and every indication points to their success. The large hall will be appropriately decorated and everything necessary for a good time will be taken care of well in advance.

The committee announces everything in readiness and it is expected there will be a large attendance. This includes all members of this lodge, no matter where they live, and from the reports coming in there is to be a large attendance from out of town.

ASSESSMENTS ON SEWER MAINS RATHER HIGH

COMPLETE AMOUNT MUST BE PAID IN ONE YEAR—PARTIAL LIST OF ASSESSMENTS

The Tribune is publishing a list of all assessments on sewer and water connections which are to be levied against the property and which must be paid in full in one year.

This feature of the assessments will be a surprise to a great many people as the idea has been somewhat in the air as to when the assessments were to be paid and the percentage each year. The law is that the assessment must be paid in full during the year and the first half to be paid before June 1st and the last half before November 1st.

In a great many cases this will prove a hardship. The assessment will be included with the taxes on all real estate and must be paid in the same manner as the taxes. In some of the assessments the amount is quite large and added to the regular taxes will make the payment for the year of 1921 a heavy one.

Below is given a partial list of the assessments. The remainder will be published in Friday's issue.

COMMISSIONERS ORDER IN TWO COUNTY DITCHES

DITCHES 68 AND 70, TOTALLING COST OF $130,000, ORDERED BY COUNTY BOARD.

The board of county commisioners, in session the 10th of this month, passed the installation of county ditches 68 and 70, and work on them will be started no doubt early in the spring.

The installation of these two ditches will entail an expenditure of approximately $130,000. Ditch Number 68 will cost around $100,000 and Ditch 70 will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000.

The location of Ditch No. 68 is to commence at the north quarter section 26 in township 154 north of range 44 west, thence running south along the quarter line thru section 26, thence west one-half mile between sections 26 and 35, thence south along the west edge of section 35 in said township and range, and sections 2, 11, 14, 23 and 26 in township 153, range 44, to a natural watercourse in northwest quarter of section 26, then in a southeasterly direction along said watercourse to the north and south quarter line thru said section 26, thence south along said quarter line in sections 26 and 35 to an outlet in county ditch No. 1, then deepening and enlarging said outlet for a distance of about two and one-half miles.

The main ditch with laterals will run thru sections 34, 35, 36 in township 154, range 44, section 31 in township 154, range 43, sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 34, 35, 36 in township 153, range 43, and sections 1, 2 and 12 in township 152, range 43.

Ditch No. 70 will begin at a point 30 feet west of the quarter section corner between sections 19, township 154 N. of range 43 W., and 24 of said township and range 44, thence on a line parallel with the section line 30 feet north and 30 feet west of the corner of section 19, 24, 25, and 30 of said township and ranges 43 and 44, thence east parallel with and 30 feet north of the section line to a point 30 feet north and 30 feet west of the common corner of sections 19, 20, 29 and 30, township 154 north of range 43 west, thence south parallel with and along the west line of section 29, 32 and 33 of said township and range, thence south parallel with and 30 feet west of the section line to a point 30 feet north and 30 feet west of the common corner of sections 32 and 33 aforesaid and 4 and 5 of township 153 north of range 43 west, thence east parallel with and along the channel of Pennington county ditch No. 10 to a termius in the Red Lake river.

The installation of these two ditches will benefit a large area and will develop some of the finest agricultural land in the county. The objectors to the petition have all been heard and the board has fully decided to let the contracts for these two ditches and in all probability they will be started early in the spring. Of course there is the possibility that an appeal to the district court may be taken.

Father Dies.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Connell returned this morning from Luverne where they were called by the death of Mrs. Connell's father, Dr. A. E. Spaulding, one of the best known physicians in southern Minnesota.

Masonic Dance Well Attended.

The Masonic dance and card party at the Masonic Hall last Friday evening was one of the pleasant social events of the season. The hall was well filled and everyone enjoyed a most delightful evening.

Too Much Peruna.

Ole Naverson of Highlanding, answered a summons to appear in Municipal court this morning and pleaded guilty to assaulting Lawrence Halvorson, also of Highlanding, on the nose. The two men became engaged in an argument and as Narveson had recently tanked up on Peruna, he was feeling extra good and took the liberty to land on Halvorson's nose. He pleaded guilty in court and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $14 in all.

Mrs. J. B. Carlstad, residing near Germantown, was a business caller in this city on Saturday afternoon.

A "YANKEE PERICLES."

A correspondent of the New York Tribune urges the Harding administration to devote large attention to the fine arts, now that Europe is prostrate and America alone can afford to do much in this line. He thinks Mr. Harding can make himself "a kind of Yankee Pericles," and at the least ought to establish a department of fine arts to centralize the art of the United States, "drawing, in the course of time, into its enchanted circle the muses of Canada and Spanish America." A kind of moral millenium based on the establishment of world-peace thru a league of nations has been urged, but scoffers are riddling its attempted beginning with their rhetorical bullets; therefore let Mr. Harding devote himself to the making of an artistic millenium.

The author of this engaging suggestion seems to forget that to the average American art is a sort of a joke for which a few "highbrows" are responsible. In the time of Pericles fostering the arts was a part of a statesman's business because the Athenians were interested in art and in athletic games even more than in war or in commerce. With Americans, on the other hand, commerce or business is everything. The average American, intersted in little besides making a fortune for himself, could only be expected to laugh at a proposition to make beauty and aesthetic uplift serious aims of a Washington administration. Mr. Harding is faced with more pressing concerns of a political and material sort than he can hope to cope with successfully. If he tried to become a "Yankee Pericles" in addition he would hardly achieve more than ridicule for his pains.

WHAT STATE AID MEANS.

One of the most important planks of the state agricultural program adopted by the Minnesota farm bureaus at their recent convention is the one with reference to education. It reads:

"We favor the levy of a two mill state tax for state aid and increased transportation aid and the establishment of agricultural departments wherever practical."

The term "state aid" is pretty well understood in Minnesota. Some newcomers from other states may not understand the advantage of levying a state tax rather than a local tax for the support of schools.

The situation is this: Practically one-half of the property value of the state of Minnesota consists of iron ore in a very limited district in the northern part of the state. In these districts there is immense value, but there are few school children. Hence, these iron mines pay, in comparison to their value, practically nothing for the support of schools.

Minnesota has long levied a one mill state school tax. Everybody pays it in proportion to his property, the iron mines and the large corporations of the cities included. Then this money is distributed out to all the districts of the state, not exactly, but approximately in proportion to the number of children they have to educate. Thus state aid in reality means iron mine aid.

The man who pays $1 in taxes to the state aid fund is relieved from the necessity of paying $3 for the support of his local school because he gets his own dollar back and $2 more along with it to be applied on the support of his local schools.

Of course, the proportion varies in different counties, but there is no rural district which will not receive back from two to six times more than it puts in.

The only trouble with this plank is that it should have used the figures adopted by Itasca county. Inflow of two mills st should have been ten mills. That would probably equalize the burden of taxation for school purposes pretty reasonably well. But two mills will be twice as good as the one mill we now have.

See that your legislator votes for it. If he doesn't, he is a traitor of your interests.—Northwest Farmstead.

TOO MUCH OF A BAD THING.

When a fellow buys an automobile he expects to secure some pleasure from its use. But the fear of theft is a continual burden on his mind. He never knows what morning he will find his garage empty, or when his car will be "lifted" on the street. That is because our laws are inadequate and our courts are in too many ways too lenient.

Automobile thievery has multiplied at an astounding rate and few of the crooks are ever brought to justice. Even when caught they are too frequently let off with a nominal fine. What we need is a law making it a Penitentiary offense to steal a car and with a generous reward to any person furnishing information that leads to the apprehension and conviction of an offender. Between the reward and the "pen" the lucrative occupation of stealing cars would not appeal so strongly to the gentry who are now working it to perfection.

HELPING ARMENIA.

As even Senator Borah admits President Wilson's right to accede to the request that he offer mediation, presumably there will be no criticism of such an effort to be of service to the oppressed Christians of Armenia. In his statement of acceptance the president clearly recognizes the limitations of this work as a mediator acting thru a representative. He disavows any authority to send troops and declines to even promise the use of money. What can be done without either it is not easy to conceive, for the Turks can hardly be regarded as amenable to moral suasion. But President Wilson knows how to weild a whip of flaming words; his "rhetoric" undermined the kaiser in Germany even before the war was won. So perhaps even the Turks can be made to bend before words that have the conviction of the civilized world behind them. With the diplomatic support of the Powers, for which he stipulates, and because of the fear of the Turks that a military movement may follow, the president may be able to accomplish a good deal.

At all events every generous mind will wish him well. The effort itself, undertaken by the president in his unofficial capacity, is wholly in line with the old traditional American attitude of good will and unselfish desire to help the weak in the struggle under the exactions of the strong.

EASY TO UNDERSTAND.

The reason given by a Russian woman for desiring to return to the troubled land of her nativity has caused astonishment in New York, but would meet sympathetic understanding among the older residents of Richmond, Charleston or Savannah. This woman of the Russian aristocratic class, born to wealth and station, suffered hard things under Bolshevist rule, including cold, hunger and indignities. After employing all her powers of ingenuity and overcoming many difficulties, she at last succeeded in escaping from Russia and reaching the United States. But she had not been here any great while before she said that she regretted she came and declared her wish to return. The reason she gives for a state of mind so astonishing to her New York acquaintances, we read, "is that she finds it more trying to be poor here, where so many of the people of the kind with whom she naturally would associate are rich or in circumstances more than comfortable, than to be in the even desperate want there, where everybody whom she knows and cares for is in like condition."

Elderly persons who were born in the wealthy slave-holding class of the southern states can understand this woman's feelings. If New Yorkers cannot. For when they saw their world turned upside down and like the Russian aristocrats, fell suddenly upon evil days, those days were really less evil than they might have been in consequence of the fact that all their friends were in like case. In the south of the sixties and seventies observant persons were wont to remark that it was "genteel to be shabby," meaning that everybody "who was anybody" was poor. When poverty is the fashion or claims all "the best people" it is much less painful and much more easily borne than when it exists and struggles in the near neighborhood of wealth and display. What troubles this Russian lady is that in New York social standing is based on wealth, or can not be maintained without wealth; and if ordinary human rights were secure in Russia she could not be better than to return to the company of her aristocratic friends of the home-land, all dispossessed and poverty stricken, for they would value her for what she is or was rather than for what she owns or wears.

THE IMMIGRANT TIDE

According to report, Ellis Island is a chaos, overwhelmed by the inflow of immigrants. And there is worse to come. Hordes are expected to arrive from central Europe; five millions from Italy are figured on and there are thought to be as many as eight millions preparing to ship from Germany to American shores. Commissioner Wallace is quoted as saying that he has evidence of a concerted movement among European officials to make good use of the opportunity to empty their hemispheres of the most undesirable elements. Also of "incendaires," "Bolshevik," "criminals," paupers and mental defectives have slipped thru our gates in the crowding and confusion." Our foreign group voters and foreign agitators are a recognized menace already and there is promise of still more serious conditions. Under the circumstances it is not surprising to hear that a bill is to be presented to congress providing for a complete suspension of immigration for two years and that the only suggested alternative is a drastic plan of supervision.

Organized labor supports the two-year suspension proposition, fearing that the incoming flood will bring down wages. On the other hand, strong objection will inevitably come from representatives of the classes that seek in vain for "help" in their homes and suffer from the excessive cost of labor in general. These look to immigration for relief, yet of the most such relief can only be temporary. The male immigrants are soon unionized and foreign "help" soon turns its back on domestic service. It looks as if this country, outside of the wealthier classes, will have to become adjusted to conditions involving more labor in the home by members of the household. Meanwhile this after-war immigration problem promises to be a very serious one indeed, calling for the wisest possible solution.

AS EDISON FIGURES IT

Thomas A. Edison: Life undoubtedly originated on this planet somehow. There was a time when the whole earth was molten and purely inorganic—many million years ago certainly, perhaps a thousand million years ago; nevertheless from what we know there must have been such a time. Terestial life originated in ways unknown, it may have entered in relation with matter gradually and solely in the past; it may be incarnating itself likewise here and now, but so far the process never has been observed. The effort now being made is to place it under human observation; perhaps it will occur some day in the laboratory. If so it will be a matter of extreme interest, but all humanity will have done will have been to place the materials together and watch the results.

Supposing you take a fingerprint of your thumb, in the conventional manner of the police records. Then burn your thumb sufficiently to burn the skin. Do you know that after the new skin has formed the fingerprint of your recovered thumb will be precisely the same as the first one? Yes, absolutely the same even down to the last line and irregularity. I tried it to make sure.

Of course, you say it is nature. But what is nature? That seems to me to be an evasive reply. It is just a subterfuge, a convenient way of shutting off further questioning. I have never been satisfied with that word "nature." Now my answer is that the skin doesn't happen to grow that way by accident. Someone had to plan that new growth and to supervise it to make certain that it would conform in every way with the old skin. Here is where our life entities come into action. I firmly believe that the life entities build that thumb with consummate care, drawing upon their remarkable memory for all the details.

Everybody is talking about the necessity for readjustment and wondering when the other fellow is going to begin.

Nature this fall and winter has hit the coal profiteers a harder blow than all the anti-trust laws ever devised. It illustrates the truth of the old adage, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

WHY ADVERTISED STORES SUCCEED.

When a store advertises judiciously it attracts public attention and it increases its business. But the increase or receipts is not usually equaled by a corresponding increase in expenses. Most stores could double their business without doubling the number of clerks or doubling their rent, light, heat and other charges.

Consequently the charge per article for this so-called "overhead" expense keeps decreasing as the business grows. If receipts double and costs of doing business increase only 50 per cent, it is manifest that the overhead cost for each article sold is proportionately less. As volume of business increases, the business is more economically done and the cost of moving each separate article is reduced. The public gets the difference in lower prices.

The advertising store tells the public what bargains its has, while the non-advertising store does not.

A live, enterprising merchant, who is a good, shrewd wide-awake buyer, has bargains all the time. It is his principal job to keep on the lookout for special opportunities. He watches the trade papers like a hawk, he quizzes salesmen, he looks out for odd lots and bankrupt and fire damaged goods. If he is on the job he is continually making a wise selection between good and poor offers and always has things in his store that represent exceptional values.

The public hears about these exceptional chances in the advertised store. It is not told and does not realize that such chances exist in the non-advertised store, even if that store has them. The public then passes by the non-advertised store because nothing has been suggested to convince anyone that anything is to be gained by trading there.

COST OF WHEAT PRODUCTION IS ESTIMATED AT $2.40

FIGURES FOR 1919 SHOW AVERAGE IN SOUTH DAKOTA TO BE THAT FIGURE

A summary of the cost of producing wheat in 1919 on farms in South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Minnesota has recently been prepared from figures of the United States Department of Agriculture, and the results are well worth studying by farmers. The summary covers 481 farms in the six states mentioned. The following conclusions were drawn from these figures:

For the entire 481 farms, the cost varied from $1 per bushel up to more than $5 per bushel, with the agerage at $2.15. Seventy-five per cent of the farms had costs ranging between $1.40 and $2.80. The cost was considerably lower in the winter wheat belt than in the spring wheat belt. Two hundred enighty-four farms growing winter wheat had an average cost of $1.87 per bushel, 73 per cent of them having costs that ranged between $1.40 and $2.50 per bushel.

South Dakota Figures.

On the 197 farms growing spring wheat the average cost was $2.65 per bushel, with 62.8 per cent of the farms having costs that ranged between $1.90 per bushel and $5 per bushel. The cost on 39 farms in Spink county, South Dakota, are fairly representative of the spring wheat area. The costs there varied from $1.10 to $4.50 per bushel with an average cost of $2.40. The cost on 17.9 per cent of these farms was above $3 per bushel.

Both the public and the growers should recognize that in the long run the average cost of production is not sufficient as a price to maintain production; for at this price half of the production will be at a loss, a condition which cannot long continue except when a crop may be continued just to fill out a general crop rotation plan.

On the other hand there is reason for careful study of these figures by the growers who have very high costs. For example, if it should prove possible to bring the price up to $3, as is the aim of a large group of growers at the present time, 17.9 per cent of the Spink county farms would still be producing at a loss. Obviously their biggest problem is to bring their costs down to that of the bulk of the producers. This means, in most cases, better varieties, more rotation of crops, and better preparation of the soil. The leading factor in high or low cost of the yield per acre as the cost of producing an acre of wheat varies very little with a high or low yield. For example on the spring wheat farms producing at a cost below $1.70 per bushel the average yield per acre was 14.09 bushels, while on those farms producing at a cost of more than $4 a bushel the average yield was 5.33 bushels per acre. This illustrates the principle often not clearly understood that, if in the case of any crop the production seems to be larger than necessary, reduction should come by growing fewer acres, not by letting the yield drop down on the acres grown. If the acre is allowed to drop down to a low point, the increased cost per bushel is almost sure to more than offset any increase in price that might come.

FARM BUREAU ASKS BANKS TO CREDIT MEETING

DOWLING ENDORSES FEDERATION PROGRAM OF FOUR FINANCIAL CONFERENCES

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, on the eve of the national federation annual convention opening at Indianapolis yesterday, took its first practical step to improve the financial status of the state's agricultural interests by issuing an invitation to the Minnesota bankers association to take part in four regional conferences this month in an effort to establish a thorough understanding of the rural credit situation.

The Minnesota federation's delegation is on its way to the national congress of the organization to urge the adoption as the governing principle of the national federation its declaration, adopted at the state convention, that "agriculture can only be made permanent and profitable when the producer of food receives the cost of production plus a fair profit for his products and that the means to accomplish this result should be provided by co-operative action." The national convention will continue for three days with many of the foremost economists and agriculturalists of the United States at work shaping the program by which the federation hopes to improve marketing conditions and give the farmer a larger share in the returns of his labor.

Convention Called Powerful.

The Indianapolis convention is one of the most significant in the United States in the opinion of Senator L. E. Potter, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation. Its delegates represent 1,500,000 American farmers in nearly three-fourths of the states of the union. The Minnesota delegation alone represents 40,000 farmers, organized in 72 of the state's 86 counties, and an organization that has more than doubled its membership in the last three months. Minnesota's delegates are Senator Potter, Robert L. Scott of Borup, vice president of the state federation; F. L. French, secretary; Victor E. Anderson and Frank W. Murphy of Wheaton. Mr. Murphy is a member of the national committee now drafting a farmers' national program.

The invitation to participate in four regional conferences, issued by the state federation, was decided on as one means of bettering conditions of agricultural production in Minnesota, Mr. Potter said. The meetings, suggested for the week of Dec. 12, at Crookston, St. Cloud, Marshall and Owatonna, were proposed by the federation as a means of bringing city and country bankers into closer touch with the farmers and giving the farmers a clear understanding of the rural credit situation in the state.

Dowling Endorses Program.

Michael J. Dowling, of Olivia, former president of the state bankers' association, to whom Senator Potter sent the federation's proposal for the conference, endorsed the plan in his reply and turned the invitation over to Otto Nelson, of St. Paul, now president of the bankers' organization, for action.

The rural credit situation, which will play a large part in the deliberations of the national convention in drawing up its national program, is of vital importance to Minnesota farmers, officers of the federation said.

"Many farmers do not understand the credit situation; misconceptions arise," Victor E. Anderson, of Wheaton, treasurer of the federation, said. "We feel that informal regional conferences, covering practically the whole state, would be of great value in creating better feeling and better co-operation between the farmers and the men upon whom they depend for financial backing."

The farmers, officers of the federation said, hope to establish the principle that agricultural products on the farm are an ample basis for loans to permit the producer to retain his crop over periods of depressed prices and avoid dumping of goods on the market immediately after harvest.

BEEF STEERS TAKE ANOTHER DECLINE

South St. Paul, Minn.—Badly depressed dressed beef markets in the large consuming centers of the east and elsewhere, on account of unseasonal weather conditions, and decrease in consumption because of unemployment of many workers, especially in the east, a generous increase in marketings of cattle at Chicago on top of a heavy run there last week, with consequent sharp price reductions and a slim call from the country for stock and feeding grades, have been factors working against the beef cattle trade locally and at other markets the past week, and beef steer prices are back to the lowest levels of the year.

Local arrivals have been largely on the common order with a few grading up to medium, and there has been an entire absence of good or choice beef steers. Bulk of the supply was such as to sell from $6.50 to $7.50, with a few up to $8.00@8.50, prices showing an irregular decline of 50c@$1.00 for the week. Butcher cows and heifers selling largely at $4.25@$6.00; have been in fair demand, and canner and cutter prices have picked up about 25c@50c, these latter classes selling mostly from $2.00@$4.00 at the wind-up. Best light veals are closing at $10.25. Bologna bulls are moving slowly at $3.50 @$4.00. Stockers and feeders have met dull sale and better grades are closing around 25c@50c lower for the week, with the medium and common grades unevenly 50c@$1.00 lower.

A considerable reduction in receipts of hogs at leading markets this week compared with the five-day aggregate of last week proved a tonic in this division and the market has been in a convalescent state, recuperating about 25c@30c. during the week. Bulk of sales at the close stand at $9.60@$9.65, with tops at $9.65. Pigs and light weights have been popular sellers, the best commanding a slight premium over hogs.

Call for lambs at Chicago to fill eastern orders has been one of the chief factors in the week's trade and a rapid advance in Chicago has been reflected here, lambs closing about $1.25 above a week ago.

HEAVY RUNS SEND HOG PRICES DOWN

South St. Paul, Minn.—With 2,800 cattle here Monday, practically all grades held the advance of 25c@50c noted Monday. There were 1,100 calves offered and market on this class dropped 50c with best lights at $9.75.

Hogs—Receipts 12,000; market about 20c lower. Range $9.00@$9.40; bulk $9.25@$9.35.

Semidemoralized dressed beef markets last week on account of unseasonable weather conditions, a heavy increase in receipts at Chicago during a International show week and poor call from the country for stock cattle, many of which had to go for their killing value, were factors working against the beef steer trade last week locally and prices dropped back to the lowest level of the year. Seven principal markets received only 92,000 head the first two days this week, however, compared with a run of 140,000 for the same period a week ago, and the market staged a complete reversal of form, wiping out most of last week's loss. Practically no good or choice beef steers are coming, the bulk being of common and medium grade to sell from $6.00 @$8.00 mostly, with a few of medium grade showing a little corn feeding at $8.25@8.75. Butcher cows and heifers are selling largely at $4.50@ $6.50, with several loads cashing for $7.00, which seemed to be an impossible figure to obtain last week. Canners and cutters are selling mostly from $3.00@$4.50 and a few going up to $5.00. Demand for stockers id feeders revived early this week, with best feeders in the early trade at $8.75.

After gaining 25@30c last week, the hog market is dropping back on account of liberal receipts at leading points and last week's advance has been wiped out. Pigs and lights are popular sellers, the best commanding a slight premium over hogs.

Much of last week's sharp upturn of $1.25 in lambs was dissipated on early days this week, top lambs dropping from $11.25 last Friday to $10.50. Best native ewes are commanding about $4.00.

Obituary of John M. Johnson.

On Thursday night, Dec. 2, occurred the death of John M. Johnson, one of the pioneer settlers of this community, at the Physician's Hospital in Thief River Falls, the cause being pleurisy. Mr. Johnson was born at Dalarne, Sweden, 68 years ago. He emigrated to this country in his younger days. He was one of the pioneer settlers and located on a farm about one and one-half miles east of Steiner, where he lived until his death. He was a man who won the friendship of his neighbors and those whom he became acquainted with. Last spring he was taken ill and was at the Physician's Hospital at Thief River Falls first, then at the hospital at Warren. After some time he came home, but was never well since. Mr. Johnson never married and is mourned by brothers and one sister in Sweden and relatives residing at Wylie, Minn., besides many friends and acquaintances. The funeral services were held Saturday and interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

DEPARTMENT HAS NAMES OF 200,000 REDS, DECLARES PALMER

ATTORNEY GENERAL REVIEWS CAMPAIGN AGAINST HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Washington, Dec. 11—The campaign against the high cost of living, efforts to break up trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and the government's fight on radicalism are reviewed by Attorney General Palmer in his annual report sent to congress.

In a discussion of the radical problem, Mr. Palmer disclosed that the department of justice has developed a card index system, containing more than 200,000 cards, giving detailed data on the activities of ultra-radicals and their connections as well as a complete library of reference on the general radical movement.

Ninety per cent of the communist and anarchistic agitation during the last year, the attorney general says, is traceable to aliens. This agitation, he adds, is not confined to the so-called "economic evils" but has been directed also toward the stirring up of racial prejudice. One of the fertile fields, he says, is among the negroes who "have been appealed to directly for support in the movement to overthrow the government of the United States."

Laws Were Weak.

Mr. Palmer recites the legislative program laid before congress at its last session in which he said existing laws did not permit the government to carry on the sort of prosecution required in the case of some of the radical groups, notably the Industrial Workers of the World, whose activities the department has been unable to touch in most instances.

Twenty-eight anti-trust cases are pending in the various district courts over the country and in the supreme court of the United States, Frank K. Nebeker, assistant to the attorney general, in his special report on the subject, says that prosecution of the cases is proceeding as rapidly as the machinery of the courts having jurisdiction can be moved.

Many Profiteering Cases.

The report shows that in its campaign to lower living costs, the department brought a total of 2,016 legal actions under the Lever act. Of these, 1,049 were on direct charges of profiteering. Other actions included prosecutions under the provisions against hoarding, manipulating of food stocks, conspiracies, etc. Indictments were drawn in 771 instances, the report says, and to date 99 sentences have been imposed.

Mr. Palmer explains that the department's work, especially in connection with its drive on profiteers, has been hindered by an insufficient number of attorneys, auditors, accountants and similar employes. The inadequate number, he continues, was pitted against high priced talent of the big industries and corporations, but he adds that the work of the department's staff was commendable.

The number of federal prisoners, described as major offenders, held in the various penal institutions on June 30 was 4,737 as compared with 4,788 on the same date a year previous, says the report. Of these, 3,889 were confined in federal prisons, 189 in state and territorial penitentiaries, 225 in state reformatories, 190 in national training schools and the remainder in miscellaneous institutions.

Included in the recommendations are these: Provision making a federal indictment run to all parts of the country; legislation enabling the settlement of certain claims against vessels under government control during the war; permission for appeal by the government to the board of customs appeals; provision for the payment of transportation of discharged prisoners to their homes at time of discharge which may be different than the place from which they were indicted, and the placing of bankruptcy referees on a salary instead of a fee basis of compensation.

Mr. Palmer also recommends particularly a general increase in the salaries of United States attorneys and marshals. In most cases, the increase is $500 per annum and is proposed, the attorney general says, because it has been found that many resignations are being received because the salaries of these officials has not kept pace with the increases in living costs.

"I'll pay Billy Dobbs off for this in the morning!" he wailed to his mother.

"No, no," she said. "You just return good for evil. I'll make you a nice jam tart and you must take it to Billy and say: 'Mother says I must return good for evil, so here's a tart for you.'"

Tommy demmurred, but finally consented. The next evening he returned in a worse plight and groaned:

"I gave Billy the tart and told him what you said, and then he blacked my other eye and says you're to send him another tart tomorrow."

"Bobby," said the lady in the street car, severely, "why don't you get up and give your seat to your father; doesn't it pain you to see him reaching for a strap?"

"Not in a street car," replied Bobby, cheerily, "but it does at home."

BOYS BATTLE BEETLES WHICH THREATEN FRUIT ORCHARDS IN EASTERN STATES

Even a pest has its good points, think the boys of Burlington-co, New Jersey, who are all back in school now. Still, they have pocket money as a result of the pest of beetles visited upon that community in the summer. The green Japanese beetle threatens to be one of the worst fruit pests ever encountered in this country. Each beetle lays about 50 eggs a season, showing how fast they multiply. The U. S. Bureau of Entomology is warning against the pest—paying boys 80 cents a quart to pick them.

Some boys made as high as $5 a day in field and orchards catching the beetles with nets. So far, this method has been the only one found to check them—an indefinite war of extermination.

SECURE ANCIENT RELICS IN EGYPT AND BABYLONIA

Chicago—Fresh from the Near East 37 big boxes of relics of ancient Egypt and Babylonia are now being unpacked at the University of Chicago. They were brought recently after an adventuresome trip by Dr. J. H. Breated, professor of oriental history and Egyptology. In the judgment of museum officials here, they make the oriental museum at the University of Chicago the finest of its kind in the United States.

The university professor and his staff of four were the first white men to cross the Arab state after it was proclaimed, going from Bagdad to Aleppo. At times the expedition traveled at great personal risk.

The aim of the party was to survey the most important buried cities of the Near East in regard to the work of excavation. Dr. Breated said he saw ancient cities, now merely mounds of ruins, that were not on the map and were totally unknown to science.

Because of his knowledge of conditions in the country behind Syria, Dr. Breated was asked by the British government at Cairo to go on a diplomatic mission to the British foreign office and at the expense of changing his plans for returning home, he did so, Dr. Breated disclosed here.

The traditional friendship of the Arabs for England has now turned to hatred, Dr. Breated reported. This, he said, was due to the British giving over Syria to the French after they had promised the Arabs their own kingdom in recompense for the help they gave the British against the Turks.

British political agents were being murdered by the Arabs in Mesopotamia while the University of Chicago expedition was in that country, Dr. Breasted said. He related that a British colonel who knew the Arabs intimately was later killed at the identical camping place the university party had stopped at a short time before.

"The English rule in Mesopotamia is, however, the greatest blessing that ever came to the country," Dr. Breasted said. "It is accomplishing wonders in quieting the turbulent Arabs and in bringing in civilized conditions. Any one who knows the Near East cannot fail to rejoice at the British occupation and most of all the archeologist."

Notwithstading this hostility to the British the party determined o push on without protection across the deserts to the Mediterranean. They fortunately found the Arabs friendly to Americans.

One of the prizes brought back to the Chicago oriental museum is an Assyrian prism chronicling the destruction of Sennecharib's army before Jerusalem. This great Assyrian king had carried a host against Jerusalem and sorely troubled Hezekiah, king of Judah. It is related in the book of Isaiah that Hezekiah sent for the prophet, Isaiah, that Isaiah prophesied that Sennecharib would not enter Jerusalem but would return to Assyria by the way that he came and that the Assyrian army would suffer a great destruction.

"This is a six sided prism containing the royal annals of Sennecharib," Dr. Breated said. "It relates the chief campaigns of his western wars and chronicles the incident told of in Isaiah. There is a similar prism in the British museum, but ours is three years older and it is the first in the United States."

A flint knife with a sharp edge, which Dr. Breasted characterizes as the finest piece of chipped stone known to man, is another of the prizes of the collection. Still another is a small blue vase from Egypt, where glass was first used, which the professor said showed the first artistic use of glass.

A picture of early Egyptian home life is afforded by a group of 25 figures found in an Egyptian tomb. Servants making bread, washing, making music on a drum and doing other familiar things about the house 4000 to 5000 years ago, go to make up the most complete group of the kind, it is said, that has ever been uncovered in one tomb.

Farmers Frame Three Demands

When congress met last week three specific demands for the farmers of America were presented by the American Farm Bureau Federation. These resolutions to congress were:

First—An embargo on all farm products from other countries that are produced in sufficient quantities in the United States to take care of the need, said embargo to continue until satisfactory protective tariffs to give agriculture the same consideration as now given to industry are put into effect.

Second—Means for extending time of payment of farmers' paper over a period of ten or twelve months, either by action of the Federal Reserve Board, if that is possible, or by the amendment of the federal reserve law if necessary.

Third—Immediate action by congress for the purpose of opening up foreign markets to American products.

Win Many Premiums.

Minnesota exhibitors took the lion's share of the prize money in the corn classes at the International Grain and Hay show held in Chicago in connection with the International Livestock Exposition. The show is divided for exhibition purposes into six regional parts. Minnesota was in direct competition with Wisconsin, Michigan, New York and other New England states, also North and South Dakota and most of Canada.

Minnesota took 12 out of 25 places, including the first five places, in the single ear corn class. They took 11 out of 25 places in the 10 ear yellow corn class, one of them being second place, and 14 out of a possible 25, including third, fourth, fifth and sixth places, in the 10 ear white corn class.

Minnesota also took first and fourth places for medium red clover and won first, third and fifth places in the two row barley class. It made six winnings in the competition on oats, its best rank being fourth.

Nearly 100 Minnesota grain and seed growers, most of whom are members of the Minnesota Crop Improvement Association, had exhibits at the International. The displays were in charge of A. D. Haedecke, of University Farm, assistant secretary of the association.

The next meeting and show of the association will be held at St. Paul on Feb. 23, 24 and 25. T. E. Odlund, of University Farm, secretary, says the seed and grain show will be larger and better than ever before. It will be open to competition by all residents of the state.

CHIEF STEWARD QUIETS REFUGEES; SHIP ENDANGERED

This is a story of a white lie, which was told in the White Seal. It was told by the chief steward of a White Star liner, says the Montreal Star.

During the evacuation of the Murmansk coast, when tens of thousands of refugees and troops were being taken away from north Russia to escape the bolshevik firing squads, one of the liners, a new White Star vessel, was blown on a reef close inshore with a thousand troops and 1,500 refugees on board. It happened at 11 o'clock at night and until 4 a. m. the ship pounded on the reef, tearing her bottom plates, also making considerable water in all her holds.

The captain held a final consultation, in his cabin, himself, the chief engineer, purser, chief steward and other department heads being present. The captain stated coldly that in his own opinion when the ship got off the reef with the rising tide she would take water in so quickly that it would simply be a nose dive into deep water.

The chief steward then reported that every man, woman and child on the ship wore a life belt, even the babies. The soldiers were also equipped. He also stated that he had the passengers fairly well in hand. "Well," said the captain, "we may as well make preparations for the worst. If she takes water the way I think she will, it will simply be a case of every man for himself."

The conference was over and the chief steward left the captain's cabin and stood at the top of the stairs above the lower deck. Two thousand pairs of eyes were peering up at him to read the fate of the ship and themselves. Chief Steward Robinson did not wilt. He took out his pipe and lit it with steady hands, then turning to the milling crowd below, that needed only a word to turn it into a seething mob, he said:

"There is no danger at all. You can all go to bed."

They went and the ship slid off, but did not sink. She was a new vessel and her patent double bottom saved her. Later on she was forced to dock at Cromarty, a naval base in the north of Scotland, and this was safely managed. All the passengers, mostly mayors of Russian towns and their dependents, were landed without mishap. Had a riot occurred on board the ship's staff could never have handled her in the skilful way which prevented her from leaving half her bottom on the reef. Chief Steward Robinson, with his pipe in his hand, had told the biggest lie in his life, but it was a white one and did the trick.

He stated afterwards that he reason his hand did not shake was that for two and a half years he had slept aboard ship above ammunition cargoes and had become quite a fatalist in the presence of supreme danger.

How Many Eggs You May Expect.

The average novice can reasonably expect to get an average of at least ten dozen eggs per year from his small flock in the back yard, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture. On the basis of two hens to each member of the family this will give twenty dozen eggs a year to each person, which amount is about halfway between the general average of farm and city consumption. No back-yard poultry keeper should be satisfied with less than this. He should try, however, to get as much more as possible.

To provide an egg a day for each person two hens would have to lay 183 eggs each a year. This is by no means an impossible average for small flocks. It is perhaps not too much to say that in cases where the person attending the flock is in a position to look after the wants of the birds three or more times a day, an average of better than 15 dozen eggs per hen can be secured if the hens are mature and in good condition at the start and have the vitality to carry them thru a year of heavy laying.

For the farm the average of 100 eggs per hen is advised as the lowest that should be accepted as satisfactory, while for the back yard 120 is insisted upon as the lowest average, although in general the conditions in back yards are less favorable to poultry keeping than on farms.

Unless the government takes some immediate steps to finance the farmers in their pressing needs, the farmers may lay plans to create their own agricultural banks throughout the nation. This was the gist of proposed action at Indianapolis last week, when President James R. Howard called into convention the American Farm Bureau Federation, representing some thirteen million farmers. It asks that the federal reserve bank system be modified, which now loans money to dealers in farm commodities over which the producer has lost control and which gluts the market due to the calling of his short-time loans. The total loss on farm commodities, including livestock, was estimated at ten billion dollars, as result of recent price declines. These first and exclusive pictures from Indianapolis show, upper and lower panels, delegates to the convention: Center, left to right, J. W. Coverdale, national secretary of the A. F. B. F.; Governor Goodrich of Indiana; President, James R. Howard of the A. F. B. F., and Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau.

EXTENDING DAY INCREASES EGG PRODUCTION

ARTIFICIAL DAYLIGHT GIVES POULTRY MORE TIME FOR EATING AND EXERCISING.

Domestic fowls originated in the tropics where the days and nights are of about equal lengths. As a result of this, the reproductive and digestive systems of the hen are developed to fit the environment of the 12 hour day and a 12 hour night. For this reason she is somewhat like an alarm clock, except that she must be wound up about every 12 hours instead of every 24. In the winter in the north her digestive system strikes at about 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning. As she is unable to locate food in the dark she has no alternative but to wait until daylight or until the caretaker gets round to feed her.

Up in the north temperate zone, where during the fall and winter the nights are from 13 to 15 hours long the transplanted domestic fowl from the tropics has changed her habits but not her nature. During this time she takes her vacation when she has the least to eat and to do. This is from necessity rather than from choice, for given an opportunity to eat, exercise and enjoy herself for 12 hours a day she lays nearly, if not quite so well, as during the summer months.

Acting on this theory many poultry keepers have found it profitable to light their poultry houses for several hours each day. This lengthened day, together with the right kind of feed and plenty of exercise, has been found to increase to a marked degree the number of eggs laid by pullets in the fall and winter. It does not pay to provide light for older hens. A 14 hour day for the laying flock during the winter months is the aim of those who are following this practice.

Experiments are being carried on by the United States department of agriculture at the government poultry farm at Beltsville, Md., for the purpose of securing more data on this phase of poultry work. The results secured thus far corroborate the testimony of others as to the value of illumination in hen houses.

The birds used in the government experiment are fed four times a day, at 8, 12, 4 and some time after dark. This last feed is for the birds' breakfast. In addition to the four feeds a dry mash is kept constantly before the birds.

By means of an ordinary alarm clock an electric switch is turned on about 4:00 in the morning. Care is taken to increase the length of the time of illumination gradually or the effect on the birds would be disastrous. At the close of the season the decrease must be made slowly. From November 1, the opening of the pullet season, to April 1 is the time when lighting is usually provided for fowls.

To secure the desired results it is necessary not only to provide food ready for eating when the birds awake but also water. In very cold weather some means of heating it must be provided or the water trough will freeze over. The birds will not do well if drink is not available also. A small oil lamp under a bucket, an electric attachment for slightly heating the water and a watering tank insulated somewhat after the idea of a fireless cooker are the methods used for keeping the water for the flock at a temperature above freezing.

In a pen 20x20, two lights rather than one should be used. A wide-angled reflector that will throw the light to all parts of the building, also helps to get the best results from the amount of electricity used. To save illumination the windows should be placed when feasible on the south, east and west sides of the building. White ceilings and side walls, because they reflect the light, also help.

"Phwat was the last card Oi dealt ye, Mike?"

"A sphade."

FARM PRODUCTS DEPRESSION IS U. S. PROBLEM

Washington, Dtec. 11 — American farmers face a situation due to falling prices for farm products which should be dealt with as a national problem, Secretary Meredith declared in his first annual report. On Nov. 1 prices were 33 per cent below those prevailing at planting time, the secretary of agriculture said.

Several remedies were suggested, including extension of co-operative marketing and some means of aiding in carrying over to years of low production the surplus of years of high production. The question of farm and personal credit must be given more favorable consideration, the secretary said, and ways be found to aid tenant farmers or men just embarking in agriculture to establish themselves

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE SAYS PRICES ARE 33% BELOW LAST SPRING

Washington, Dtec. 11 — American farmers face a situation due to falling prices for farm products which should be dealt with as a national problem, Secretary Meredith declared in his first annual report. On Nov. 1 prices were 33 per cent below those prevailing at planting time, the secretary of agriculture said.

Several remedies were suggested, including extension of co-operative marketing and some means of aiding in carrying over to years of low production the surplus of years of high production. The question of farm and personal credit must be given more favorable consideration, the secretary said, and ways be found to aid tenant farmers or men just entering in agriculture to establish themselves.

"The road between the producer and the consumer should be kept open and made shorter," the report said, "so insure fair prices and that the consumer will be able to buy with only reasonable profits attached to the original cost of sale. Co-operative buying and selling undoubtedly advance an opportunity to shorten the channel between producer and consumer, the secretary said, as well as an opportunity to reduce the cost of production by the use of government information as to marketing, grading, etc.

13 Billion Dollar Crop.

The farmers of America "have again justified the faith of the nation to meet its requirements," Mr. Meredith declared, and have produced crops estimated to be worth $13,300,000,000 this year. The combined yield of the ten principal crops was 15 per cent above the average for five years.

The corn crop of 3,199,000,000 bushels is unprecedented; representing about four-fifths of the world's production. The sweet potato crop of 106,000,000 bushels is far in excess of any year except 1919, while the rice crop of 52,000,000 bushels is one-fourth greater than the largest crop ever before harvested. Tobacco production of 1,476,000,000 pounds, the sugar beet crop of 149,000,000 and the potato crop of 421,000,000 bushels stand out as high marks, while the apple production of 236,000,000 bushels has been exceeded only once.

"It ought to be a fact," Mr. Meredith continued, "that when the farms of the country produce abundantly, the consuming public will be literally supplied with food at reasonable prices, the farmer taking his profit because of large production and the consumer receiving his increment of benefit from having an adequate supply at a reasonable cost.

Worth Less Than Small Crop.

"The year's output, produced at an abnormally high cost," the secretary added, "is worth at current prices $3,000,000,000 less than the smaller crop of 1919 and $1,000,000,000 less than the still smaller crop of 1918. The best estimate that can be made indicates that the total value of animal products in 1920 is $8,787,000,000 or about $200,000,000 less than in 1919.

"There is probably no other industry or business that could suffer similar experience and avoid insolvency.

Farm finance, he said, has become more and more involved until it ranks in importance with the financial problems of industry. In this, as in marketing, Mr. Meredith suggested expansion of the co-operative idea as likely to bring definite and tangible results of benefit to the farmer. The department is making a study with a view to applying the co-operative plan to farm mortgage and personal credit and farm insurance, the report added.

If the increasing population is to be fed from available farm lands, efforts to reduce agricultural hazards must go forward vigorously, Mr. Meredith said. Among these hazards he enumerated plant diseases, insects, rodents and live stock diseases. Congress was urged to provide for wider investigation of these questions, the report asserting they should be curbed as a national duty to ward off grievous situations in the annual food production in later years.

further government control into these trade processes, already on the road to normal healthy functioning."

And whereas, another officer of the United States, namely, Edwin M. Flesh, vice president and treasurer of the United States Grain Corporation, under date of November 30, 1920, wrote:

"Honorable Halvor Steenerson,
"House of Representatives,
"Washington, D. C.

"Dear Sir: I have your telegram of November 29, in which you request reports detailing the activities of the United States Grain Corporation up to the time its activities ceased in June, with especial reference to the purchase of wheat and wheat flour by the Allies and others.

"I am pleased to send you herewith the information asked for in pamphlet form compiled by Mr. A. L. Russell, statistician. We might add for your information that many of the foreign governments still continue to control imports of flour and wheat by their own purchases, and while some few individual merchants have been from time to time in the market and have made purchases direct, our belief is that this is camouflage, and that these purchase were made under government direction. In other words, because of government restrictions, the individual initiative of the foreign buyer for purchase of both wheat and wheat flour has not been permitted.

"If we can be of further service to you in supplying information from this end, do not hesitate to call on us.

"Yours truly,
Edw. M. Flesh,
"Vice President and Treas."

From which it appears that the grain markets of the United States are no longer open and free to the natural operation of the laws of supply and demand, but are monopolized controlled and manipulated at will by the influence of foreign governments. That through its control over the wheat export trade of Canada, the British government has been able to rush it by dumping it on our markets as an additional influence to depress prices here.

That the practice of the European governments who engage in purchasing wheat is to resell it at a loss in order to furnish bread to their people at prewar prices, thus making them directly interested in lowering the price of wheat in all markets.

That the said European governments have been aided in thus monopolizing and controlling the wheat prices in the United States by numerous agents, brokers banks and corporations, all in direct violation of the antitrust laws of the United States. That up to date the said operation has redneed the price of wheat more than $1 per bushel, so that the price now is much less than cost of production. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Federal Trade Commission be, and the same is hereby, directed to investigate the operations and activities of foreign government either acting directly or through commissions, agents, brokers or otherwise, in the grain trade of the United States, especially the buying, selling and exporting of wheat and the influence thereof upon prices in the United States, and whether such activities constitute a violation of the antitrust laws of the United States by such governments, or any of their agents, brokers or representatives.

MANY MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS FOR [illegible] ATE

MUCH IMPROVEMENT WORK TO BE DONE BY CITIES OF THE STATE NEXT YEAR

Increased city [illegible]ts to provide funds for building and sewer improvements, [illegible]rks, schools, hospitals and tourist headquarters, have been authorized by an impressive number of Minnesota municipalities, judging from data collected during the past week by the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul.

A few cities reported approximately the same budgets for 1921 that were approved for 1920. In two or three instances, however, the 1920 expenditures were considered extraordinary as several cities financed important paving undertakings this year. The bankers in a few county seats where agricultural uncertainties have been severely felt, stated that their cities either had not taken final action on 1921 budgets or had adopted a budget similar to the 1920 total.

It is evident that a tremendous amount of paving, concrete work and sewer improvement is planned by city councils. Shortage of cement, labor difficulties and other handicaps caused a number of cities to postpone or halt work this summer. Cement companies have notified city officials, county commissioners and others that they are prepared to take orders for guaranteed delivery "at any time."

Erection of city halls or other municipal buildings evidently will not be an important feature of proposed municipal activities. Paving seems to call for the greater appropriations for special undertakings; school construction apparently is second. Water and lighting plants are to be built in several small cities.

Bemidji increased its budget from $62,500 to $65,940. The white way is to be completed, also the armory building. Bonds have been voted for a new high school; the park board has levied $14,000 for a bath house and pavilion and improved camping facilities at Diamond Point. This city park will be made attractive for touring parties.

Wheaton's budget of $32,000 will be double the amount for this year and a steel water tank and tower are to be built.

Mahnomen has not increased its budget and no municipal improvements of note are projected.

Crookston's municipal allowance was reduced from $44,760 to $41,900. Some paving will be done but no big projects are under way. The Water and power company is spending $5,000 on improvements. Detroit's budget will be about the same and only routine activities are planned.

Virginia's budget of $650,000 is a reduction of about $100,000. Two grade schools will be built. Concrete road will be constructed and paving is planned.

Montevideo's budget was boosted from $34,200 to $42,000. Water mains and sewers will be extended. City will pave about eight blocks in the business district and the budget increase of $38,000 brings the 1921 total to $218,000. Mining activities have become brisk and employers have been doubling their forces for winter operations underground.

Moose Lake's 1921 budget has not been decided upon but a local banker forecast market activities. Considerable road work is planned. Bank employes have been urged to "give all possible aid to traveling tourists." A modern hotel will be built in the spring. The Commercial Club has furnished two camping sites on the shores of Moose lake.

Red Lake Falls' budget has not been fixed, but paving and road building activities seemingly will be included.

At present Minnesota business activities seem to be rather brisk in the northern counties, especially in the mining districts and in the woods. Hundreds of men from Detroit, Cleveland and other industrial centers managed to obtain employment. Agricultural activities have not changed to any marked extent. Farmers have sold considerable potatoes but have been holding their grain and wool.

Bennes, one of the most widely known insurance men in this section of the state, has acquired an interest in the First National Bank of this city and will in the future be actively identified with that institution. ## ELKS TO HOLD BIG FROLIC AT AUDITORIUM ---BIG TIME PLANNED

Tonight is the big night for all Elks and their families.

A musical and card party is to be held at the Auditorium for the ladies while the men are busy initiating baby Elks into the fold at the Masonic Hall. Following the initiation the men folks will all adjourn to the auditorium where a monster dance is to be given all members of the local order of Elks.

The party is to be one of the most elaborate of the year and much work has been done to make it a huge success. The committee in charge of arrangements have been working night and day for the past few weeks attending to the many details of such an undertaking and it is the general belief that this party will eclipse all others.

DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS IN FARM BUREAU NOW ON

WORKERS FROM STATE FEDERATION NOW IN FIELD SOLICITING MEMBERS.

The farm bureau drive for members in Pennington county started yesterday afternoon following a meeting at the farm bureau office in this city. The meeting was fairly well attended and what it lacked in attendance was made up in enthusiasm. It was the general belief of those present that the drive should net one hundred per cent, but of course this will be impossible, but it shows which way the wind is blowing and that large and satisfying results may be looked for.

Two men from the state federation started the work yesterday and were joined today by others. It is expected that by Monday there will be a force of eight or twelve men from the state federation in the field soliciting new members. The men are taken over the county by local drivers and in this way much time is saved. The men sent out by the state federation are all experienced in this work and will undoubtedly put the drive across in short order.

There are many features in connection with the farm bureau that should not be overlooked by the farmers of this county. The organization is primarily to see that the farmer gets help and co-operation in every movement that is of interest to himself and family. The organization devotes its time exclusively to the better farming measures promulgated by the national association and in connection with the state federation is sure to accomplish much good for the farmers of the state.

Perhaps one of the most important steps being taken at this time is co-operative marketing and to show in a measure how this end of the farmers' difficulty is being handled a short article from the American Farm Bureau publication is reproduced:

"Marketing is as expert a problem as the writing of a deed or drawing up wills. The individual farmer who knows all about production doesn't know any more about marketing than he does about drawing wills. Let's just figure how that plan is. You men are wheat growers. You grow wheat say 365 days in the year. For 364 days you become a seller of wheat, and to whom do you sell? You sell to a fellow who is a professional marketer of wheat. I don't care whether it is you individually selling, or whether you are selling in one of those so-called pool groups—you are selling to a man who is wholly and solely a marketer of wheat. He not only devotes himself wholly to that line of work but he is especially equipped for it, because you know as well as I do that the men can't last any length of time in the grain buying and selling business unless they are naturally very shrewd, unless they are what you call 'born traders.' So you have the marketers there who is a natural born trader, who spends all his time marketing wheat, who has all the banking connections, knows how long he can hold the stuff when he once gets hold of it, who has all the warehousing conditions, who has all the data of the world on prices, and you go up to him and you think you are marketing! Why you are no more marketing that you are marketing cards when you sit into a poker game. You are playing poker every time you sell wheat under conditions like that. If you get a high price you are lucky; if you get a low price you are unlucky, but in neither case are you wise."

CHRISTMAS IN AMERICA

Christmas! The greatest anniversary in the history of the civilized world! How all hearts thrill at the significance of the word—and especially in this most favored country.

We may all feel at times that we have our troubles and our problems. Everything is not just as we should wish. But how splendid and happy is our condition if we compare it for a moment with the condition of unnumbered thousands in other parts of the world, or even if we think of the hardships and sacrifices and privations of our own hardy pioneers in this northwest section!

Men and women of Minnesota, we have a thousand reasons to rejoice and be happy at this Christmas season. Let's make it a real Merry Christmas.

The Christmas Spirit comes from the heart. In the natural desire to express that spirit Thief River Falls stores can be most helpful to you.

MANY ATTEND FARMER-BANKER CONFERENCE

MEETING AT CROOKSTON ATTENDED BY MEN FROM ALL SECTIONS OF VALLEY

A meeting of more than usual interest was held at Crookston yesterday when the farmers and bankers of the district met in joint session to discuss the present situation. There were many from this city who attended the meeting and who felt that the session was to bring out much for the betterment of the present situation. The Crookston meeting, as reported, was for the purpose of discussing the following issues and determining what steps was most necessary to take at this time:

Farm credit was the outstanding topic considered at the conference. The principal subjects to which the farmers and bankers addressed themselves were:

Whether the farming industry of Minnesota has sustained more than its fair share of the burden of declining commodity prices.

What steps may be taker that will be approved by bankers for extending further credit to the farmers, to prevent forced marketing of live stock and farm products at low prices.

Whether bankers and farmers hold views that are identical on the question of development of co-operative marketing organizations in Minnesota.

What should be done to bring about a more general liquidation of bank loans in the state and a general easing of credit stringency.

Farm credit problems are so closely allied with farming conditions at the present time that the Minnesota far bureau federation decided in calling the conferences, to ask the bankers of the state to participate. By seeking opinions of the bankers, officers of the federation believe that a clearer understanding of the problems that face the farmers will be reached, and as a result of the conference the notion that bankers have intentionally shut off the credit of the farmers will be dispelled.

Sale of only 15 per cent of the $1,000,000,000 crop still held on farms in the northwest would be enough to liquidate the obligations of the agricultural interests of the whole ninth federal reserve district and relieve the financial distress, Curtis L. Mosher, deputy governor of the Minneapolis Reserve bank, told the farmer-banker conference in answer to farmers who maintained low prices would prevent them from paying their debt even if they sold now.

MRS. C. M. ADKINS DIES AFTER ILLNESS OF SHORT DURATION

Mrs. C. M. Adkins, wife of Dr. C. M. Adkins, prominent physician of this city, died yesterday morning at the Physicians' Hospital in this city following an illness of short duration.

Mrs. Adkins was taken ill about two weeks ago of pleurisy and as she failed to gain her health back, an operation was resorted to in an endeavor to relieve her. She rallied nicely from the operation and there were hopes of her recovering fully from her illness, but Wednesday she lost strength and died early Thursday morning.

Mrs. Adkins is survived by her husband, four small children who will greatly miss the protecting guidance of a mother's love. Her death is mourned by everyone who knew her and her place in the activities of the community will be hard to fill.

Dr. and Mrs. Akins came to this city about a year ago from Grygla, at which place they had been living for several years past. Mrs. Adkins has made many warm friends since coming to this city and her death will be keenly felt by all.

The body will be buried in Greenwood cemetery at this place, but the arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, as the family are waiting the arrival of relatives from Kansas.

BONUS CERTIFICATES FROM STATE RECEIVED BY BANKS OF CITY

Bonus certificates sent out by the state to banks in order that the soldier bonus might be paid in advance, have reached this city and the first of the week the First National Bank received $5,000 in certificates for the money advanced to take care of the soldier bonus in this section.

The advancement of this money by the banks of the state has been a great help to the former service men and has eliminated much time and red tape in enabling him to secure his bonus money quickly. The banks have handled the money and of the matter on a very small percentage, as it was not the idea to make profits in a financial way from the transaction but to help expedite matters in getting a settlement for the service men.

This co-operation on the part of the banks has been a great help to the service men and is greatly appreciated by all.

ACCUSED BY NEIGHBORS OF STEALING FLAX

EARL REEVES BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY AFTER MUNICIPAL COURT HEARING.

A case in Municipal Court Tuesday of considerable interest was that of the state versus Earl Reeves, who was accused by Wm. H. Kline and B. G. Rounds of stealing flax from a building in which these two men had stored their grain last fall.

The testimony of Mr. Kline was to the effect that he had been at the farm the Saturday before where the grain was stored and he noticed waggon tracks around the building. Upon investigation he discovered that considerable of the flax had been removed, but just how much it was impossible to state. After an investigation and hearing from other parties of suspicious actions of Reeves, a warrant was sworn out for his arrest and he was brought in.

Reeves pleaded not guilty thru his attorney and will fight the case. It was brought out in the testimony that Reeves was in town on Saturday, December 11, and that he was apparently hauling grain, which had been put in sacks and after being laid in the bottom of the wagon were carefully covered with straw. One witness testified to going to the wagon while left standing on a hitch lot and picked up one of the sacks and shook out flax. His reason for doing so was explained by his statement that he thought it queer that Reeves was selling grain when he had only moved on the farm in the fall and did not have an opportunity to raise any grain for sale.

H. Matthews, manager of the Red Lake Falls Milling Company at this place, was called and identified Reeves as the man who came to the elevator on Saturday afternoon, December 11, and who sold a little more than 13 bushels of flax, giving the name of Smith when asked who the check should be made out to. The check was taken to the Oen Mercantile Co. and cashed, endorsed on the back by Joe Smith.

After the evidence was all heard, Judge N. W. Tarrant placed Reeves under $300 bail and bound him over to the grand jury which convenes in February.

Court Called for February.

The grand and petit jury lists for the February term of the district court has been drawn and notice sent to all those selected to appear on the first and eighth days of February. The docket for the term has not been made up at this time and it is hard to say just how much work there will be at the next term. It is expected there will be several new cases besides those continued over.

STATIONARY PHONE RATES HELD PROBABLE

Apparently there is to be no increase in the telephone rates for the state of Minnesota, according to present reports and from the general outlook. The Railroad and Warehouse Commission seems inclined to hold off for the present in granting the Northwestern Telephone Company the privilege of raising their rates to a $3,000,000 annual increase.

The Minneapolis Journal of yesterday contains a very good account of the activity that is being taken at the state capitol to block this raise and goes into the matter in detail, all of which is as follows:

Charles D. Gould, city attorney of Minneapolis, appearing at the state capitol to oppose the petition of the Northwestern Telephone Exchange company for a $3,000,000 annual increase in its rates in Minnesota, moved that the application of the company be dismissed on the ground that the reasons so far advanced by the company do not constitute a sufficient reason for the increase. Fred W. Putnam, member of the commission in charge of the hearing, did not rule on the motion as the company had further evidence to present.

Mr. Gould appeared for Mayor J. E. Meyers and Alderman T. O. Dahl as well as for himself, representing the trio both as officials and as individuals. He announced that he intended no reflection on the results of the investigation into telephone affairs that has been made by the state commission. Mr. Putnam said that the commission's findings of fact are now accessible to anyone desiring to appear in protest against the increase. An investigation has been made at a cost of $150,000 to the state. He hoped to finish the taking of testimony today, and said he would allow objectors to the increase a week in which to prepare arguments.

The Northwestern company's proposed rate increase would fall largely on Minneapolis, where one-half of the telephones belonging to the company's system in the state are located. In addition to Mr. Gould, representatives of numerous organizations in Minneapolis appeared to protest against the increase. Appearances also were made by J. S. McLaughlin, James T. Elwell, E. P. Burch and C. T. Torbor as individuals.

E. P. Pendergast, general counsel for the Northwestern company, opened the case for the company. He said that street railway and telephone companies all over the country have been forced by high operating costs to go into the federal courts to get redress. Minnesota fortunately has a state commission in charge of telephone matters, to which the company appeals.

"We will show," he said, "that we are not meeting our interest payments, that for the last half of the year we are paying no dividends, and now have not a dollar of surplus. We have obligations soon to fall due amounting to $17,000,000. There is also a need of several million dollars a year for extensions. It is conceded that a company of this kind should make ten per cent net on its investment in order to attract investors to take these securities. We have no watered stock.

"The increase requested is needed for three reasons. First, so that the company can pay wages which will attract and retain a sufficient number of competent employes. Second, so it can buy material and keep the properties up to proper efficiency. Third, so it can find buyers for additional securities needed to extend its service."

Want Bids for New Location.

The local postoffice is advertising for bids on a suitable place for the housing of the postoffice department of this city. The bids call for proposals up to and including April 1, 1921. A lease of from five to ten years will be taken on the one selected and it is stipulated that there must not be less than 2400 square feet of floor space and that the location be not too far from the business district. Blank proposals and lease may be secured from Postmaster John Morgan by those interested in submitting bids.

Bible Chautauqua Meetings.

"God's Last Effort to Gather Israel." This most interesting subject will be presented on Sunday evening, Dec. 19, 7:45 o'clock, at the Chautauqua hall, west of the Eastside Drug Store. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

CADDOCK AFTER MAT TITLE AGAIN

Earl Caddock

Earl Caddock of Iowa, former world heavyweight wrestling champion, the only American heavyweight matman to enlist and fight in France during the war, is on the warpath again. After a rest on his Montana ranch he has started out to regain his title now held by Joe Stecher of Nebraska. Gene Melady, Omaha stockman, is still managing the former champ.

E'S MIGHTY PROUD, BROTHER WARRE.

Mrs. Carolyn Votaw

When President-elect Harding called Washington for his Inauguration at the Senate one of the first to greet him was his sister, Mrs. Votaw, who is head of the Social Service Department in the U. S. Health Department. This picture was taken as she called at the McLean residence where the Hardings stayed during the three days spent there.

New Railway Rates and the Cost of Living

In its issue of October 11, the New York Times, commenting Editorially, has the following to say:—

"WHEN the railways were allowed to increase rates to offset their compulsory increase of wages, it was predicted that the consumers of goods would pay both bills.

"The test of these theories is now at hand. The increase of rates is in full force, and prices of goods are falling as fast as is desirable. The higher cost of moving freight has not reduced the volume of traffic.

"The cars are moving faster and carrying more tons, with the result that fewer cars are necessary, as well as fewer men.

"That is 'making' money by saving it. The railways could not have done it alone. The shippers who used the cars for warehouses, and who loaded as little as was necessary to get carload rates, instead of as much as the cars could carry, are now co-operating with the railways.

"Here there is another hint why the increase of rates will not be a burden to consumers of goods. The costs of production will be reduced with the improvement of railway service."

| | Sept. 1919 | Sept. 1920 |
| Average Trainload - | 765 tons | 865 tons |
| Average Carload - - | 28.4 tons | 30.3 tons |
| Average Car Movement | 23.7 miles per day | 31.4 miles per day |

PUBLICITY.

Both need a good publicity man. Illinois has a crackerjack and Michigan a Number 1 man. In Illinois, out of their $500,000 state fund, they have spent upward of $20,000 the first year for publicity.

They tell their own members what the federation is doing. The claims department, recently established in Illinois, has recovered $5,000 for its members. Members are told about it and told how to make use of the service. The freight rate on fertilizers was reduced by the action of the bureau—and farmers were told about it.

One of South Dakota's best men was hired to take charge of Illinois dairy marketing—and the whole state is being told about it.

Every country weekly and every daily newspaper in Illinois is getting matter from the publicity bureau.

So the farmers know where their money is going.

Also the city folks are correctly informed as to what the farmers are after. As a result many a hard fought battle won't have to be fought at all.

Both Minnesota and the national federations are weak on this point.—Northwest Farmstead.

LEST WE FORGET.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: We are being lectured and bectored so much these days as to our shortcomings and our inefficiencies that it is worth while to turn into a quiet corner and read a few simple words as to what we are doing for the Filipinos or are helping them to do for themselves under our guidance. When one recalls, for instance, the long history of the indifference of European administrators to the education of the natives in their tropical and subtropical and Asian and Polynesian colonies, it is gratifying to know that Uncle Sam's advent into the Philippines has meant such a passion for education, even among the most backward tribes, that the illiteracy of the islands as a whole has been reduced from 70 per cent in 1903 to 30 per cent in 1919! What this means only those who know the Philippines at first hand can truly comprehend. But even the stay-at-home American who is aware that the tribes of the Philippines are legion, with numerous dialects and different races and languages, it must be clear that the educational methods of the United States as applied there have triumphed indeed.

The reason for this great improvement is that teachers under untold conditions have for the most part done more than their duty. And that the future even promises better things is shown in that, as the director of education of the islands reports it:

"The outstanding fact in the educational work in the islands is the increase in school funds made available by the 30,000,000 peso act. Among the most propitious sequences of this liberal allowance were: First, the opening of 136 new primary schools; second, the abolition of the collection of tuition fees in intermediate schools and third, the employment of 2,963 additional elementary teachers. This much could not have been done, however, had it not been for the diligent co-operation of the people, who in some places even went so far as to construct temporary school buildings and to equip them at their own expense.

In other words the Filipinos have caught the spirit of the old red school house, and they do not want to be left down as the lotus eaters who loll and idle the tropic days away, unlettered and unconcerned. If we, therefore, find things at home to worry us, at least in the Philippines what America stands for is something of which all may well be proud. And so many predicted dire failure for Uncle Sam as a colonial administrator! They said we could not shoulder the white man's burden in the tropics. But we have, and have won out!

WHERE DOES CONTROL LIE?

Watertown Public Opinion: Concerning the general inability of business in America to combat the prevailing depression in all lines, Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, one of the creators of the federal reserve bank system, speaking of the concerted movement of the bankers of America to deflate credits, says, "the great central banks of America and the federal reserve banks have been deflating credits for the last twelve months. It has resulted in deflating the credit of the United States and impairing the market prices of government bonds, crushing the prices of many sound securities and bringing some commodities like wool down to a price below the possible cost of production."

Adding to this the senator says: "They are now taxing the commerce of the country, and it does not suffice that their purposes are good."

The senator shows by a keen analysis of the financial situation in general in the United States that the banks still have a wide margin of safety on which to extend credit if they had the disposition.

The withdrawal of credit in March of this year was sudden and drastic. The country woke up one morning and found it could not borrow a dollar to do business. It was the same at one bank as at another, in one town as in another, in one city as in another. Some financial power had given the order.

What the senator thinks is that the same power which exercised this control and started the business of the country on the down grade can now, if it will, exert sufficient force to turn the tide. In other words, he believes that arbitrary deflation has proceeded past the point where it is a benefit to the nation.

The big central banks and the federal reserve banks no doubt have the control of the situation. The local banker is helpless. The whole nation is most earnestly asking how long the big fellows are going to sit on the lid, a policy which, Senator Owen says, is "stopping the industrial activities of the country, is economically and financially unsound and will result in social disorder as well as in commercial and fiancial losses."

The big banks and the federal banks, the senators says, have the implement at hand for relieving the situation. All they need to do, he says, is to lower the interest rates on all outstanding loans and on new loans.

A LEGITIMATE ENDING

Sioux City Journal: Judge Martin J. Wade of the United States district court for the southern district of Iowa compressed a sermon into a sentence in passing sentence on Fred Proffenbarger, 19 years old, and Orville Phillips 17 years old, confessed Council Bluffs mail robbers, when he said:

"It is a legitimate ending for boys starting on such a career—boys who have been rebels since childhood. A man can hardly realize what boys can do until confronted day after day with what they have committed."

The jurist was not scolding. He was reciting cold facts against which one in his position could not shut his eyes. Coupled with the stern keeper of the law was the human philosopher who looked beneath the surface of life to find the cause of youthful crimes. He expressed his conclusions in a couple of sentences in which he said:

"The philosophy of life of getting something without work has got to stop. * * * The trouble nowadays is to get young men to take life seriously. They must be taught that movies, bright lights and indiscreet are not everything."

In those words the court sounded the cause of juvenile crime, for the most daring crimes of the times are committed by boys 20 years old. After laying down his matured reasons why boys are criminals, he proceeded without any false sentimentality to put his philosophy into practice; to teach boys "that the movies, bright lights and idleness are not everything" by sentencing young Proffenbarger to 18 years in the federal penitentiary and young Phillips to 13 years in the same institution. He was neither harsh nor cold blooded in his judicial sentence. The crimes committed justified the sentences. If they are guilty, if they take out of life all to which youth might look forward to with pleasure, the guilty culprits, and the court, are responsible. They deliberately planned the crime. It was daring and showed a maturity of wisdom in criminal methods that removes all cause for sympathy. So far as their acts are concerned they prove the boys were mentally hardened criminals. Their fate ought to make other youthful criminals pause and change their courses.

Judges who administer justice to such criminals without a display of sickening sentiment, as Judge Wade did, are doing more to stop the wave of youthful crime now sweeping the country than all the tears and sobs and pleadings of the whole army of reformers who believe criminal youth is reformed and made into better manhood by excusing the crimes it commits.

WHY GRAIN TOOK A BIG TUMBLE IN THE MARKET

BROKER SEES LITTLE CAUSE FOR ALARM, AS THE BOTTOM PRICE HAS COME.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 15.—Th past few weeks have witnessed one of the most severe declines in grain prices ever recorded on the Chicago board of trade.

These declines should be sufficient to discount the many pessimistic views, and in comparison with the deflation in other commodities, should restore confidence to the grain holders.

However, there are any factors to be considered in forming an opinion as to grain prices and the first one to consider is the supply this year in comparison with last year. The total visible supply this week as against a year ago is as follows:

| Wheat | 39,324,00 | 92,900,000 |
| Corn | 7,140,000 | 1,100,000 |
| Oats | 34,328,000 | 17,293,000 |

This comparison shows that there was a large amount of both corn and oats carried over from the past year. This, on top of the largest crop of corn ever raised, naturally makes the supply far overbalance the demand for corn and oats. Therefore, to begin with, in explaining the big drop in grain prices, we have the largest supply on hand of corn and oats ever recorded.

The general financial condition at the present time is not one which leads hope to the holders of grain. Banks in North Dakota are failing because of the decline in grains, due to large loans made to farmers. Large companies are being compelled to borrow sums of money at exorbitant rates of interest to pay bills. Money rates are very high and very difficult to obtain. The failures this past month are nearly twice as great as a year ago.

It is safe to believe that a stabilizing point will be reached within a short time and from then on we will have a gradual strengthening as the money conditions improve.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 15.—Europe is practically out of America's livestock market. Great Britain is buying only 1 per cent as many hogs and hog products in this country as a year ago. Germany and Italy are buying no hogs at all. Small countries in continental Europe, including Scandanavia, Belgium, Denmark and Switzerland, are trading amongst themselves. Because of the foreign exchange situation they cannot afford to do business in America. This is the main is the reason for the price declines in practically every hog market in the United States.

One other important factor, but a lesser one is the rushing to market of hogs by farmers who are being pressed by country banks to meet loan payments.

Great Britain has purchased few hogs since July 1. What little North American business she has had she has thrown to Canada. It is not likely that England will get back to the market until January or February.

The money market, according to bankers, packers, traders and market experts, is operating against export business. The English pound sterling, normally $4.84, is now worth only $3.49 in the United States. The German mark has dropped from 23.8 cents to a cent and a quarter. Other European money is considerably lower than Uncle Sam's, with the result that these countries feel they are unable to do business with us and see no relief in the situation until the peace treaty is ratified by all nations and financial rates adjusted.

The packers, in fact, have recently accepted clothing as payment for shipments, and have been selling hundreds of suits of clothes to employes at $18 and $20 each.

Farmers in a Corner.

With Europe, which formerly took America's livestock surplus, out of the market, the situation has become a strictly domestic affair and the farmer is in the corner.

For weeks he has been holding his grain. He wanted $3 wheat when the price was $2. He "struck," but the price kept on going down. The banks loaned to capacity, called for payments. The producer, in order to meet these payments, shipped his hogs which he fed with high priced grain and took the loss.

ROSEWOOD

Farmers' Club Reorganized.

An attempt was made to reorganize the Rosewood Farmers' Club, which has not been operating for the past year, and a meeting for this purpose was called at the Rosebank building on Friday evening. About 30 people interested in the effort were present and elected as president, A. Hellquist, vice president, Selmer Haugen, secretary, William Sorenson and treasurer, Adolph Haugen. As the club's chief work will be as a community center for recreation, social affairs and business transactions, a territorial area three miles in each direction from the meeting place was outlined and the secretary was instructed to secure members only within those bounds. A committee consisting of Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen, Joel E. Shoberg and Benhard Ranum was appointed to frame a constitution and frame the necessary by-laws for the organization. The next meeting will be held at the same place, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 29. Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen was appointed as program committee and Emil Anderson and Alfred Thoreson as caterers. A delicious pie luncheon was served before closing.

Shipping Assn. Elects Officers.

The fourth annual meeting of the Rosewood Livestock Shipping association was held at the Rosebank building on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 11. Business during the past year was somewhat below former years, evidently caused by the condition of the markets this fall and early winter. Seventy-one head of stock were shipped to South St Paul and sold for a gross total of $2145.33. Five new members were admitted during the year, P. M. Pederson, Geo. Snyder, Ole Skaar, Nnute Iverson and Swen Swenson. As directors for the coming year were elected F. G. Dols, Emil Anderson, Selmar Haugen, Benhard Ranum and Swen Swenson, Joel Shoberg was re-elected secretary-treasurer. The directors will have their first meeting at Rosewood on Friday evening, Dec. 17, for the purpose of electing a president and vice president and appointing manager for the coming season.

Annual Church Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Norwegian Bindal congregation was held last Tuesday afternoon at the church north of town. Thoreson and Martin Evenson; trustees, Severt Rafseseth, Even Anderson and Gust Nakken; Peder Sorenson is secretary and B. P. Sagmoen treasurer. # LEGISLATION FOR THE FARMER MOST IMPORTANT

FERRY REPRESENTING DISTRICT WILL WORK ON BABCOCK AMENDMENT.

St. Paul, Dec. 16.—While numerous members of the 1921 Minnesota legislature had formulated mensures they plan to introduce early in the session, many other members are awaiting the action of various committees investigating certain legislative needs before deciding definitely what their program will be.

Replies to a general questionnaire sent to all members of the house and senate disclose that legislation to aid farmers in marketing their crops and the adoption of a tonnage tax law probably will be foremost. The legislature also will have to enact necessary measures to make the Babcock good roads measure effective.

Consideration of farmers legislation is now under way by informal committees and some definite program is expected to be presented in both houses shortly after the session begins.

A committee of twenty-seven members has been named by W. I. Nolan, speaker-elect of the house, to outline legislation covering the Babcock amendment. This committee is made up as follows:

First congressional district: Ralph J. Parker, Harry C. Trowbridge, H. H. Emmons, John Robinson.

Tenth district: Elias Nordgren, Thomas E. Girling.

This committee will meet in St. Paul Dec. 21 in the retiring room adjoining the house chamber. Mr. Nolan pointed out that the committee was not a formal committee as formal committees will not be appointed until the legislature meets.

CATTLE AGAIN SELL ON LOWER BASIS

Supplies Increase Compared With Last Week---Hogs Go Under $9.00

South St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 14.—A light run of 3,700 cattle and calves met with a lifeless weak market and sold mostly at prices 25c under Monday. Practically all grades of beef steers and butcher cows and heifers coming here, as well as veal calves, show a loss of 50c or more for the two days, while canners and cutters are 25c or more lower. There were 14,000 hogs offered and prices showed losses of 25 to 50c. Range $8.00@$8.75, bulk $8.50@$8.65. Best pigs and lights $8.75@9.10. Lambs sold strong to 25c higher, with best shortfeds at $10.75. Good fat ewes sold at, $4.00@4.50.

The cattle trade on opening days this week was featured by a generous increase in the supplies over last week. The seven principal points had about 121,000 the first two days of the week, compared with 89,000 a week ago. With the Chicago market slumpy, shipping demand has been practically shut off here and prices are tending lower, losses on beef cattle this week measuring 50c. The unseasonal weather and more or less unsatisfactory industrial conditions have cut down beef consumption and the narrow demand for both beef and veal is being reflected in the market for live cattle. Some shortfeds are coming, a couple of loads of 100 to 120 day cattle of very good breeding on thru billing were shown here on Monday and rated around $10.25. The cattle were not sold here ,however, but several lots of medium grade steers brought from $8.00@9.00, with bulk of the receipts on the plain order and selling from $6.00@7.50. Fat cows and heifers are selling mostly from $4.25@6.00, with a fair showing up to $7.00 Bulk of canners and cutters going from $3.00@4.00 and bologna bulls $4.00@4.50. Top on veals today was $8.50, being 50c lower than last week's close. Good to choice feeding steers are selling up around $6.50@8.00, with common and medium grades from $4.50@6.50.

Bankers Boost Sweet Clover.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 22, 1920.

You are vitally interested in the financial returns from the farms in your community, and some of you particularly in the regions in the western part of the state, are up against the proposition of receiving no returns.

You are interested in a crop which invariably will bring good returns to the farmer, whether he is in the eastern or western part of North Dakota, whether he is on $15 or $150 per acre land. That crop is sweet clover. According to experiments at the agricultural experiment station at Champaign, Ill., sweet clover is the only pasture crop that will pay a good rate of interest on land worth $600 per acre.

Although no active campaign has been put on, North Dakota is rapidly forging to the front as a sweet clover producing state. In Grand Forks county it is estimated that nearly 25 per cent of the sweet clover seed of the United States is produced. The Red River Valley Sweet Clover Seed Growers' Exchange of Grand Forks will market a standard article of seed and most of the good seed crop of North Dakota this year. That organization of seed growers operates along purely co-operative lines and you will get all their literature in due time.

Sweet clover will grow luxuriantly on dry, sandy or stony soils, which cannot be cultivated. It is the greatest of soil builders, it is one of our greatest money producers from its seed, pasture or forage; and it furnishes an ideal and never falling pasture crop.

Mr. Banker, don't you think it is high time that your farmer clients should stop raising wheat exclusively and should start raising this wonderful money producing seed, pasture and forage crop, if nothing else was done for them than the building up of their farms? Some of our wide-awake farmer bankers are organizing sweet clover clubs in order that they may buy their seed in large lots. We are going to see that you get valuable information from different sources from time to time regarding this plan and later a proposition will be made you whereby you can buy seed on your certificate of deposit if necessary. Please make a file for all clover literature and then talk clover with your leaders in agriculture until you eventually have clover on every farm. Sweet clover will revolutionize agriculture in your community. It has done so at Gilby. Get acquainted with it.

Plowing in December.

December first is a time of the year when wintry blasts from the frozen north sweep down and produce a brand of weather than makes earmuffs almost as common as ears in this section of the universe and nobody ventures out without wearing at least two complete sets of red flannel underwear. At least a lot of people from other parts of the country get this foolish notion planted in their skulls. But the Region is here to tell them that last Wednesday the first of December arrived, as it has a habit of doing and it found the farmers out in their fields pursuing the pleasant occupation of plowing their land, while the rest of the population took ankle excursions around town without a thought of wearing overcoat. And to add to the beauty of the occasion there wasn't any danger of an earthquake popping from behind a corner to fracture the landscape. California papers please copy.—Baudette (Minn.) Region.

The Warren Register last week reported the burning of Roman's elevator at that city on Thursday, Dec. 7th. The building as an old landmark in Warren, having been built about 30 years ago and was at one time owned by one of the big Minneapolis companies. At the time of the fire it contained about 3,000 bushels of wheat, 7,000 bushels of oats and 2,000 bushels of barley, rye and flax. Mr. Roman estimates his loss on the building at .$12,000. The origin of the fire is unknown but it is thought that spontaneous combustion may have caused it.

The Marshall County Child Welfare board met Wednesday of last week at the high school building, at which time Miss Loretta Newman, executive secretary of the Red Cross, was also appointed executive secretary of the board. The members present were Co. Supt. of Schools David Johnson, Co. Commissioner Ole Torgerson, and Mrs. B. B. Brett, secretary. Absent members were Mrs. John Kast of Goodridge and Chairman E. M. Evans of Middle River. The board's next meeting is to be held at Thief River Falls on Tuesday, Dec. 14.—Stephen Messenger.

LABOR AND CAPITAL DECLARE ERA OF PROSPERITY IS NEAR

REHABILITATION OF INDUSTRIAL LIFE IS EXPECTED IN NEXT FEW MONTHS

Washington.—Leaders of capital and labor in Washington for the reunion of the war industries board predicted an early rehabilitation of the industrial life of the nation and that an era of substantial prosperity is at hand.

Conservative optimism was the dominant view of these men who served the government during the war in various important capacities as "dollar a year" men. Clouds of readjustment, in their opinion are breaking and before many months business affairs will be on a more substantial basis.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, a former member of the war industries board, was among the prophets of a better day in the near future.

Willard Decries Pessimism.

"In this country," said Mr. Willard, "we have everything we need. We have not been crippled by the war. We have not passed thru any disasters. We have not lost a million men. We produce more than any other nation in the world; we are the richest country on earth and have the smallest debt. What reason can there be for pessimism? The railroads have not felt any great recession of business and do not expect any. Rates have been adjusted fairly, the railroads having had to meet a 100 per cent increase in their payrolls while the railroad service cost has advanced only from 60 to 70 per cent. This the public should bear in mind."

Salesmanship Held Needed.

T. C. Powell, vice president of the Erie railroad, agreed with Mr. Willard about business generally, but urged that the time had come for business to boost salesmanship.

"Our manufacturers and business men," he said, "have been content to sit back and wait for business. The time has come when we must get down to work and go out and sell what we have. The sooner we realize this the sooner will we return to normal conditions of prosperity."

Says Farmers Hardest Hit.

While confident the nation is in no danger of industrial stagnation, Alexander Legge, general manager of the International Harvester company, stated he felt concern for the farmer, who, of all the country's industrial factors, has been hit hardest by the processes of readjustment.

"Farmers' commodities," said Mr. Legge, "have declined 50 per cent in value in 90 days. This is the most drastic slump that has come in any lines. It will come thru a broadening. Relief will be gradual, but it will come along substantial and enduring lines. It will come thru a broadening of the market for farm produce."

Bernard M. Baruch, formerly chairman of the war industries board, also talked in an optimistic vein.

"Capital is usually most fearful when conditions are safest," was his observation. Capital was confident when prices were highest and conditions most unsatisfactory. You will recall that I predicted last spring there would be a break in prices. It has come and the nation has endured. I think we have passed thru the worst of our troubles. Pessimism is overdone. There is nothing to prevent the country from experiencing prosperity."

Labor Leader Optimistic.

Hugh Frayne, labor leader, also lined up with the conservative optimists. His message to the country is:

"Do not try to bring wages of labor down, but call for full services. By increasing production we ought to be able to put prices down and keep wages up."

J. Leonard Replogle, who was director of steel supplies during the war, thinks the nation can look for decidedly better business conditions by April or May. In fact, he believes the inauguration of President-elect Harding will bring about an immediate feeling of confidence in the country's commercial stability.

The Golden Valley correspondent of the Hoit News announced the marriage of Edward Loven and Miss Polly Warner last week.

Two Men Went Fishing

Two men took a trip into the woods to hunt and fish. During the trip one of them had the misfortune to lose his pocket book and the other one lost his check book.

When they discovered their loss one of them laughed for he knew he could easily get another check book at the bank. But the other man did not laugh. He hurried back to the woods and spent many hours looking for his money.

If the checking system had no other value it would be well worth while from the standpoint of safety alone—but there are many other advantages too. Nine times as much business is done each day with checks as is done with cash.

ELKS BRANDED UNTAMED HERD FRIDAY EVENI

LADIES GIVE CARD PARTY AND HAVE CHARGE OF ENTERTAINMENT.

Last Friday night at the Masonic hall about forty untamed fawns grazing in local pastures and vicinity of Thief River Falls were gathered in corral for roundup. At the hour of 9 o'clock the candidates were led to the slaughter, but on account of the preparatory steps taking up so much time, the use of the branding iron was deferred until a later date. All the candidates became actual members of the B. P. O. E. No. 1308, however, but must live in constant anxiety of the grave and sinister adventure upon which they must embark later.

While the gentlemen were occupying themselves at the Masonic Hall, the women entertained the out of town ladies at a musicale and card party at the Auditorium.

At 10:30 Snyder's Harmony orchestra "struck up" a snappy tune and the dancing began. Over one hundred couples joined in the festivities of the evening. Frappe was served during the entire evening and at 12:30 a two course luncheon was passed out.

A number of out of town people were present and enjoyed the doings.

The affair was a success from every angle. At 2:30 came "Home, Sweet Home," and all reports indicated that this was one of the really exceptionally good times of the season.

She has been in the employ of the government in Tacoma, Wash., for the past year. Charles C. Lovell, the happy groom, is connected with the Birdwell Lumber Company, of Portland, Ore., where the young couple are now at home to their large circle of friends.

Mrs. Lovell's many friends in Thief River Falls join the Tribune in wishing this young couple a long and happy career of usefulness and pleasure.

CONDITION OF STOCK MARKET DURING PAST WEEK NOT FLATTERING

Generally speaking the past week's live stock market has been another gloomy one from the producers standpoint, cattle values at South St. Paul receding to bottom levels for the year, hogs going down to near $8.00 and to the lowest levels since early in 1916, lambs dropping to $9.00 after reaching $11 in a mid-week spurt, and veal calf prices going to a prewar basis.

The cattle market opened weak and lower on Monday, losses of 50c to $1 and even more in spots more than wiping out the advance of the previous week. The declining tendency was partially checked on later days of the week, but trade closed with a weak undertone. Lower markets at outside points, an increase of around 25,000 cattle from the country for stockers and feeders were among the depressing influences during the session. Best fat steers included this week were two loads of choice quality but lacking in finish that brought $9.50. They had been on feed between three and four months. At the week's close bulk of beef steers were selling on the common grade and selling from $5.50 to $7.00 with a scattering of medium grades up to $8.00. Most of the butcher cows and heifers are going at $4.00 to $5.50, with a fair showing up to $6.50. Canners and cutters are selling largely from $2.50 to $3.75, and bologna bulls $4.00 to $5.00.

Veal prices have dropped with a crash this week, the decline measuring mostly $1.00, with best lights at close to $8.00. Stock cattle have dropped along with killing grades, breaks of 75c to $1.00 being registered, with common grades suffering most. Best feeders are now selling around $8.00 and bulk of stockers and feeders are selling from $7.00 down to $4.50 according to weight and quality.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. C. M. ADKINS HELD ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral services for Mrs. C. M. Adkins were held at the residence, 219 Main Ave. South, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, being conducted by Rev. R. L. Barackman, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The choir, Misses Ella Miller and Meta Kleland and Messrs. Rufus Barackman and Guy Johnson sang "Rock of Ages" and "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break." A profusion of flowers and the many friends in attendance attested to the esteem in which Mrs. Adkins was held in this city.

The out of town relatives in attendance included Mrs. Jaminson, of Lincoln, Neb., and Mrs. Harry Latto, of Bellerville, Kansas, sisters of the deceased; Harry Hill and Charles Hill, brothers of Mrs. Adkins; Mrs. Clay, of Oskkis, Minn., and two brothers and two sisters of Dr. Adkins. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery.

INCOME SALES TAX REVISION BEING PLANNED

U. S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE RECOMMENDS CHANGES IN REVENUE COLLECTION

Repeal of the excess profits tax in certain income taxes and the imposition of new excise taxes on articles "of wide use but not of first necessity" are recommended in a report of the United States Chamber of Commerce committee on taxation which has been made public after nearly a year's study.

A moderate and graduated tax upon undistributed earnings of corporations is favored. The committee opposes a sales tax, but says there may be a full expression of opinion by the 1,400 member organizations embraced in the chamber, a sales tax is included in the report as a means of determining the final policy of the organization.

While the committee recommends a moderate tax upon undistributed corporation earnings, the method by which Secretary of the Treasury D. F. Houston and others have proposed to obtain the bulk of the revenue needed to make up for the repeal of the excess profits tax, it holds that it is preferable to get most of it from taxes on incomes.

The committee does not suggest any increase in normal income tax rates, but says there should be moderate increases in the lower part of the schedule of surtaxes on individual incomes.

Other proposals in the questionnaire include:

Payment by individual corporation stockholders of their own normal tax on dividends, the normal tax upon which is now collected at the source.

Withdrawal of exemption from future issues of securities of classes which have hitherto had that privilege and are subject to a federal tax.

Exemption of American citizens residing abroad from the American tax upon income derived abroad and not remitted to the United States.

Amendment to the law to make exchange of property of like or similar nature merely a replacement involving no gain or loss with proper safeguards to prevent evasion of taxes.

Redetermination of taxes on income of the preceding year to make allowance for net losses and inventories losses.

Ascertainment by the government of exact amounts of income taxes due in advance of payment, as a means of avoiding present uncertainty extending sometimes for many months or even years after payment is made.

Decentralization of administration of income taxation so taxpayers may not have to journey to Washington to take up matters which could be settled in their own districts.

New City Directory.

The new city directory for Thief River Falls for 1921 has been issued and is in the hands of the subscribers. This is the seventh volume of the directory and contains a mass of valuable information besides the listing of over two thousand names. No labor has been spared to make the work complete and reliable in all its departments. All information has been revised by the double check system which reduces errors and omissions to the minimum. The book is issued by the John H. Ley Directory Company, of St. Cloud, Minn., and reflects great credit on that enterprising publishing firm.

SUCCESSFUL RENDITION OF MUSIC PROGRAM

COMBINED CHOIRS GIVE SPLENDID PROGRAM OF CHRISTMAS MUSIC.

The Christmas festival of song given by the combined choirs of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches at the Methodist church Sunday evening was well attended, at least half of the audience being unable to find seats and many being unable to even crowd into the building. From a musical standpoint it was a greater success than members of the organizations had dared to hope. Handicapped by the late arrival of music, the organization undertook to present music that older choirs have spent months upon before attempting to render, and it is only owing to the untiring efforts of Mrs. L. F. Fisher that it was possible to present the program at all. The music was all churchly, of a truly festival character, and rendered in a manner that would tax the ability of a much more ambitious organization.

The solos and duet parts of the program were especially pleasing each number being rendered with a finish of phrasing and expression that marked the close musical student. "The Virgin's Lullaby," by Buck, and "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger, were especially notable in this respect, the soloist in each rendition interpreting the master's theme in a truly artistic manner. The choruses were well rendered, but perhaps the most pleasing was Shelley's beautiful "Hark, Hark My Soul," with its wonderful contraito solos and appealing obligato. The great "Festival Te Deum," by Dudley Buck, was also well received and was rendered with true musical appreciation, its being attempted at all on such short notice evidencing a musical ambition worthy of success.

To Mrs. L. F. Fisher, the directress whose able directing and personal coaching made the program possible, is due the main credit for this notable achievement. She was tireless in her efforts, helpful in her personal coaching and particularly effective in her ensemble directing.

The able accompanist, Miss Laura Forde, contributed in a large measure to the success of the evening. No few appreciate the volume of work necessary to successfully accompany such a program. Miss Forde has proved more than equal to the occasion and in consequence receives the heartfelt thanks of a grateful chorus.

It is hoped that the two choirs under Mrs. Fisher's able direction will undertake an equally ambitious program for Easter.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE EMPHASIZED BY THE AMERICAN LEGION

Minnesota men and women who served in the world war are vitally interested in the success of the 1920 Christmas Seal sale, it is emphasized in a letter from F. W. Galbraith, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, mailed to every legion post in the state today by officers of the Minnesota department.

Commander Galbraith calls attention to the menace of tuberculosis as disclosed by the world war. The "White Plague" killed 100,000 persons in the United States while deaths in the service totaled but 67,-382. Draft and camp examinations found 1,500 Minnesota young men victims of tuberculosis. Total draft rejections on account of tuberculosis were 70,00 and 41 per cent of those under the care of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance are "White Plague" victims.

"The seriousness of this problem has been brought home to the American Legion which now is bending every effort to alleviate the condition of our disabled, thousands of whom are afflicted with tuberculosis and are without proper hospital treatment," writes Commander Galbraith in his letter to the National Tuberculosis Association.

"Members of the legion are vitally interested in your community education and organization preventive plan which in my opinion combats the evil at its source. Have been a hearty supporter of the Christmas Seal campaign for many years. There is all the more reason why legion men should support it this year."

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Isaacson, of Duluth, spent Sunday and Monday in this city enroute to Minneapolis, where they will spend Christmas with friends and relatives.

STRONG RESOLUTIONS ENDORSING BABCOCK HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

A conference of state legislators is being held today in St. Paul in an endeavor to prepare advance legislation looking to the early passage of a law which will carry out the provisions of the Babcock amendment recently passed.

At a special meeting of the Commercial Club held here yesterday a resolution was passed favoring the retention of C. M. Babcock as highway commissioner for Minnesota, the resolution being as follows:

"Whereas, it has come to our attention that it is proposed to create a commission of five persons acting without pay to take over and handle all matters contemplated by what is known as the Babcock amendment; now therefore,

"Be it resolved, that this club is opposed to the creation of such a commission or any other commission for such purposes and do hereby express our confidence in the ability of Mr. C. M. Babcock, our present highway commissioner, to manage and in all things supervise the construction of all highways to be built under the provisions of said amendment and under such laws as may be enacted to carry out the provisions thereof; and

"Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to our senator and representatives in the legislature."

FARM BUREAU DRIVE MAKING FINE PROGRESS

SCORES OF MEMBERS BEING ADDED EACH DAY TO THE COUNTY BUREAU.

The Farm Bureau drive for members in Pennington county, which started last week, is progressing nicely. Notwithstanding the bad weather and other adverse circumstances which met the workers on every hand, there were more than one hundred and twenty-five new members reported to Monday night. All the meetings scheduled to be held last week were well attended and the farmers are enthusiastic regarding th organization. Owing to the condition of the roads, many of the farmers found it impossible to attend the meetings but many have signified their intention of joining later. There is to be a meeting held at Polk Center on Thursday night and that will conclude the formal meetings, but the work will be continued by the teams in personal solicitation. The solicitors are meeting with many hindrances, but their enthusiasm is proof against all discouragement. And their enthusiasm is meeting with success, too. In the southern part of the county, where two solicitors have been at work for two days, they have secured as members of the Farm Bureau 98 per cent of all the farmers solicited.

The work of organizing the county is to be pushed right along and it is hoped that every farmer in the county will become a member of the organization.

NEW DEPARTURE IN CELEBRATING THE MUNICIPAL CHRISTMAS

This year the Christmas festivities of Thief River Falls are to be enhanced by an innovation illustrating the true Christmas spirit. Instead of going to the expense of a common city Christmas tree, the municipal authorities, the Commercial Club, the Woman's Club and other organizations are making their money and planning to send Christmas dinners to all the worthy poor in the city. At present a goodly fund is at the disposal of the committee and additional contributions are coming in right along.

The Community Girls, besides contributing to the general fund, will go to the Sanatorium with gifts for the patients and to sing Christmas carols for their entertainment.

The Methodist Sunday school will lift a special collection at their Christmas exercises Thursday evening for the orphans of the Near East.

Thus is the true spirit of Christmas being exemplified in the community life of our city.

Another Chimney Fire.

A fire alarm turned in about 7:30 Sunday evening from the Salvation Army headquarters proved to be nothing but a burning chimney.

The Advertiser Wins.

In business, as in advertising, the man who hangs on is the man who wins out. Eighty-four per cent of business failures are among firms which do not advertise. A successful business grows. Growth can only come thru new customers. To get new customers advertising is necessary.

Can you survive without advertising? Can you curtail advertising and make progress?

RELIEF APPEAL FOR STARVING EUROPEAN YOUTH

LARGE SUM IS NEEDED TO RELIEVE DISTRESS OF EUROPE'S CHILDREN.

The question of relieving the three and a half million starving European children is now before the American public. The matter has been taken up by a representative American council headed by Herbert Hoover as chairman and Franklin K. Lane as treasurer. The Minnesota council is organizing the state by counties and is appealing for assistance in raising a substantial subscription for the fund. The members of this organization for Pennington county are Mrs. J. M. Bishop, T. I. Melgard, Mrs. E. M. Stanton, T. J. Anderson, Abe Shapero, and C. D. Gustafson. This committee held a meeting at the Commercial Club rooms on Saturday evening and decided after carefully weighing the question that it would be unwise at this time to put on a campaign of personal solicitation for funds for this purpose, but expressed the hope that the liberal people of this city would contribute voluntarily to this worthy object.

The state organization is urging the people to respond liberally to this call and has sent out the following appeal:

"Thousands of Minnesota residents will have an opportunity to participate in a "central Europe banquet" during the next two weeks. Local committees participating in the national collection for the European Relief Council's starvation fund, already have arranged to call attention to the cry of suffering millions for food, clothing and medical aid, by serving thin soup and black bread in meetings held in the interests of the campaign.

"The first of these 'banquets' was held at Duluth on Dec. 15. The wealthy and the poor were represented. Speeches were made by labor men and capitalists, by a rabbi, a Catholic priest and Protestant clergymen. The Duluth committee was quickly organized and the collection is under way. Minneapolis is planning to install several soup kitchens in the heart of the city. St. Paul may be the same. The women are actively completing arrangements for their part of the work.

"Herbert Hoover, head of the European Relief Council, made his appeal to America this month to provide $30,000,000 to assist European countries in saving their young, aiding and helpless populations until the 1921 harvest comes. Since then President Wilson, a number of governors, church dignitaries, dozens or national and state organizations have endorsed the humanitarian campaign.

"Hoover did not fix quotas. He announced that this is to be a 'free will collection' and not a drive. He did declare, however, that he hoped to obtain a minimum of 30 cents per capita from every person living in America. And he added that his effort will, to the best of his belief, mean the last chapter in America's Book of Charity for Europe's war victims.

"There are three and one-half million waifs, undernourished orphans and sick children in central and eastern Europe, who have been and are, since the armistice, dependent upon American food, clothing and medical service, cared for in 17,000 kitchens and asylums. The great American associations which have carried this burden are exhausted of funds. We must raise $33,000,000, or about $1 per child, to carry them thru until the next harvest. We are asking every American family to receive some number of them as invisible guests at their Christmas table, to give us the money that we may buy on their behalf, food, clothing and medical help."

It is to be hoped that a goodly number of the people of this city will respond liberally to this worthy call.

FARMERS AND HOMEMAKERS WEEK JAN. 3-8

UNIVERSITY FARM PLANNING BIG TIME FOR FIRST WEEK OF THE NEW YEAR.

University Farm, seat of the Minnesota college of agriculture, is making extensive preparations for the big annual congress of farm folks, which is now widely known as Farmers' and Homemakers' week, will be held January 3 to 8, 1921.

The week will not be devoted to work entirely, rather it is planned to so mix work, recreation and entertainment that the farm people will look back on their week's stay with unalloyed pleasure and plan to attend future courses at University Farm. The recreational and entertainment features will take the form of two evening banquets, mass meetings in the afternoon and general meetings each evening. Good music and speaking, with occasional moving picture shows will be features of these meetings.

The farmer can select the particular study in which his interest centers. There will be daily lectures, discussions and demonstrations by experts on farm management, and farm crops and the treatment of soil, livestock production, dairy cattle production, veterinary medicine, horticulture, handling of poultry raising, and farm engineering and building. The farm crops section will give an entire day to talks by experts on every phase of potato growing, handling and marketing problems. Field seeds, farm organization and facts about costs of production will be analyzed in half day sessions.

The homemaker can also select the studies which will be most helpful in her individual case, whether it be home management, planning meals, designing gowns or the home care of the sick and the welfare of the children.

A score of live stock associations and other farm societies will hold their annual meetings at University Farm during the week. The Minnesota Livestock Breeders' Association will consider more economical methods of production and improved systems of marketing. Plans will be laid for introducing more pure bred sires and increasing boy and girl club livestock work of the state. Speakers of national reputation will have parts on the program. Breeders of various kinds of cattle, sheep and swine will attend the meetings of their own particular associations, all of which will be held during the week.

No fees are charged for attendance upon this great series of instructional meetings. The only expense to the individual will be for train fare and board. Meals and sleeping accomodations can be obtained at the farm. Those desirous of obtaining reservations should write at once to Dr. A. V. Storm, University Farm, St. Paul.

The railroads have agreed to lower their rates in order to make it easier for farmers and home-comers to attend the Farmers' and Home-makers' week. The rate will be one fare and one-fifth for the round trip.

This rate is not announced, but depends upon an attendance of at least 250 persons from points in Minnesota only, from which the one-way fare to St. Paul or Minneapolis is $1 or more.

It depends also on whether the person seeking to avail himself or herself of the reduced rate bring to the University Farm a certificate from the local ticket agent, at place of starting, to show that he or she purchased one full fare ticket from such point to St. Paul or Minneapolis between the dates of January 1 and January 7. This certificate must be signed by the purchaser at the time of purchase. On arrival at University Farm it must be presented at once to the secretary for his endorsement. When it has been endorsed by the secretary, also by a special agent of the railroads, it will be good for the purchase of a ticket home by the same route at half-fare rates between January 3 and 12. If a certificate cannot be obtained from a local ticket agent, a receipt—also to be signed by the purchaser in the presence of the ticket agent—may be taken from the agent instead of a certificate.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our friends for their words of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings received on the occasion of our recent bereavement.—Dr. Adkins and Family.

POULTRY NEWS

[From Poultry Herald.]

The Best Breed.

The eternal question, "Which is the best breed?" is coming into this office about as often as usual at this season of the year—and that means every mail. Naturally those who ask this time honored question are novices, or those who are not yet far enough advanced to be poultrymen at all; for example, those who are simply contemplating "keeping chickens." While it shows a lack of knowledge of the poultry industry, it shows a healthy inclination to "get started right." The man or woman who wants to know which is the best breed also is likely to inquire about the best methods of housing, feeding and, in short, the best methods of making poultry keeping pleasant and profitable. Unfortunately the question cannot be answered, as there is no one best breed or variety for any particular purpose or for all purposes. Those who favor a certain variety do so because in their hands it has proved excellent for egg production. But that does not mean that all fowls of that variety will lay equally well under the same conditions or under any conditions. In the laying contests sometimes Plymouth Rocks win, sometimes Wyandottes, sometimes Leghorns, but the fact that Leghorns win in a laying contest does not mean that Leghorns are always the best layers under all conditions, nor does the fact that Rocks win a certain contest prove that Rocks are better layers than all other kinds with which they have competed. Laying contests are decidedly useful, but not particularly so as a means of proving that any variety is a better layer than another variety. When Wyandottes win a contest it simply means that that particular flock of Wyandottes (of whatever variety) produced more eggs under the conditions, feed, etc., than any other flock in that particular contest. It does not mean that every flock (or even any other flock) of the same variety would have done equally well under the same circumstances.

Any variety can be bred to lay well and fed properly fed and cared for will produce eggs in profitable numbers. Any except the smallest varieties can be made exceptionally good meat producers by proper breeding and by proper methods of selection can be made to flesh up quickly for broiler production or to grow and fatten quickly for the toothsome roaster. In short, any variety is what its breeders make it and within general limits the individual should select the variety that pleases him most, get good stock that has been bred for the purpose for which he wants it and then continue to breed it for the same purpose. None of the prominent breeds, properly bred and handled, will disappoint their owners.

Follow Nature—Feed Plenty of Green Feed.

After many years of close study poultry breeders in all parts of the country have come to the right conclusion that nothing will contribute more to increase the egg yield than a plentiful supply of sweet, tender blades of grass.

Did you ever notice how eagerly the young grass is devoured by the fowls, young and old, during the spring months, when the grass is of the finest quality and how quickly the egg yield increases? Many people heretofore believed, and no doubt many do yet, that this increase in the number of eggs laid is principally due to warmer weather. The fact is, however, the green feed thus supplied by nature in addition to the ration given by the breeder is largely responsible for it.

The nearest we can come to imitating nature in this respect after the fall supply is exhausted, is in supplying sprouted grain, especially in the form of sprouted oats, so easily and cheaply produced in any one of the modern grain sprouters now on the market.

Observations carried on during experiments the past season with sprouted grain during hot weather when grass was tough and fibrous has more than ever firmly convinced us that too little attention is given to this most important item in the feed ration. Of course, we cannot do without grain or its by-products, but we can waste a lot of money feeding grain alone without nature's protective food (the tender blades of grass), and not realize much benefit from our efforts.

We honestly believe that if half the grain fed during the hot weather would be given in a sprouted condition to the growing stock they would mature much quicker and at less expense, the older birds would pass thru the trying period of molt in much better shape and, when supplied with plenty of succulent sprouted grain, would soon respond with a fine supply of eggs and keep this up all fall and winter.

Tells How to Dress the Christmas Fowl.

Duck, goose, turkey and chicken may look like different problems but they are all the same to the eye of the expert dresser of poultry. Learn to dress one and you have learned it all, according to A. R. Hayes, who has demonstrated how to do it in many Wisconsin meetings.

In trussing a fowl for the table cut the skin on the neck from the head to a point where the neck joins the body. By cutting on either side of the neck bone can remove it from the body and the gullet, windpipe and crop can be discarded at the same time. In case one wishes to save the neck as a special delicacy the head should be removed and the skin drawn over the end of the neck and tied with a piece of string.

It is possible to remove the tendons which connect the toes and legs and which insist upon getting between one's teeth when he eats a drumstick. Make an incision thru the side of the leg from hock to toes. The white tendons can then be reached and removed easily or as a group by placing over a hook and exerting a steady pull. The shanks should then be cut off at the hock joint. A small amount of shank skin will remain on the joint and prevent the skin of the drumstick from sliding up when the fowl is roasting, improving the appearance of the roasted fowl.

Draw the fowl by making an incision at the rear. If the fowl is to be stuffed no need to be particular about the size of the opening, but when appearance is considered or when the fowl is to be kept for some time the opening should be very small. The gizzard can be removed by cutting a V-shape at the opening to the gullet and down one side. Remove the lining and contents before washing the gizzard, as it will peel off more readily then. Remove the bile sac from the liver and the oil sac from the tail.

The feet of the fowl can be tied together by slipped thru neat incisions made in the skin close to the tail. The loose flap of spin from the neck can be folded over the back and held in place by the tips of the wings which should be locked over it.

This Ration Makes Winter Eggs.

The following ration for winter egg production recommended by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, satisfies the needs of the hens and is economical and practical for most sections of Missouri. During the past year it has been fed on a number of farms with good results.

Daily ration for hens:

Scratch Grain.

10 pounds shelled corn.
5 pounds dry threshed oats.

Dry Mash.

3 pounds wheat bran.
3 pounds wheat shorts.
13 pounds commercial meat scrap.

Where milk is plentiful three gallons of skimmed milk or buttermilk furnished each one hundred hens daily will take the place of meat scrap. Either milk or some form of lean meat must be supplied in every ration for successful winter egg production. Commercial meat scrap can be obtained from most feed dealers in 100-pound sacks. One sack will supply protein needed by 100 hens for more than two months. Kaffir or feterita may be substituted for corn. Barley or feed wheat may be used instead of oats. Corn meal or ground oats may be substituted for shorts in the mash. Alfalfa meal or clover leaves may take the place of the bran. A good grade of tankage may be used instead of the meat scrap. In feeding this ration all grain should be fed in deep straw to compel the birds to exercise. The mash should be fed in self-feeding hoppers or troughs and a supply kept before the birds. In addition to the ration, the hens should have an abundance of water, a supply of green food and free access to sharp grit and crushed oyster shells or soft limestone grit. With early hatched pullets, housed comfortably and fed this ration, winter eggs are assured.

Farmers Show Interest in Poultry Culling Work.

"Tell this to those who don't believe in poultry demonstrations," says J. R. Hayes, poultry specialist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, who has just returned from a trip on extension work.

"While at Martin Jensen's near Frederic I held a poultry culling demonstration and culled out 66 birds from a flock of 162. A farmer and his son were at the meeting who had stopped work with 50 bushels of potatoes dug and lying on top of the ground. After the meeting they went home and finished picking up the potatoes, did the chores and drove ten miles to a second meeting that evening."

THIS ARMLESS MOTHER MAKES CARE OF BABE

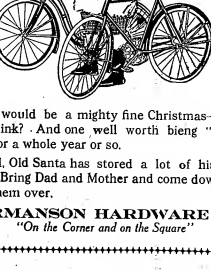
Mrs. J. C. Teagarden, wife of a street car motorman in Denver, has proved again that motherhood knows no handicap. Although armless, she makes all the clothes and cares for her baby, Delphia May, besides keeping house, cooking, making beds and combing her own hair. She was born armless—and until kept at home with her baby, was with a circus. The baby is normal in every way.



Greetings

To you whose business has helped us prosper we send sincere appreciation and our warmest wishes for your happiness and prosperity.

"My Business is Different ---I Can Advertise"

Stop right there please. The very fact that your business is different is the reason you can advertise. If your stores were exactly alike, advertising would be a different problem.

The question is not, "Can I use advertising?" It is can I survive without advertising?"

Competition is growing keener.

Business men are feeling today more than ever the tremendous building power of publicity. They are talking about their merchandise and their service to thousands of people thru their newspaper advertising.

According to Bradstreet & Dunn, 48 per cent of business failures are among firms who do not advertise.

The Tribune affords the best medium for advertising in it's field. It circulates to a paid in advance list of subscribers only and is read by a very high percent of the people of Pennington county.

CHEER UP!

Pioneer Press: Cheer up!

This means you, Mr. Farmer, Mr. Merchant, Mr. Manufacturer.

When you talk of hard times keep these facts in mind:

The United States is the greatest financial nation in the world. Our bank reserves total more than $53,000,000,000.

It is the greatest creditor nation in the world. Before the war we owed $4,000,000,000 to other nations; now the other nations owe us about $14,000,000,000.

There are more than 18,000,000 depositors in the national banks of the country, and the people of the United States have more than $6,000,000,000 of money in circulation—a total per capita of $59.48.

And the only 100 per cent piece of currency on earth just now is the American dollar!

We have just harvested the biggest crop ever. We raised more than 420,000,000 bushels of potatoes; during the past year; more than 700,000,000 bushels of wheat; more than 1,000,000,000 bushels of oats; more than 420,000,000 blshels of potatoes; more than 12,000,000 bales of cotton. most of our crops exceed last year's figures by a large percentage.

The total value of our principal farm products, even at present prices, reaches the vast sum of $9,148,519,000, according to final estimates of the department of agriculture.

We have this year produced 416,000,000 tons of bituminous coal and 65,000,000 tons of anthracite, both figures largely exceeding last year's. For the first nine months of the present year we produced 27,000,000 tons of pig iron, exceeding our production last year by more than 3,000,000 tons. Says the Literary Digest's analysis of present business conditions, from which these figures are taken: "The productive capacity of our farms, factories, mines and forests is unmatched by any other two countries."

Our transportation system is being liberated from congestion. During the first eight months of 1920 we moved 3,000,000,000 more t ons of freight than during the corresponding eight months of the preceding year. In the first week of June, 1920, we loaded 769,000 cars, during the week ending October 23 we loaded 1,026,961 cars.

Says the November letter of the National City Bank of New York: :

"For the first time in the history of the United States a period of expansion has been checked and prices have turned decisively downward without a banking panic."

No period of liquidation on a grand scale is a pleasant period for business. As Judge E. H. Gary said recently: "It is a time for courage, composure and caution." But he added: "The business skies are practically without clouds"—a statement amply verified by reports to the "Nation's Business" showing that conditions in the industrial and mining area as well as i nthe great farm belt are at least 90 per cent good. And how could it be otherwise in view of the very incomplete statement of our huge list of assets, quoted above?

"Always be a bull on the United States of America," was the advice of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. That is still mightly good advice for Americans.

BAKER'S RED CROSS EXPLANATION.

It has become necessary for Mr. Baker as secretary of war to issue a statement regarding the sale of articles contributed for the use of the American troops in wartime by American women. It appears that such articles have been put on sale by the French, who are reselling at a profit here army supplies the Baker administration sold the French government at a huge loss. Mr. Baker explains that the Red Cross supplies were overlooked and sold with the army supplies because they chanced to be in the same warehouses.

Recollection is clear of gift tobacco sold to the Y. M. C. A. as government goods and resold to troops. The "Y" had no knowledge of the blunder until discovery brought undeserved criticism on the association. Mr. Baker's department explained that also.

Explanations are not excuses. There is altogether too much to explain. The women whose prayerful labor went into the articles Mr. Baker's department made merchandise of will scarcely be satisfied with his offhand explanation. To be sure the explanation exonerates the Red Cross as the previous one exonerates the Y. M. C. A.; but neither exonerates Baker and the slipshopinefficiency of his department from beginning to end of the war. Perhaps in time we shall have explanations regarding non-delivery of mail and of pay to soldiers. There is an illimitable field for explanation. And explanation is confession.

It will be a great relief to the American public as a whole when Mr. Baker leaves public office.—Marshalltown Times-Republican.

A DOUBTFUL ARGUMENT.

Argus-Leader: Charles Garland of Buzzards Bay, Mass., declines to receive an estate of $1,250,000 on the grounds that it is not his, and then he adds:

"I refuse to accept the money, because it is not mine. A system which starves thousands, which hundreds are stuffed, condemns itself. A system which leaves a sick woman helpless and offers its services to a healthy man condemns itself. It is the system that loffers me a million dollars.

"It is a system blind to the simplest truth known to every child, the truth that the hungry should be fed and the naked clothed. I have had to choose between the loss of private property and the law which is written in every human heart. I choose the one which I believe to be true.

"I believe I could do no good with the money. It is the man who gives food to the hungry who does good, not the dollars given in exchange for the food. I would be happy to be the man if I had the food to give, but I cannot lend myself to handling the money that is not mine, even though the real good that might be done is possibly great."

We do not know how the Garland money was made, and Mr. Garland himself does not know, he says, how it was acquired, but believes it came from his grandfather. Nor do we intend to discuss here the rights and wrongs of our present economic system that enables a man to accumulate a million or so.

The point at issue is just this, that Mr. Garland is just missing the very thing he claims should be done to remedy the evils of our economic system. He refers to the hungry and the needy and the sick and the helpless women. Because there are such people, who, he believes, are the victims of the system, he will not accept the money.

This is just where Mr. Garland is going to miss a splendid opportunity to help those very people overcome the handicaps put in their way to the system he denounces. What grander thing could he do than to use that money in behalf of those people? He could not merely relieve those in actual want or sickness, but open some industrial plant in which men, women and younger people could find profitable employment and get from under the system he opposes.

In doing this he would not need spend one cent for himself, if he so chose, and could earn his own living just the same and at the same time help the people on whom now he is shedding but sterile sympathy.

As to what Jesus Christ would do with the Garland millions, no one can tell, of course. Judging from His general attitude toward people one can say that he would advise spending it in their behalf. The apostolic band headed by the Master carried money to pay their way thru. He believed in the use of money and only denounced the abuse of it that makes a man selfish, greedy and hardens his heart against the finer feelings of human nature.

Mr. Garland is missing a fine opportunity of doing the right thing at the right time. Supposing that the money is the so-called "tainted" money, which we do not affirm, not knowing any more than he does about it, Mr. Garland could easily have it become purified, we might say made holy, by using it in behalf of those of whom the Master said:

"I tell you truly, in so far as you did it not to one of these, even the least of them, you did not do it to me."

Otherwise, though Mr. Garland is sincere in his decision, it is merely useless and somewhat spectacular.

ARMAMENT REDUCTION.

Grand Forks Herald: The proposal of Senator Borah looking toward reduction of armament by agreement merits careful attention. The resolution just submitted by the Idaho senator provides for steps for the opening of negotiations with Great Britain and Japan for the purpose of effecting an agreement whereby the naval construction of each of the three nations will be reduced 50 per cent for the next five years.

There seems to be no good reason why such an agreement may not be reached. Great Britain is the greatest naval power in the world. The character of her empire demands she shall be able to withstand attack by sea from any power with which she may be at war. Failing this she faces almost the certainty of dismemberment and starvation at the hands of a powerful antagonist. The United State has two ocean fronts which must be protected at all hazards and her communications by way of the Panama canal and with the Philippines must be secured. Japan has legitimate need for a powerful navy. To the average American an attack by this country on Japan is unthinkable, but when the average Japanese looks around, sees how the affairs of the world have been handled and observes just across the Pacific the United States with a great and growing navy within quite easy striking distance he cannot be blamed if he thinks it necessary to be up and doing.

Great Britain proposed to Germany shortly before the war, a joint reduction in the building program. Germany refused. Presumably Great Britain is no more desirous now than formerly to build ships just for the fun of it. America can find better use for money than in building navies of less armament. There is no reason why Japan should not be willing to reduce if the rest do. The whole thing seems to be a matter of getting together.

There appears to be no good reason why such negotiations should complicate the consideration of the League of Nations. Mr. Borah, of ourse, is dead set against this or any league. But with or without the league, reduction of armament must come, either by agreement or by the sinking of ships in another great war.

EUROPE PLANS TO USE U. S. FOR DUMPING GROUND.

Emigration to the United States from central Europe has reached a stage where it threatens to dump into America nearly 1,000,000 of the most undesirable people of Europe" says an official of the American state department who has been watching the recent exodus with much concern.

The emigrants are principally from Russia and Poland and large numbers of them, who are very poor, have been directly assisted with money and advice from America, the correspondent was told. Consular offices are swamped with their applications for passports and steamship accommodations are inadequate to carry all who have permits to sail.

"There is virtually no check on this movement, which beyond any question must soon be a most serious problem in America," the correspondent was informed. "An effort has been made to keep out the so-called 'reds,' but that too is futile, as it is impossible to investigate the applicants carefully enough to exclude undesirables.

"The only thing that can be done, it seems to be, is an immigration law sharply curtailing this business of dumping the down-and-out of Europe upon our shores. And that too is going to be a difficult thing, for there will always be the possibility of discriminating against classes that would make valuable citizens. If immigration should be stopped entirely for a few years, say five, we might wake up to the situation in America and seek a way out of the trouble.

"The government's agents have been doing their best to meet the emergency with the machinery of the law, but that is pitiably inadequate. About all that can be done is to send department of justice agents to New York and 'warn' the grafters and the more radical promoters of this immigration that they must not resort to illegal means. Some of them who were reaping rich rewards out of the passport business—pretending to secure proper papers for sums paid in hand—have been frightened off, but there are others still at work.

"One of these grafters has moved to Berlin and probably is doing a thriving business. Nothing can be done about it. He is within the law, as far as we are concerned. He may go out and collect any amount of fees for 'assisting' immigrants to secure passports—and whether he succeeds in getting the papers, which cannot be held up if the applicant meets requirements, or not he can keep the money. The applicant won't squeal.

"However, such men are only a part of the scheme operating to shift the immigrants into America."

"We had raisin pie for dinner yesterday and pa got awful mad."

"What was the matter. Doesn't he like raisin pie?"

"Yep, but he told ma he had bought those raisins for another purpose!"

NORTH REDWOOD BOY HAS LARGEST YIELD OF CORN

A 13 year old Minnesota boy in his first year's membership in the single acre corn club, fostered by the department of agriculture of the University of Minnesota, raised 120 bushels on his acre plot. He is Arnold Hanson, of Arco, Lincoln county. Another boy, Thomas Hoskin, Jr., of North Redwood, raised 119 bushels on his acre. While his yield was less by a bushel than Arnold's, the quality of his corn was better and his record and "story" were also superior. On points he was given the decision and won a free trip to the International at Chicago, where he entered the single ear contest and walked off with fourth honors. Prior to that he had won the sweepstakes on yellow corn at the Minnesota state fair and also the championship over all states at the Interstate fair at Sioux City. "I am holding my seed corn at $5 a bushel," he says," and if I sell it and add my show prizes to it I will clear about $300 from my acre."

The five acre contest, which was new in Minnesota this year, was won by Oral Zimmerman, of Tracy. His yield was 502 bushels and his immediate reward was a free trip to the International. Young Zimmerman places a valuation of $360.80 on his corn, both common and seed. The cost of production was $75.10, leaving a profit of $285.70.

District corn growing champions for the year were: Arnold Hanson, of Arco, southern district; Thomas Hosken, Jr., of North Redwood, south central; Ralph Phillips, of Detroit, northern; Adelbert Clapp, of Appleton, north central.

FIRE FIGHTERS OBJECT TO CANDLE LIGHTED CHRISTMAS TREES

The insane suggestion of a lighted window candle for Christmas Eve, with its inevitable tragic consequences has again made its appearance, it is stated by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

John H. Stedman, of Rochester, N. Y., has originated what he calls a "Christ-Candle" movement and has sent out a pamphlet urging that it be adopted in all the homes of the country. This highly dangerous bit of sentimentality is based upon the "old tradition" that "a lighted candle set in the window on Christmas Eve will guide the "Babe of Bethlehem to your home that he may bring you happiness." This suggestion has been published by a magazine of national circulation.

The last time that a proposition analagous to this was put forth was in December, 1917, when the American Red Cross suggested that paper Red Cross "service flags" be placed in all windows with a lighted candle behind them. The National Board of Fire Underwriters immediately called the attention of the Washington headquarters to the fact that a lighted candle in close proximity to window curtains, as it would be in a large percentage of the cases, would inevitably lead to hundreds, perhaps thousands of fires, with the probability of many fatalities. The Red Cross officials acted immediately by telegraphing all chapters thruout the country as follows:

"Immediate action. The National Board of Fire Underwriters feels Christmas Eve ceremony involves fire risk and in view of their judgment, desire to do all possible to guard against risk. Please instruct chapter heads and workers and give wide publicity thru press concerning fire hazard involved and importance of not using lighted candle. Be sure direction is given for taking down of all curtains, so that homes of less intelligent classes will not be endangered, then Christmas Eve observance can be carried thru by raising of shades and letting light of room illuminate the service flag in the window, or an electric flashlight, as suggested, could be used on service flag. Board does not expect us to withhold any posters or advertising already planned."

They also prepared the following notice for display in moving picture theaters:

"Important Notice!—Do not put a lighted candle behind the Red Cross 'service flag' in your window upon Christmas Eve; to do so might cause fire. Your flag will be sufficiently displayed if you merely raise the shade or draw the curtains and have the room illuminated."

So prompt and energetic was their action that the consequences of the dangerous suggestion were averted.

Fire prevention forces are spending much time and energy in the effort to educate the public in common sense carefulness. It is therefore disconcerting when a magazine of great influence gives currency to a suggestion which violates the most fundamental dictates of common sense. The reality of the danger involved appears in the fact that figures of Fire Underwriters show that there ures compiled by the National Board was approximately $17,500,000 worth of damage done by fires caused by open lights in the year 1915 to 1919, inclusive, not to mention the loss of life involved.

RELIEF FOR THE FARMER.

Chicago Daily News: Co-operation between the American Farm Bureau federation and the National Bankers' association may reasonably be expected to produce beneficial measures for the financial relief of the agricultural interests, so gravely affected by the decline in the prices of farm products. The plan proposed by Willis H. Booth, a New York banker, is said to have been tentatively approved by leading bankers in other parts of the country and a meeting is to be held in Chicago to work out its details.

In brief, the plan involves the organization of a $100,000,000 corporation for the purpose of financing agricultural exports to those foreign markets that so urgently need America's surplus of foodstuffs and raw materials. Thru the corporation foreign purchasers of American products would be enabled to obtain the credit they require and the securities furnished to them would be made the basis of an issue, or issues, of debenture bonds. Farmers would be encouraged to invest in the stock of the proposed corporation and would be represented on its directorate.

In addition to this, congress has power to open the German market to American agricultural products by authorizing credits based on German property seized in this country during the war and still in custody of American officials. This would afford prompt relief and would be as humane as it would be business-like.

Finally, co-operation with bankers' support for the erection of warehouses sufficient to meet the need of the farmers and permit them not only to carry over their surplus to seasons of comparative scarcity, but also to save much produce that now rots on the ground for want of a market, is being advocated by influential men, who realize the wisdom and necessity of an orderly process in handling the farm products. There is no inherent reason why the farmer should have to dump his crops regardless of price; why, to some extent, he should not do what the manufacturer does when the market is unfavorable—namely, wait a reasonable time for a change in his favor.

Farmers' strikes are impossible and would be disastrous if they were possible. But adequate warehouse and storage facilities to admit of better methods of marketing products and regulating supply are desirable in the interest not alone of the farmer, but also, in the long run, of the consumer.

THE PERSISTENT AMERICAN FARMER.

The American farmer is the most persistent fellow in the world as well as the most indefatigable. We know what he has done to agriculture in this country. Now he is proceeding to put himself over in Alaska—Alaska, where farming was supposed to be next to impossible except in a very small and weak way.

Already the Matsanuska and Tanana districts are furnishing practically all the vegetables required for local consumption. Forage for horses and cattle is being grown and even wheat, the maturing of which was at one time thought impossible, is thru the efforts of the agricultural station now a regular crop.

Fairbanks has the first flour mill to be built in the territory, and it is expected that it will be only a few years before that district will be supplying the whole of the interior and the towns along the line of the government railroad with flour.

The average yield of wheat at Fairbanks is 19.6 bushels to the acre. The farmers there are commencing to organize for the purpose of co-operation in buying machinery and equipment. The live stock industry has hardly progressed beyond the demand for dairy products, but eventually beef cattle will be grown in many parts of the territory

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PONZI.

Leave America with, say, $400. Change it into £100 present exchange in London. Cross to France and exchange it for silver coin (£2 equals 42 francs) and you have 4,200 French francs.

Smuggle these coins into Switzerland. Here they attain twice the value they had in France, owing to the fact that the silver French franc is normal in Switzerland, but the paper French franc is worth but half its face value in exchange. Change the silver francs into Italian paper lire and then pass on into Italy and cash into Italian silver.

You now have 21,000 Italian silver lire. Take these back into Switzerland and you have 21,000 Swiss francs. Now purchase French paper money and you will receive for it 42,000 French francs. Return to France and there buy English notes and proceed to London with £1,000 instead of £100 you set out with.

Change these into American money at present exchange and you have about $3,500 instead of about $400 you possessed at the beginning of the journey. This profit of $3,100 should be enough to pay your expenses for the trip. Of course you have to do a bit of smuggling, but that should add to the novelty and interest of the trip. —From the Wall Street Magazine.

WHAT THE AMERICAN FARMER WANTS.

There is support here and support there for various other planks—planks radical and planks conservative—but we think that on the whole the following is what the mapority of farmers at this time want from congress:

Amendment or interpretation of the anti-trust laws which will make it legal for the farmer to engage in collective bargaining.

Strengthening of the federal farm loan system.

Interstate commerce legislation making compulsory the honest advertising and labeling of woolen fabrics, food and drugs.

Development of inland waterways without ocean outlets.

Enactment of co-operative credit plans to provide funds for farmers.

National control of packers.

Immigration laws which will maintain American standards of citizenship.

Operation of air nitrate plant by the government or lease for the purpose of providing cheap fertilizer.

The appropriation of funds to permit department of agriculture to make studies of cost of production of farm products.

Disapproval of any system which denies to the individual the right to work in any place where his industry is needed and at any wage which is satisfactory to him.

MEREDITH URGES IMPROVEMENT IN FARM MARKETING

SUGGESTS SOME CHANGES IN SYSTEM OF HANDLING OF FARM PRODUCTS.

Improvement of marketing machinery as an essential step in placing farming on a better business basis is emphasized by Secretary of Agriculture Meredith in his annual report just issued.

Chief recommendations from the secretary are:

A world market reporting service, to give the farmer prompt and comprehensive information of production, supply, prices and demand in all the markets of the world.

Studies in marketin gcosts to ascertain what the producer gets out of each dollar paid by the consumer, and what each handling agency receives.

Extension of co-operative marketing.

Scientific studies of producting costs of farm products; the farm labor problem, farm tenantry and the growing problem of farm ownership.

Easier credit for agriculture.

Increased attention to land settlement and colonization, so that buyers may be guided by full information.

Expanded methods of utilizing surplus and waste farm products.

Encouragement of all possible means to limit the hazard of agricultural production.

Redoubling the movement for making country life more attractive to counteract the swing to urban centers.

More research work in home economics.

"We must adopt every feasible means to enable the farmer to adjust himself to changes in economic conditions such as have recently occurred," says the report. "One thing that would help is some means, wherever feasible, of carrying over to periods of low production the surplus from years of high production. More attention to marketing and the development of a latent consumption demand in years of large supply also will be helpful."

WHY AMERICA MUST LEAD THE WORLD IN HEALTH

When the U. S. soldier was overseas, we were afraid that the romance and glamor of Europe would make him dissatisfied with home. But the time-worn remark, "the statue of Liberty will have to turn around if she wants to see my face" seems to express their usual attitude.

Americans are often accused of being complacent and foreigners resent our attitude, but our soldiers had a real complaint. Aside from the overcharging, which was natural when all Americans were considered wealthy, they were disgusted with the primitive methods of sanitation and the general unhealthy conditions in the small towns.

We in this country may be unduly conceited about our achievements but we can't be too conceited about our knowledge of health and hygiene.

In France today a desperate effort is being made to fight tuberculosis. It is estimated that fifteen per cent of the children living in non-devastated regions are tubercular.

The Lafayette Memorial fund committee, an American organization in France, is conducting an active campaign to fight this disease. They are saving many lives thru American methods of fresh air, good food and the principal that prevention is worth more than cure.

But if America is ready to lead the world in the health crusade, she must have a better record at home than the present 150,000 deaths a year from tuberculosis. There are plenty of people even in this country who do not know the value of fresh air, who live in crowded quarters and who pay no attention to sanitation even when there is active tuberculosis in the family.

"You say you had a letter from your soldier son and that he said an army mule kicked him?"

"Yes."

"Where did the mule kick him?"

"Somewhere in France."

General: "Well, what news?"

Private: The enemy wanted to borrow some cannon balls."

General: "Did you let them have them?"

Private: "Sure; they promised to send them back in the morning."

The Reserve Lieutenant (sniffing): "Garlic, I believe."

BY WOMEN, TO HONOR WOMEN, FOR WOMEN

On Feb. 15, 1920, the date of the National Women's party convention, at Washington, a memorial statue to the suffrage leaders, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and Lucretia Mott, will be presented to the United States. This will be the first statue erected by women to honor women for their work for women. Adelaide Johnson, in Carrara, Italy, is making the statue from a solid block of Italian marble. The upper picture shows the statue in its present stage of construction and lower panel shows the woman sculptor handing the block of marble to her home in Italy from which the statue was chiseled.

LABOR PLANS AN EDUCATIONAL WORK PROGRAM

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY TO BE ESTABLISHED FOR MEMBERS OF UNIONS.

Chicago.—Organized labor's plan to establish a central labor university, as shown by the American Federation of Labor's authorization of such a plan, has a nucleus already, according to advocates of the idea.

Charles B. Stillman, president of the American Federation of Teachers, declares that labor organizations already have schools in several big cities and predicted that others will be launched.

Schools, according to Stillman, have been established in Chicago, Boston, Washington, Philadelphia and Seattle.

Thru the aid of the board of education a night school has been established here especially for workers. The labor unions pay the salary of a university professor. All other expenses are borne by the board. The essentials in English, short stories, public speaking, parliamentary law, civic, political history, labor legislation and history of the labor movement are taught.

"The increasing interest in the establishment of labor colleges is a very hopeful sign in the reconstruction period," said Stillman.

Stillman declared hundreds of thousands of workers, desiring an education, have only been prevented from getting it because of economic reasons.

"The night classes meet the situation for a large number, but often the special subjects and character of instruction needed can be provided only by the workers themselves, in co-operation with members of public school, college and university faculties," said Stillman.

"The movement has already demonstrated that labor will extend this educational work under its own auspices."

HEY, KIDDIES! PONIES IN SILVER LININGS

There was "a Shetland pony en' everything" in the silver lining to the dark cloud which hung over this little boy and girl for years. The world called their daddy a bandit and he was away from home, leading his followers in battle most of the time. They are Panchito and Luisito Villa, son and daughter of the former Mexican bandit, who now leads the life of a ranchman on the broad acres given to him by the government, one of the terms to his surrender.

LO, POOR INDIAN IS A MODERN FARMER

Chief Little Chief

Despite the wealth many Indians of the southwest are enjoying as a result of great oil finds on their land, the leading tribes have not lost the instinct for tilling the soil—refuting the old idea that the red man "did not care to work." There are thousands of Indian farmers in Oklahoma, Montana, Dakotas, Kansas, Arizona and New Mexico. And they are even more willing than some white men to take up the use of modern implements: tractors, motor cultivators, etc. Pictures are of Chief Little Chief of the Cheyenne Indians, who is continually urging his tribe to work their farms and not sell or lease them. The harvesting picture is a Cheyenne Indian farmer cutting oats with a binder pulled by a flivver.

PROPOSES CUT IN ARMAMENTS FIFTY PER CENT

BORAH WANTS U. S. TO AGREE WITH JAPAN AND ENGLAND REGARDING REDUCTION.

Washington.—A resolution requesting the president to open negotiations with Great Britain and Japan for an agreement to reduce the naval building programs 50 per cent for the next five years has been introduced in the senate by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho.

The resolution would declare it to be the opinion of congress that the United States would make such a reduction if an agreement could be brought about and asserted the navies of Great Britain and Japan were the only ones of power sufficient to require American attention. The resolution was referred to the foreign relations committee without debate.

League Discusses Problem.

Geneva.—Consideration of the disarmament program of the league of nations as settled upon by committee has been taken up by the league. It was expected that the project would be accepted without modification, but like the plan for an international court which was discussed recently it was to furnish the occasion for another series of addresses.

DRASTIC REMEDY NEEDED TO CURB COAL BARONS

Washington.—Sharp criticism of the national coal industry with the implied threat of drastic legislation by congress to meet the alleged evils of profiteering and speculation accompanied the partial report of the senate committee on production and reconstruction submitted to the senate a few days ago.

In general, the report which asks power to allow the committee to continue its investigation, suggests government activities to bring about cooperation under regulation in building construction but the committee's three republican members, Senators Calder, New York, Edge, New Jersey, and Kenyon, Iowa, supplemented the findings with additional statements all of which agreed in asking special legislative attention to the present methods of the production and distribution of coal.

Harsh Remedy Needed.

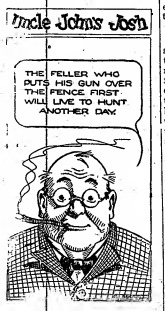
Senator Kenyon declared that "if the matter is to go on, I, for one, harsh as the remedy might be, favor taking over the mines."

Senator Edge expressed as his conclusion that the "coal industry cannot bring order out of the chaos and give even reasonable relief to the suffering public, so I am ready to modify somewhat in this case my opposition to government intrusion into private busiess and advocate legitimate scrutiny."

"Coal profiteering especially as it has followed the priority orders of the interstate commerce commission has continued unchecked by the department of justice and is a national disgrace," the committee said in its joint report.

"Our investigation into the coal situation has convinced us that private interests now in control of the production and distribution of coal, in spite of the effort by some, are actually unable to prevent a continuation or repetition of the present deplorable situation."

Reports Should be Filed.



Government administration of production and distribution of coal, the committee said, "has been the last resort," but for the present recommended operators, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers in the industry be required to file full and frequent reports with a federal agency.

In some fields, the committee said, "there exists a serious shortage of housing" which it held to have a deleterious effect on public health, morals and industrial growth.

"The misdirection and exploitation of some groups of organized labor thru grasping leaders has been revealed in New York and been reported in some other large cities," the report said. "This has spread to some employers, who, working together with such grasping labor leaders, have combied to force unduly high prices."

HALF OF NATION'S COMMERCE BORNE ON OWN STEAMERS

GREAT GROWTH OF AMERICAN SHIPPING SHOWN IN REPORT OF SECY ALEXANDER.

Washington.—Nearly one-half of the nation's record-breaking overseas commerce in the past fiscal year was carried in American ships, Secretary Alexander shows in his annual report. The overseas trade reached the unprecedented total of $11,876,424,000 and $5,071,905,000 of it was carried in American-owned vessels as against $368,359,000 carried in American bottoms the year before the war.

The total volume of imports and exports by land and sea was $13,249,661,000, nearly $3,000,000,000 above the previous record established in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1919 Imports for the last year amounted to $5,328,621,00 as compared with $3,095,720,000 for the previous year and almost $2,000,000,000 for the fiscal year of 1918. The value of exports for the last fiscal year aggregated $7,950,429,000, an increase of approximately $900,000,000 over the previous year and $2,000,000,000 over 1918.

Mr. Alexander also shows that during the past fiscal year the American merchant fleet was increased by 670 vessels of 3,146,000 gross tons and that on last June 30 American shipping comprised 28,183 vessels of 16,324,024 gross tons, compared with 7,928,688 in 1914.

"Growth of American shipping has been wholly in foreign trade," the secretary said, "much more than half of that growth having taken place since the armistitce of November 11, 1918, and the increase of the past fiscal year being double that of any year before the armistice. This increase would mean little unless it also stood for an increase in trade."

Grows Fourfold Times.

Quoting from the bureau's statistics, showing an increase of about 15,000,000 net tons cleared by American ships in 1920 as against 1914, the secretary continued: "In a word, while our gross tonnage registered for foreign trade is twofold what it was in 1914, it has supplied in actual employment in overseas trade 14 times the American cargo and passenger space available in 1914, although in the shorter voyages to foreign ports in North America, requiring fewer and usually smaller ships, the increase—and the demand—has not been so great."

In connection with the growth of American shipping and foreign trade, Mr. Alexander discussed the advisability of charging off "to the winning of the war" sufficient of the war cost of the government owned ships to enable them to compete with foreign shipping on the basis of actual value of the properties. He advocated this course on the belief that only thru such action could the ships, built under wartime stress and at wartime costs, continue to meet the overhead expenses of maintenance and operation.

Ship Values Decrease.

"We must be candid with ourselves," he continued "The value of the ships owned by the government must be reduced to their actual value for competitive purposes at the present time and the difference between that value and the first cost should be charged to the winning of the war. The interest on that difference, the corresponding contribution to the sinking fund and the corresponding allowance for depreciation will be treated thus as war losses, and this is surely preferable to a continued failure to make annual payments on the account of the merchant marine to interest, sinking fund and depreciation."

Although the nation's gross foreign business was the greatest in its history last year, the secretary expressed the belief that American exporters would find it "increasingly difficult to maintain their position in foreign markets without adequate government aid and he urged congress to provide for expansion of the foreign attache service and asked for increased appropriations to be used in the promotion of foreign trade For Latin-American trade development, Mr. Alexander recommended expenditures of 50 per cent more than was used in this field last year.

Aids American Business.

The secretary cited specific achievements of the department's foreign staff as proof of the aid it has rendered and is rendering American business in expanding and increasing its foreign trade. He declared the accomplishments had been marked in every country and suggested that congress develop the commercial aid service apace with the growth and requirements of the nation's foreign commerce.

Estimates of appropriations required for the department of commerce for the fiscal year 1922 were placed by the secretary at $30,383,481, an increase of $10,212,712 over those of this year.

Cost of the field work in connection with the enumeration of population and agriculture for the 1920 census will reach approximately $9,945,000, consisting of about $7,650,000 for enumerators and approximately $1,696,000 for salaries and traveling expenses of the supervisors and special agents, Secretary Alexander said.

The Lighthouse Bureau.

Discussing the work of the bureau of lighthouses for the year the secretary said a total of 634 new aids to navigation were established, including 172 lights and 60 gas buoys, by the lighthouse service, which on June 30 employed 6,002 persons and was charged with the maintenance of aids to navigation along 49,013 miles of coast line and river channel.

In his discussion of the work of the coast and geodetic survey, Mr. Alexander devoted much space to Alaska, declaring that there had never been a well defined and concentrated effort on a big business scale to develop the territory as it should be done. He pointed out that Alaska with more than 26,000 miles of detailed coast line could not be approached without plying the waters that nearly surround it.

The secretary said that hundreds of vessels had been wrecked on the Alaskan coast, many of them because of the lack of proper sailing charts and knowledge of currents and he urged that the present conditions as regards the survey work be remedied by means of complete surveys carried on in a systematic manner with all possible rapidity.

Means Alaskan Development.

"The millions of dollars that are being expended to build the government owned railroad thru the interior of Alaska," said Mr. Alexander, "the large amount of private capital that has been and will be spent to develop her mines, to build up her fishing industry, the certain early opening of the vast coal fields, the utilizing of the great timber resources, etc., all this would be wasted and her vast resources would be worthless if vessels could not reach and enter her ports or visit the railroad terminals, canneries and nearest ports as outlets to the many mines."

Reviewing the work of the steamboat inspection service, Mr. Alexander disclosed that during the year nearly 9,000,000 passengers were carried safely on ships for each passenger lost. The total of passengers carried was 368,870,327 and only 42 lost their lives. The total number of accidents on ships resulting in loss of life was 192 and the number of lives lost 470, of which 145 were from such causes as suicide and accidental drowning, leaving 325 as fairly chargeable to accidents, collisions and founderings.

A cavalry unit was being reviewed and one of the officers was mounted on a horse that had previously distinguished itself in a bakery business.

A wag in the crowd is supposed to have recognized the horse, for he shouted out: "Baker."

The horse promptly stopped and nothing could urge it on.

The situation was getting painful when the officer was struck with a brilliant idea and remarked in the ear of his steed, "Nothing today, thank you."

The procession then moved on without further delay.

"I didn't care about the way Josh's clothes looked down to camp," commented Farmer Corntossel.

"Hasn't he his regular uniform?"

"Not yet. If they're going to keep him dressed that way in hopes of deceiving the enemy into thinking he's just an obscure peasant or something why I say that it's carrying this kermoofling too far."

It is thought that President-elect Harding will ask Congress to create a Department of Education If so, it is rumored that Mrs Harriet T. Upton of Warren, O., will be asked to head the new department. If appointed she will be the first woman in the United States ever named to a cabinet position.

BENEFICIAL LEGISLATION IS ANTICIPATED

Minnesota bankers, business men and farmers are expecting the 1921 state legislature to take swift, aggressive action to reduce crime, if possible, and to revise old statutes and enact new laws that will bring about a more satisfactory method of marketing farm produce.

During the past week, the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul sent a questionnaire to bankers throughout the state which asked:

"What legislation do you and representative farmers, business men, city and county officials believe should be enacted at the 1921 session of the state legislature? (a) For the benefit of the entire state or a considerable portion; (b) for the benefit of your county; (c) regarding agriculture, business and civic affairs."

It was noticeable from the replies that farmers are as keenly interested in the proposed law providing for capital punishment as city business men seem to be. The tonnage tax, as usual, had proponents and opponents. Profiteers were flayed. Good roads measures were heartily endorsed. Several bankers remarked rather caustically that the legislature might profitably employ its entire session by eliminating "dead" statutes and making "diseased" ones healthy. The soldier bonus was touched upon—and the service men seemingly have a majority of the state bankers behind them, although friendly bankers were inclined to warn those soldiers and sailors that the act of one spendthrift who has wasted his bonus, is likely to receive more attention than the efforts of a hundred careful service men to conserve their allowances.

A large majority of the bankers interviewed on farmers' market look to congress for effective legislation and it was pointed out that thinking farmers and co-operators held to the same view. One person offered was that uniform federal laws will help the entire agricultural industry, whereas farm laws enacted in Minnesota might injure farmers in adjoining states and vice versa. Flooding of the American market with Canadian wheat, Australian and New Zealand grain, meat, wool and hides was unanimously condemned. Bankers urged the enactment of legislation to put grain exchanges and speculators out of business and to have a government board arbitrarily fix the prices of wheat and other grains and foodstuffs.

Bankers thruout the Iron Range emphasized hostility toward any sort of tonnage tax. One banker made this statement:

"The tonnage tax should be killed for all time. Passage of the tonnage tax bill will injure the entire state. Killing of the tonnage tax bill will prolong the prosperity of this country for many years. Passage of such a tax bill may lead to the division of the state." The banker making the statement lives at Ely.

Vigorous discussion of the capital punishment measure was rather surprising. Papers in small towns and cities have not given much space to the proposed legislation thus far but it was evident from the statements of a number of bankers that public sentiment in their districts strongly favors the enactment of the most rigid legislation to combat crime and vice. Already, it was stated, men and women are urging their representatives to stand behind any sane measure that is intended to reduce murder, robbery and the assaultive of women. Capital punishment is the latter of defense was suggested in one or two instances. Not a single questionnaire contained an argument opposing capital punishment for murder.

A few bankers threw in—apparently for good measure—a suggestion that an effort be made to "eliminate graft from some police departments." No department was pointed to specifically.

"Swift justice is another step in advance," said a Fillmore county banker. "It would seem that capital punishment would have a deterring effect on crime. You cannot make the Ten Thousand Lakes association a success until you can make the cities free from crime."

This attitude was reflected in a number of questionnaires and it was noticeable that the statements made by men living in all parts of the state, in the cities and in rural districts.

Judging from a few comments, the bankers have been closely watching the actions of service men after the latter got their state bonuses. "As expected, a few proceeded to get drunk and toss away their allowance," said one banker. "But on the whole, the boys that I have watched have done very well. I noticed also that fellows who were hitting the high spots before they went to war (they were single then) have settled down. Possibly their experiences on the other side, prohibition and their present married state brought this about. At any rate many a soldier bonus check has been used to start a savings account, so I guess it was money well spent by the state.

One banker suggested that the state legislature reduce the number of state bureaus and commissions and establish a budget system. A suggestion was made that the legislature determine whether it is possible to tax mail order concerns. Improved laws for the filing of chattel mortgages in registers of deeds offices were suggested. Other laws urged follow:

Improvement of the primary election measures; making two districts out of each present representative district; broader authority for state securities commission and vigorous prosecution of "blue sky" promoters; laws to insure proper care for good roads, particularly the Babcock system and interstate highways, and heavier punishment for automobile speeders and automobile thieves.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALES IMPERATIVE TO STAMP OUT TUBERCULOSIS

Every man, woman and child will be given an opportunity to learn his or her health needs and will be assisted in obtaining necessary treatment thru the clinics to be held throughout the state with Christmas Seal funds next year, it has been announced by local seal sale workers. Reports to date indicate that unless the public of every community buy large quantities of the penny health stamps before Christmas eve, that return from the sale will be less than the $144,000 raised last year.

Thousands of persons were made happy and restored to working efficiency as a result of the 505 clinics held this year. Nearly 75,000 persons were examined at these baby, adult, tuberculosis, nutritional, eye and ear and women's clinics.

The cause of the disease rampant in Minnesota is revealed by the report of the state board of health, which shows that nearly half of the 24,500 deaths last year were from preventable diseases. Of these 11,493 preventable disease deaths, tuberculosis caused 2,244. One out of every ten persons died in the state last year was killed by tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis killed 1,706 persons during the first nine months of this year, a death toll far greater than that from any other preventable disease and possibly meat. Less than that from accidents.

The majority of these victims of the "White Plague" were producers between the ages of 15 and 45 years, a large percentage of them young married men and women with children dependent upon them for economic support and moral guidance. Public health experts emphasized. Every death from tuberculosis, declared to be more costly to the community than a death from any other cause, is held by accredited authorities to mean an economic loss of $10,000.

On this basis, these 1,706 tuberculosis deaths mean an economic waste of at least $17,060,000 to Minnesota already this year, because the "White Plague" is preventable and curable, Christmas Seal sale workers declare. In addition, these tuberculosis deaths made 500 widows and 1,020 orphans and caused incalculable suffering and misery, it was emphasized.

Death tolls from other preventable diseases to October 1, this year, are: Cancer, 1,695; pneumonia, 1,137; scarlet fever, 78; typhoid fever, 50, and smallpox 8. Tuberculosis caused more deaths than even did accidents. Accidental deaths totaled 1,083 for the nine months.

Funds obtained from the sale of Christmas seals and Health bonds will be used to search out victims of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases, to help save their lives and to protect others from infection.

A Song for Christmas

By James Whitcomb Riley.

Chant me a rhyme of Christmas—
Sing me a jovial song—
And though it is filled with laughter,
Let it be pure and strong.

Let it be clear and ringing,
And though it mirthful be,
Let a low, sweet voice of pathos
Run through the melody.

Sing of the bead-brimmed over
With the story of the day—
Of the echo of childish voices
That will not die away.

Of the blare of the asseled bugle
And the tuneless clatter and beat
Of the drum that throbs to muster
Squadrons of scampering feet.

But, O, let your voice fall fainter,
'Till, blent with a minor tone,
You temper your song with the beauty
Of the pity Christ hath shown.

And sing one verse for the voiceless;
And yet, ere the song be done,
A verse for the ears that hear not,
And a verse for the sightless ones.

For though it be time for singing
A merry Christmas glee,
Let a low, sweet voice of pathos
Run through the melody.

THREE HUNDRED NEW MEMBERS ADDED IN DRIVE

ENTHUSIASM GROWING—NINETY-EIGHT PER CENT OF THE FARMERS JOINING

The Farm Bureau drive is going strong.

Every man connected with the drive brings in the same report. The farmers are enthusiastic over the work of the Farm Bureau and are going to back it to the limit. Ninety-eight per cent of the farmers who have been solicited join the Farm Bureau. The great trouble is to get men who can stay with the drive. About 200 have joined since the drive started a week ago, and the enthusiasm is getting to fever heat. It is not a question of who will join, but a simple problem of seeing the individual farmer. The farmer is beginning to realize that he must organize as a protection. The bureau offers the best means for this purpose. The early opposition that was shown has now entirely disappeared as the farmers have learned the real object of the bureau and the good work it is doing in all parts of the state and county.

The prevailing sentiment among the farmers is that action is the only way of meeting the present crisis and they are lining up with the Bureau, recognizing that it is sincere in its efforts and desires to make farming more profitable. There is one thing certain, that farmers must help themselves. Other people have their own troubles to keep them busy. In those times, when the stress of making a living is so great, it is not a reasonable expectation that they will, or can, give much of their time, effort or money helping other lines of business solve their problems.

Join your county farm bureau and do it quick!

AMERICAN LEGION TO STAGE NEW YEAR'S EVE BALL AT AUDITORIUM

Next Friday night, Dec. 31, the local post of the American Legion will give their annual New Year's Eve ball at the Auditorium. The dance committee is making elaborate arrangements for the affair and will spare no effort to make it the gala affair of the season. Advertising has been sent to individuals in the form of postcards bearing the announcement. It was impossible for the committee to reach everybody, but those who did receive cards are asked to tell their friends. It is not an invitation affair, and everybody is invited. The boys are particularly desirous of making this dance a success in order to prove beyond a doubt that Legion dances here will pay as well as in numerous other places where the membership is not nearly as large.

Snyder's orchestra with violin, cornet, piano, saxophone and drums will furnish good music.

The management is to be complimented for their efforts to give the youth of our city a happy holiday.

SENIOR CLASS OF HIGH SCHOOL ARRANGE TO PUT ON COMEDY-DRAMA

The Senior class of the Thief River Falls high school are entering the arena as caterers to the amusement loving public and their initial offering for the year 1921 will be Robertson's three-act comedy-drama "Caste" to be presented by a capable group of actors—the Humline Players of St. Paul, Minn.

The cast is made up of students of dramatic art, all of whom have had considerable experience on the stage. Sidney Kienitz, who appears in the leading role as George D'Alroy, has pleased many collegee audiences with his clean-cut and forceful characterizations. He is admirably typed for the hero and handles his part with a bearing worthy of a professional. Miss Neva Hammann, who plays opposite him as Esther Eccles, clearly shows the result of her experience in roles of similar kind. Her work in the emotional parts is especially good. She appeared last year with the Players in "The Plotting Pot."

Miss Mary Holm, who has starred in several amateur productions, is at her best as the pretty, vivacious and high spirited Polly Eccles, who is responsible for much of the humor in the play. Harold Palmer, who plays opposite her in the role of the simple but generous and likeable plumber, studied under E. C. Crowley, who has appeared with Sothern and Marlowe, in Shakespearean repertoire at Culver Military Academy. His portrayal is amusing and genuinely realistic.

Douglas Ames handles the part of Eccles, the drunken father, with enviable ease and consummate skill. His presentation is worthy of the work of the playwright in creating the vast artistic and inoffensive intoxicated characterization in all literature. The parts of the Marquise de St. Maur, George D'Alroy's aristocratic mother, and Captain Hawtree, also a lover of rank and a firm advocate of caste, are very capably taken by Miss Florence Heneman and Otto Nall. Miss Heneman appeared last year as the leading lady in "The Melting Pot," Otto Nall took the part of Mendal, the old Jewish musician, in the same production. Mr. Nall has been seen in several character parts during his three years in college and is also president of the Players.

LARGE FUND FOR EUROPEAN CHILDREN NEEDED

OVER THIRTY-THREE MILLIONS NECESSARY TO SAVE CHILDREN FROM STARVATION

There are three and one-half million waifs, underfed orphans and sick children in central and eastern Europe, who since the armistice have been dependent on American food.

Splendid as it would be if it could be accomplished, there is no suggestion that these children be made comfortable. That is recognized as a physical and financial impossibility. But it is hoped that as many as possible be saved from starvation by receiving one meal a day, and that to be given only to the neediest. One meal a day isn't much, but in many parts of this desolate world it is all that stands between children and death.

Relief workers in the stricken sections of Europe say time and time again it is difficult to decide the needy, but it is a melancholy task to pick the neediest. So great is the want that only those below a certain stage of need will can be fed. As soon as they reach a certain grade of improvement they must step aside and make room for those more miserable than themselves. In abundant America one scarcely realizes that such a crisis is possible in our twentieth century life.

Briefly such is the condition and American help is needed to avert the starvation of these innocent victims of war. Money is already flowing in to the state and county organizations, and it is up to the citizens of Pennington county to get in the game.

A. Supero is chairman and C. L. Hansen is treasurer of the Pennington county committee and any contributions made to them will be gratefully received and immediately placed where it will do good. If you wish to contribute, cut out and fill in the coupon on page five of this issue and mail to either of the above gentlemen and they will do the rest.

It will take $33,000,000 to carry this project of child-saving through the next European year. Of this, $22,000,000 must be provided for feeding the children and $10,000,000 for medical service and aid.

These amounts will, of course, vary as the official cases.

The distribution of these funds will be under the direction of the European Relief Council—made up of a representative from each of the cooperating organizations.

It should be remembered that the gross child feeding work will be carried on in the future as in the past, largely thru the agency of the people in the country where aid is rendered. The American personnel of the A. R. A. in eastern and central Europe consists of not more than 50 representatives, but associated with them are more than 100,000 field workers, about half volunteers and the rest paid in local currency by their own governments or charities, who do the work, gather the children, establish the feeding stations and who, thru their own efforts and organizations, furnish two units of help to every one provided by American aid.

For every dollar contributed from these funds that are being raised, two dollars will be furnished in transportation, local food supplies and labor by the government of the country aided and by local committees thruout that country.

The American dollar, plus the native two dollars, will give a child one balanced meal a day for a month.

Medical aid, medical supplies and material must of course be an unqualified gift, for these are the things above all others absolutely lacking.

We must have this $33,000,000 at once or desert those desperately needy children in the very heart of winter.

He gives twice who gives quickly.

Change of Meeting Place.

The meeting formerly held in the building west of the East Side grocery store will be continued in the library basement. Sunday evening, the 26th, the subject will be "The Future Inheritance." A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Club Favors Administration of Road Work By Highway Commission

By a unanimous rising vote the Red Lake Falls Commercial club at a special meeting held at the Riverside club rooms Monday evening passed a resolution urging the legislature to put the administration of the Babcock road system in the hands of State Highway Commissioner C. M. Babcock, rather than in a commission of five men as proposed by Senator P. H. McGarry, of Walker. The resolution endorsed the work of Mr. Babcock.

According to the St. Paul Dispatch, the senator wants a commisson of five unpaid men to have charge of the work, but this plan does not meet with favor in Red Lake Falls. Fred L. Farley said that if there is any commission appointed it should be a paid one, but he did not favor any commission. "There would be no graft or bribery while Mr. Babcock was in charge," he said. County Chairman Sam E. Hunt state very emphatically that the experience of Minnesota with an unpaid commission had been sufficint to convince almost anyone that politics domiated such a body and inefficiency was the result.

"Putting the Babcock system in the hands of a commission is just the way to put the road business into politics," said Mr. Hunt. "Our present department stands ace high thruout the United States. Our county has had lots of dealings with the department and has ever found it fair and square and insisting on getting one dollar's worth of work for every dollar spent."—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

FARMERS TAKE STEPS TO FORM OWN COMPANIES

DECIDE ON PLAN TO MARKET GRAIN IN TERMINALS IN OWN BEHALF.

Grain growers will follow their crops thru terminal markets and form export companies to take their surplus to Liverpool and other foreign markets. These plans were included in the preliminary steps taken by the farmers' marketing committee during its sessions at Chicago a few days ago.

The committee believes the time its ripe for the farmers to go into the terminal markets and sell their own grain thruout the United States, using the farmer owned elevator companies and sales agencies

At the close of the meeting the committee adopted resolutions recommending that the system for handling grain crops to the best interests of the producer and the public should include the following:

Farmers' export companies and sales agencies to operate on foreign markets for the purpose of handling the exportable surplus.

The grain growers should, as soon as possible, by mutual contract or otherwise, arrange for the sale of all grain on the basis of co-operative bargaining.

Want Orderly Marketing.

One thing emphasized by the committee is that these plans should be carried out with the ultimate view that the producers' rights should be protected and that the marketing of farm products should be done orderly. Whether this will be done by going into the market as members of the board of trade or by establishing "wildcat" companies has not been decided.

According to the present rules of the board of trade co-operative concerns cannot become members. However, the committee has asked the federal trades commission to issue an order providing for farmers' co-operative companies to become members of the board of trade.

The committee announced that as quickly as necessary data can be gathered by its experts, it will present a plan to put its recommendations into effect with the co-opertaion of the various existing farmers' organizations interested in grain marketing

Experts Gather Details

Two experts have been appointed to gather detailed information concerning farmers' co-operative marketing in the United States and Canada. Both of these men are expert auditors and will analyze the business to ascertain the degree of success or failure of each.

The committee will ask congress to enact legislation to stop the "practice now in vogue of selling grain, cotton and other farm products which the seller or his principal do not own at the time of sale." This is known as short selling.

Dr. E. F Ladd, of North Dakota, senator elect of the non-partisan league and a member of the committee of seventeen, has gone to Washington to confer with middle western and southern congressmen regarding the farmers' relief measures. Dr. Ladd will present the "selling short" resolutions.

UNFAIR COMPETITION IN GRAIN TRADE CHARGE

The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce and the publishers of "The Co-operative Manager and Farmer" have been cited to appear before the federal trade commission to answer charges of unfair competition in the grain trade. The gist of the complaint is that the respondents have entered into and carried out a conspiracy to destroy the business of the members of the competing exchange (the Equity Co-operative Exchange of St. Paul) which is not opposed to the conduct of business of the co-operative plan, thus securing to themselves a monopoly in the grain trade at Minneapolis.

The respondents have forty days in which to put in an answer, after which the case will be tried on its merits.

As there is a well grounded belief that the chamber of commerce has manipulated the grain business to the continual detriment of the farming interests, this case will be watched with a great deal of interest.

STADIUM GIRL FOR OLYMPIC IN OHIO

Elsie Fromme

It's rather hard to associate a beautiful young lady like Miss Elsine Fromme of Urbana, O., with the 1924 Olympic athletic games. Nevertheless Columbus (O.) citizens working hand in hand with faculty and athletic leaders of Ohio State University had this young lady lead them in a drive for $1,000,000 to erect a new athletic stadium on the school campus. A strong bid is to be made for the next Olympic games. Miss Fromme, a senior, was voted the most popular and crowned "The Stadium Girl."

A Twelve Year Old Boy

A banker in another town tells of a boy who started a savings account with his bank when he was only 12 years old. That was seven years ago.

That boy lived on a farm where his father was employed as a "hired man." The family was not able to give the boy any special advantatges.

The savings of that boy grew larger and larger. He raised a pig or two and later several pigs; always saving as much of his earnings as possible.

A year or so ago this boy had nearly $850 in the bank. One day he came to talk with the banaker—said he wanted to draw out his money to go into partnership in the farming business with his father.

The banker helped the lad and his father to get started. They are doing well and the future success of this young man is already assured. He has won the confidence and the friendship of all who know him.

Has your boy an equal chance to win?

Christmas Singing.

The singing of beautiful Christmas songs outside of candle lighted windows throut the community will be a holiday feature this year. This pretty custom was established thru the efforts of Mrs. A. S. Holm last year and as it met with splendid success and the hearty approval of the people, it will be tried again this year. Last year the singers were few and traveled on foot from home to home, but this year it is the plan to cover a somewhat larger territory and a horse drawn sleigh with merry tinkling bells and the best local singers have been secured. The sleigh will start from town shortly after 6 o'clock Friday evening and will proceed northward first. All homes in town and within a short distance north and south, having lighted candles in the windows, will be visited. Elects New Manager.

The first meeting of the new board of directors of the Rosewood Shipping Association was held in the business room of the Farmers State Bank last Friday evening. Emil Anderson was elected president for the coming year and Selmer Haugen vice president. It was decided to have only one manager for the coming year as neither the trade nor the territory were large enough to warrant having two. Benhard Ranum accepted the office of manager for one year. Adolph Haugen, former manager, was appointed directtor to fill Mr. Ranum's place. The secretary was instructed to have new constitutions printed, as there are several new by-laws not included in the old ones.

Items of Local Interest

(From Middle River Pioneer)

The Great Northern railway is cutting down on its labor forces too. Five section crews have been laid off between Red Lake Falls and Warren, among them Ludvig Gulliksen and his crew at Strathcona. M. N. Gulliksen has charge of the Strathcona section in connection with his own section. It is rather tough on the fellows that are laid off considering the time of year and scarcity of other jobs.

This section of the country is now enjoying a season of having excellent sleighing and good automobile roads at the same time. It is no unusual thing to look out and see monday loads of grain or wood being transported on sleighs and at the same time see autos whirl by them at 20 miles an hour. This is a situation that does not exist in many localities. It is only one of the many enjoyable features that make northern Minnesota an enjoyable place to live in after all.

Prof. Holsapple went to Thief River Falls Friday afternoon and officiated there that evening as one of the judges of the debate between the high school debating teams of Thief River Falls and Roseau. The question debated was: "Resolved, That the open shop is preferable to the closed shop." Thief River Falls upheld the affirmative and Roseau the negative of the proposition. The affirmative side was awarded the decision by unanimous vote

A sensational criminal trial occured in the district court at RedLake Falls last week. Frank Plante was on trial for alleged manslaughter, he having struck Ferdinand Morsenette a blow with a pitchfork which resulted in the death of Morsenette. The prisoner was acquitted by the jury, the preponderance of the evidence showing that he struck in self defense. The case is reported by the Red Lake Falls Gazette as being of more interest than any that has been tried in that town for years, the court room being crowded with spectators.

Mrs. Bernard Sathre had a runaway last Friday that caused considerable anxiety for a short time. She started to town driving Oscar Schenkey's pacer hitched to a jumper and shortly thereafter the horse returned to the Sathre home with the shafts of the sleigh. The two Sathre boys came to town on different roads looking for Mrs. Sathre and neither of them finding her it was feared she was badly hurt. But when they and Oscar Schenkey got back to Sathre's they found her at home and unhurt. The horse in his runaway instead of taking the road to town had ran down the grade to Theodore Schenkeys, spilling Mrs. Sathre out on an entirely different road fim either of those taken by the boys.

Prisoners Put $5000 Into Savings.

Prisoners of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater have invested, during 1920, almost $5,000 in the individual purchase of thrift and savings stamps. The prisoners receive from the state for their labor in making binding twine, farm machinery and the other prison activities, from 25 to 50 cents a day. The institution has had an average population of about 800, so that if the final figures show sales totaling $5,000, the purchases for the year will approximate 56 for each one of the prison inmates. Recently a prisoner left Stillwater, after an 18-year term, with Liberty bonds and other government savings securities amounting to $650. Another inmate has $2,450 worth of the securities to his credit.

SEES IMPROVED OUTLOOK

Wall Street Public Opinion: Improved financial conditions thruout the nation are forecasted by James S. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce of New York, one of the great financial institutions of the United States. Mr. Alexander in a statement given out for publication yesterday takes an optimistic view of the general business prospect, basing his opinion largely upon his belief that money and credit will soon reach a more satisfactory status.

Of 1921, Mr. Alexander says that "banking may expect to serve the needs of legitimate business with a lesser degree of credit strain than during the past year." To this he adds: "Business men are justified in feeling confident that the money situation in the United States in 1921 will be a very different factor from what it has been during 1920."

Credit improvement Mr. Alexander ascribes to a great change in the quality of securities held by bankers rather than to any actual deflation of the amount. The banks have been getting rid of their "frozen" assets and accumulating in their places liquid paper which gives far greater elasticity to the whole credit structure and eliminates any danger of a credit collapse, according to this New York banker:

Various depressing factors in the industrial situation also are rapidly getting back to normal basis, thus again brightening the prospect for easier financial conditions, Mr. Alexander states:

"With these factors absent or reduced in degress it should be possible for business men to find ample means for financing their operations and to make their calculations with the definite assurance that the cost of credit it will not be prohibitive while the supply may be relied upon to meet all legitimate demands."

When the great financiers of the country get this optimistic viewpoint and are willing to stake their hard won reputations on public utterances of their opinions, there is not much excuse for giving ready ear to the pessimists. The facts which Mr. Alexander points out are, indeed, apparent to most students of the commercial situation of today.

There is in truth quite common accord that the year 1921 will find the country on the upgrade in general prosperity. Even the farmers quite clearly discern an opportunity for making their business profitable during the coming year.

PROFITABLE DISCUSSION.

Sioux City Tribune: William Jennings Bryan, it seems, has informed President-elect Harding that he should extend Col. George Harvey's ego. Colonel Harvey suggested that the United States invite all nations to join in an agreement that none will fight an "offensive" war without first holding a favorable referendum of its people. Colonel Harvey's idea would still leave the way open for propagandists to lead voters to believe they were being attacked by another nation, as in the past.

Mr. Bryan would leave no such loophole. Apparently he would have no government send soldiers beyond its own borders without first holding such a referendum. If America and other nations would accept the definition that defensive war means fighting only on a nation's own soil, there'd be a end to few wars. And if this definition and the referendum were incorporated into the laws of all governments the people of each nation would see that the referendum was held.

Both plans present perplexities. Frequently, for example, offensive warfare is the best kind of defensive fighting. And would any nation be willing to wait until the armies of another nation had invaded its lands before striking? Would it be wise to wait?

But it is a good sign that there is so much discussion of peace. The idea will continue to grow. And when one gets to the root of the question the change, after all, must be in the minds of peoples. That is one of the great values of the league of nations. It keeps the idea of peace alive and the feeling of horror over war from dying out.

A NEEDED REFORM MEASURE

It probably is not generally known that Minnesota spends annually in the neighborhood of $130,000 for its state printing and that better than one-half of it is absolute waste. This waste is in the shape of so-called annual reports which more than one state printer has railed against, but which still persist. Department and commission reports were originally intended for the legislature and were accordingly issued biennially, but now they are an annual infliction. Showing the valueless feature of a majority of these printed reports the state banking department is charged with the publication once a year of the official standing of each state bank. It is a costly thing and covers the condition of the bank at the close of business say June first. It is issued six months later while in the meantime this same financial report has been published in the local paper. Periodic to the bank has gone out of business or changed hands in any event the information given is not worth the paper it is printed on. With paper at top cost and publishers all over the state fairly begging for enough to get out their limited editions each week, to see the white junk that rolls out of the capitol basement each week is enough to make one fairly weep. This paper is a junior perquisite and adds materially to his annual wage. S. M. Gordon, the state printer, says he is going to try and induce the legislature to reform this abuse, but has a big job on his hands. Others have tried it and failed.—Roseau Times-Region.

THE SAD STORY OF THE RURAL MAILS.

Folks, what do you think about this?

There are in operation today 43,445 rural mail delivery routes, serving 29,891,150 persons, or about 6,500,000 families. Nevertheless there are nearly ten million people in the United States without adequate mail facilities

Briefly, one-third of the rural population is not properly served by Uncle Sam's mail delivery department. Does it not seem, therefore, that President-elect Harding's postmaster general has a task before him that is well worth the best endeavors of the best man Mr. Harding can get?

What a chance there is in this rural mail problem for a brainy, peaceful man to disinguish himself! Not alone in bringing mail delivery to the people, but in also bringing the producer of foodstuffs closer to the consumer who doesn't grow his own food.

The fundamentals of such a great national government enterprise are simple enough even if the details are many and hard. The are three: Extend good roads, provide the routes with auto trucks and pay the carriers just like big business pays the men who go out and bring in lots of orders.

Good roads and trucks would make it possible to convey an average of not less than 1,800 pounds a day, per route, as compared to the present average of 24 pounds per day per route. Good pay and commissions would be an incentive to the carrier, who daily meets the farmers along his route, to drum up business among them. Soon he'd load his truck to capacity with foodstuffs for town—for the consumer who doesn't produce his own food.

With 60,000 routes and 60,000 trucks carrying up to 1,800 pounds, the daily delivery of food from the farms of this country to town would be 54,000 tons a day.

Good-bye then to the middleman. The consumer and the producer would come together, anyway thru the retailer. The producer would get the reasonable price that he asks, and the consumer would get cheaper food than he has had in half a century.

AMERICA'S WEALTH.

"In this country, 'said Daniel Willard the other day, 'we have everything we need. We have not passed thru any disasters. We have not lost a million men. We produce more than any nation in the world. We are the richest country on earth and have the smallest debt. What reason can there be for pessimism?"

These are rock bottom truths of the American situation of which we are reminded again by the report of the department of agriculture. In this report we have a picture of the vast fecundity of our country; the depth of its resources of wealth. The crops have been enormous, their value being about nine billions of dollars.

That is a shrinkage of five billions from last year, but it is an enormous total. Why not think of that? The drastic deflation is painful. In some cases it cuts to the quick, but after all the basic strength of the country remains the same ,and in that is the welfare of our people year in and year out.

Mr Willard is right. Americans ought to be thankful for their lot and confident even in the midst of difficulties and losses. We have now aplenty, but they will be overcome. The restorative powers of the country are unparalleled and they have not been impaired.—Chicago Tribune.

GUARDING THE OUTER GATES.

Harvey's Weekly: It should be borne in mind that immigration occurs chiefly for two purposes. One is provide this country with a much needed supply of working men. The other is to give the people of other lands opportunity to better their condition. Obviously both of these amply justify the United States in imposing and insisting upon such regulatory principles as those which we have here suggested. If we are letting immigrants in because we want them to do our work, we assuredly have a right to select our own employes and to determine how many of them we want, and in what parts of the country and in what occupations we want them. If we are altruistically letting them come in better their own lot, we have no less right to insist that they shall not come in such a way as to injure this country, and thus not only prove a detriment to us but also actually to defeat their own ends by impairing the value of the hospitality which they seek.

According to our own supreme authorities, the purpose of our government is to secure to the people certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and to insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity; and in order that these purposes may be best fulfilled it is imperative-ly incumbent that we shall not only rightly order the affairs of all who are actually dwelling in this country, but shall also with equal wisdom, discretion and resolution guard and inspect all entry at our outer gates.

Prices of hogs and cattle are at the lowest points for years, but it seems that the packers and meat dealers have not yet received the news. Too busy to read the papers, perhaps.

Germany is buying great quantities of Australian wool. She would buy American wool if she were permitted. And when the war laws are repealed she will be in our market.

---

Of course reports are probably exaggerated when they describe three million Italians as standing in line asking for tickets to America. But without doubt there is a flood of immigration ready to break in great waves. Now we could use some of those workers to good advantage in construction camps and the like, where natives refuse to work; but we don't need more camorrists than we already have. We've a supply of that sort of disturbers.

Somewhere between the cow and the consumer leather is doing a regular blue sky. The retailer denies that he is particeps criminis and has the figures to show for it. Don't spend too much energy cussing the retailer; ask your congressman why there is so much talk in congress about the big profiteers and so little done to the profiteers.

---

It is said that this is to be a post-card Christmas to a larger extent than ever before. If the country postmasters take time to read them all, as it is alleged they do, Burleson may never get them all delivered.

---

One can hardly believe the reports of conditions that exist in Europe, or at least in some sections of the war torn countries over there. But however much we may blame them for their part in bringing these conditions upon themselves, we cannot forget the helpless children who had no part in bringing their sad plight upon themselves. Out of our plenty, we should at least see that the children have enough to eat, some clothing and such medical care as will enable them to get thru this winter.

SENATORS DIFFER ON SUSPENION OF IMMIGRATION

30 FAVOR A TEMPORARY BAR PENDING PASSAGE OF RESTRICTIVE LAWS.

Unanimity of belief that legislation further to restrict immigration is necessary, but marked division of opinion on immediate measures to check the influx of foreigners were disclosed by a poll of the members of the senate at Washington.

To each of the 96 senators in the capital was put this question:

"Do you favor temporary suspension of immigration pending the enactment of restrictive legislation?"

Thirty Favor Alien Ban.

Thirty senators responded in the affirmative, 12 in the negative and 54 were noncommittal. Those who were noncommittal on the question said that they desired to reserve judgment pending the inquiry of the senate committee on immigration, which will begin consideration tomorrow of the house bill suspending immigration for one year. The committee intends to conduct extensive hearings on the measure and to consider also Senator W. P. Dillingham's bill for a percentage restriction and Senator Thomas Sterling's bill for restriction by an administrative commission.

Senator L. B. Colt of Rhode Island chairman of the immigration committee: "I have always been inclined to be liberal on the question of immigration. I am not prepared to say what my final attitude will be in regard to temporary suspension of immigration, although my inclination is to believe that it would not be necessary or wise. The investigation which the committee is about to begin will show whether there is a horde of immigrants preparing to come to the United States, as has been reported. I am not yet convinced that such is the case.

"There are two distinct questions involved. One relates to the need of emergency legislation relative to conditions following the war. The other relates to permanent restrictive legislation."

Kenyon Favors Suspension.

Senator W. S. Kenyon of Iowa: "Yes, I favor suspension of immigration. We must give the melting pot a chance to get in its work on the immigrants that have already entered the country. We want an opportunity to see how we stand."

Senator J. I. France of Maryland: "I do not believe that it would be wise to suspend all immigration laws, though I am in favor of some restrictive laws that would keep out the undesirables. I do not believe that under the hard conditions existing in the world today that the bars should be raised against the Jews and the Irish. I shall offer an amendment to any immigration bill exempting the Jews and the Irish from its operation. We could very well bring all the Irish over, and the Jews. They would make good citizens. The Jews have no country of their own—unless the United States, where they are free from persecution, could be so considered."

Senator W. I. Jones of Washington: "I think that it would be well to raise the bars against all immigration until we can decide upon a permanent policy. We have too many aliens in this country now who have not been assimilated. I was a visitor at Ellis Island the other day and I found a man who had been in this country for 15 years, but he could not speak English. That is proof of what I mean."

U. S. SOLDIERS IN GERMANY COST $257,065,084

THIS COUNTRY HAS HUGE SUM COMING FROM THE BERLIN GOVERNMENT.

Washington—Following announcement from Brussels that there is under discussion the withdrawal of the American troops from the occupied Rhineland area in Germany in order to reduce the heavy expense upon Germany due to the presence of the armies of occupation, the war department made an announcement of the total cost to Germany for maintenance of the American Rhineland force up to June 30, 1921.

From the beginning of the occupation until that time the total cost of American forces in Germany, which Germany must pay, amounted to $257,065,084.

Up to that time Germany had paid to the United States on this account $34,724,658, leaving a net balance due to the United States under the terms of the armistice requiring Germany to reimburse the powers for the occupational cost of $222,340,425.

In December, 1918, the maintenance cost of the American army in Germany was $34,344,060. The heaviest month was January, 1919, when the cost totaled $39,234,000, but the expense dropped rapidly each month as the force was reduced until June last it was only $2,204,000.

Officials of the government said they had heard no definite proposal for withdrawing the American troops from the Rhineland, but admitted the subject was under consideration based on a suggestion to the reparations conference that a military commission be appointed to reduce expenditures of the occupation. Withdrawal of American troops is regarded as the most likely because their maintenance expense is the highest.

Prevent Calf Diseases.

Many calf ailments are due to improper feeding or insanitary conditions, or both. Keep the calf out of cold rains in winter as much as possible and provide a dry well bedded stall at night.

Provide nature's tonics—exercise, sunshine, pure air, abundance of fresh water and a variety of feeds—and there will be little need for medical attention. It is better to prevent the occurrence of disease than to be under the necessity of curing it afterwards.

Observe the calf at all times. If it should appear drowsy, feverish, stiff or sluggish, act quickly. Reduce feed at once and the disorder may in a large measure be prevented. Keep salt before the calf at all times. An abundant supply of fresh water should be available always.

Some of the commoner ailments can be treated by following instructions which are contained in various bulletins and publications of the United States department of agriculture. In case of serious illness, consult a competent veterinarian at once. Do not delay.

Fur Bearers Consume Waste.

Generally speaking, it is not wise to exterminate fur-bearing animals indiscriminately, say specialists of the biological survey, United States department of agriculture. In most cases the smaller fur-bearing creatures do little damage on the farm. Often they perform a positive service by ridding the orchards and fields of some of their worst pests. Unless they are found guilty of killing the chickens or doing some equally definite injury, it is far more profitable to spare the fur bearers until seasonal conditions will permit a full return from the pelt.

New Railway Rates and the Cost of Living

In its issue of October 11, the New York Times, commenting Editorially, has the following to say:—

"WHEN the railways were allowed to increase rates to offset their compulsory increase of wages, it was predicted that the consumers of goods would pay both bills.

"The test of these theories is now at hand. The increase of rates is in full force, and prices of goods are falling as fast as is desirable. The higher cost of moving freight has not reduced the volume of traffic.

"The cars are moving faster and carrying more tons, with the result that fewer cars are necessary, as well as fewer men.

"That is 'making' money by saving it. The railways could not have done it alone. The shippers who used the cars for warehouses, and who loaded as little as was necessary to get carload rates, instead of as much as the cars could carry, are now co-operating with the railways.

"Here there is another hint why the increase of rates will not be a burden to consumers of goods. The costs of production will be reduced with the improvement of railway service."

| | Sept. 1919 | Sept. 1920 |
|---|---|---|
| Average Trainload - | 765 tons | 865 tons |
| Average Carload - - | 28.4 tons | 30.3 tons |
| Average Car Movement | 23.7 miles per day | 31.4 miles per day |

Charles Austin Bates Said:

More things enter into advertising than are generally supposed. In fact, everything that connects a name and a business in people's minds is advertising.

Membership in churches and clubs and societies, the giving of social entertainments, public charities —all these things and more are advertising. But greater and broader and better and easier than all these is newspaper advertising. You may think of that without thinking of the other plans, but no scheme of publicity is complete without the newspaper.

Properly prosecuted, newspaper advertising will always pay. That here and there is a man who says: "Advertising doesn't pay; I've tried it," proves nothing but that his method was faulty.

Advertising is business news. It tells of things which are of great daily importance. It is of more account to the frugal housewife to know where she can get certain necessary commodities at a less price than usual, than to know all the troubles in Siam or Alaska.

The news should be news. It should not be allowed to grow stale with repetition in the same old way.

Merely publishing your name, address and business will do some good, but there's a better way. Be different from others in your line. Find some point in which you excel and harp on that. Gives prices and specialties. Try to make the advertisements interesting and readable. Make them characteristic of your store, and, above all things, make them true in letter, in spirit. Don't say that you haven't time to attend to your advertising properly. Really, you haven't time to do anything else. Advertising is the most important thing about any business. It is the vital spark. What good does it do you to have the very best thing or the very greatest bargain on earth if people do not know it?

The trade will follow.

The Tribune is here to serve you as a disseminator of advertising news in this locality

Pennington County Should Lead in Farm Bureau Drive

VOL. 20 No 85 THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1920 Official Paper of Pennington County

SUBSTANTIAL SUM SECURED NEEDY CHILDREN

SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS CONTRIBUTED BY PENNINGTON COUNTY ENTHUSIASTS.

The drive put on in Thief River Falls for the relief of the European children has been very successful up to the present time. Friday morning Mr. Sapero secured the services of the following citizens to go out and solicit funds: O. Osthy, Nat Harris, Louis Johnson, L. Larson, Christ Stockholm, Ferdie Brown, Elmer Bennis and Andy Anderson. These gentlemen gave their time as well as contributing liberally to the cause in cash. They report that everyone approached contributed willingly and their only regret was that they could not give more. No one was urged to give, but the matter was placed before them and they were allowed to do as they thought best without further persuasion. The result at the present time approximates $600. But the books are not closed yet and it is possible for anyone so minded to send a check to C. L. Hansen, the treasurer of the fund, and have it included in the total for the county.

Mr. Sapero relates a touching incident regarding a working women who brought him $30 and said she wanted three of the invisible guests for the year. She said her food choked her when she thought of those children living on one meal a day of black bread and water.

Hoover has promised to obtain sufficient food, clothes and medicine and to administer to the waifs of Poland, Austria, Hungary, Germany and portions of the Balkans, if a fund of $33,000,000 is provided.

This means the equivalent of 30 cents from every man, woman and child in America. It means, also, that one of the most stupendous relief efforts ever undertaken can be successfully carried out at a cost of less fum $10 per child. Less than the cost of a family dinner at a first class hotel!

Can it be done? Hoover says it can. Seventeen thousand hospitals, feeding kitchens, clinics and the like can be maintained until next summer, he insists. When the 1921 harvest is reaped America's aid will be permanently withdrawn, as it was withdrawn from Belgium, France and Italy.

If these starving waifs, to be fed by America this winter, were grouped at a gigantic table, it would be 1,000 miles long, longer than the length or breadth of continental Europe; longer than the distance from the American border to the Gulf of Mexico.

Dr. D. Edmund Smith, of Minneapolis, who had charge of an American hospital at Lourics, France, until after the armistice, was quoted as an authority on refugee appreciation.

"I have been home for several months, but scarcely a week passed without the arrival of cards and letters from French children and women who were treated in American hospitals. Some of the letters were written in French; others in English. Simple, often tearful in expressions of gratitude. These missives all tell the same story—that these victims never will forget."

Ten dollars will buy an Invisible Guest certificate, certifying that the bearer is supporting one of these waifs until next harvest.

Isn't it worth while?

Assistant Cashier First and Peoples State Bank Resigns

Theo M. Thronson, assistant cashier of the First and Peoples State Bank, has resigned his position with the bank, to take effect the first of the new year. Mr. Thronson has been with the bank since July, 1918, and during his residence in this city has made many business and social friends who are loath to see him sever his associations here. Mr. Thronson has been offered a position in a large financial institution in Minneapolis, but has not yet decided whether to accept the proposition or to take up another that promises as well or even better. In any event his home will remain in Thief River Falls until spring.

Mr. Gibson said that soon after the birth of the pig on the death of its mother it was adopted by the pointer dog of a hitter of pups, and that the pig continued to associate with its foster brothers and sisters after it became well grown. He declared that the hunting proclivities of the pig were accidentally discovered the first time the young dogs were taken to the field. The pig accompanied the party and taking an active part in the hunt.

FORMER SERVICE MEN TO RECEIVE PHYSICAL EXAM

FUNDS FROM CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE TO HELP MAKE QUOTA FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Physical examination of all former service men in Minnesota will be made by the federal government if the offer to assist in making a test census in this state, made by the Minnesota Public Health Association is accepted.

A proposal that the American Legion and the United States Public Heal service together undertake the physical examination of all the ex-service men i nsome one state has been made by Dr. Haven Emerson, the new chief medical adviser of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance. This census would serve as a basis in estimating the total number of disabled ex-service men in the whole country.

Dr. Emerson proposes to hold the state census as a preliminary to a thorough physical examination of all the 5,000,000 men and women who served in the army, navy and marine corps in the world war. This would be as big a work as the draft.

Minnesota, which has more than 60,000 Legion members, is the first state which has offered to co-operate. Officials of the department of Minnesota of the American Legion have just been notified of the proposal.

Funds obtained thru the annual Christmas Seal sale are used to finance the activities of the state and the 86 affiliated county public health associations which would work as a state unit in assisting the national agencies in making the census.

"Our diagnostic traveling clinics are highly developed thruout the state and would lend themselves usefully for expansion for this purpose," states the telegram to Dr. Emerson from Miss Linda James, acting executive secretary of the Minnesota Public Health Association.

"Our 100 per cent county organization for health work would aid in securing a complete census of the disabled service men. If Minnesota is selected for this census, the Minnesota Public Health Association offers its hearty co-operation."

The extent of tuberculosis among Minnesota young men is indicated by the revelations of the draft army physical examinations during the world war, which resulted in 1,000 men being rejected by draft boards and scores of others being discharged from mobilization camps because they were victims of the "White Plague."

Curfew Cuts Crime.

Chicago—Crime in Chicago was reduced 25 per cent during the last few days, Michael Hughes, chief of detectives, estimates. Hughes said there were only 22 holdups in 24 hours while the average is 40; only seven automobiles were stolen—half the usual number, and fewer burglaries were reported. Wholesale arrests by raiding cigar stores, pool rooms and other hangouts for crooks and the "curfew rule," by which everyone found on the streets after 1 a. m. is searched, were credited by Hughes as the reason for the decrease in crime.

Watched Pot Explodes.

Newark, N. J.—Maybe a watched pot never boils, but some prunes Mrs. Samuel Gibordon was boiling exploded, wrecked the kitchen and set fire to the house.

The campaign for membership in the Pennington county farm bureau is said to be progressing favorably, which is as it should be. It should not be hard to convince any sensible farmer of the value of this institution. It is one that he runs himself for his own benefit, which cannot be said of all the so-called farmers organizations which have sprung up in this country at various times.

Ten Carloads of Christmas Trees.

Minneapolis News: Christmas trees were not as numerous in Minneapolis homes this year as last, the dealers said after checking up on the Christmas stock unsold.

It is estimated that from eight to ten cars each containing from 4,500 to 5,000 trees will have to be handled in dumping grounds where the poor, who are in need of firewood, may get them.

The average price of each car is $600. In former years the number of trees left unsold was negligible, but this year people did not seem anxious to buy them.

According to Morris Posnick, of the Morris Fruit Co., sales dropped 30 per cent this year over last year.

THE RINGMASTER

STOCK PRICES LOOKING UP DURING PAST WEEK ---RECEIPTS LOWER

South St. Paul—The livestock market gave a little better account of itself last week than during the previous week, a sharp dropping off in receipts being the chief bullish influence. Local supply for the five days of the week totaled 7,473 cattle, 32,015 hogs and 4,273 sheep, compared with 13,501 cattle, 61,064 hogs and 9,786 sheep for the same period, of the previous week. General movement to leading centers also showed a falling off for the period.

Considering light receipts, the cattle market was disappointing to the selling side. Opening days found a dull and weak undertone in the market, but trade radiated a little more activity on Wednesday and Thursday and some of the beef cattle showed strength, but there were only scattered spots that showed any appreciable advance for the week. A few head of steers sold up to $8.50, but the practical top for the week was $8.25, paid for some Montana lots of good quality. A few sold from $7.60 to $8.00, but bulk was of the close. Steers and heifers in the trade was weak to lower early in the week and while good to choice grades closed firm, others were lower than a week ago. Few are selling above $7.50. There is little or no call from the country for common and medium grades and those went mostly to killers for their canner and cutter values, ranging in price from $3.00 to $5.50.

The hog market advanced sharply last week and the bulk of sales at the close were going at $9.20 to $9.30, with tops at $9.30. Lamb market was uneven, with closing top at $10.50, and best handyweight ewes at $3.75.

American Legion Dance be in the Auditorium Friday

Census Returns.

It required the use of 110,000,000 cards to record the population of the United States in making the last census.

Europe can't be allowed to play both ends against the middle and while receiving help from America to take of her people, continue to assist herself by sending her undesirables thru Ellis Island. There's a big difference between selecting what we want in immigration and permitting Europe to send us what she chooses.

Congress has passed one of the bills designed to give some relief to the agricultural interests of the country. It will soon go to Wilson for his signature, and already predictions are being put forth that he will veto it. Wilson always was somewhat contrary, when the best interests of the nation were concerned.

U. S. Button Not to Appear on the Clothes of Civilians

Many young men in this locality are wearing the United States army uniform. There is probably no plausible reason why this should not be permitted, and in fact it is not prohibited if the one simple reservation which provides that the original type of U. S. buttons be exchanged for any other variety, be adhered to. Possibly many do not realize that U. S. statutes make it unlawful to disregard this matter. Even ex-soldiers are only allowed to wear their uniforms for a specified length of time, after release from the service ,except on certain occasions. Persons who knowingly indulge in this practice, ostensibly aiming to lend the impression that they had seen service, are unworthy citizens. There is no argument in their favor. The mere fact that they are openly violating laws of the United States is sufficient reason to warrant the discontinuance of the practice. Many of course are unaware that in wearing the uniform with U. S. buttons attached they are violating the law. In that event it is to their interest to inform themselves at once.

Community Girls Celebrate Christmas at Sanitorium

The Community Girls took an outing Christmas day. At nine o'clock they started, a dozen strong, headed by Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, for a visit to the patients at Oak Park Sanatorium. They invaded the place filling it with good cheer, presents, songs, joys and Christmas spirit, giving the patients a regular time, such as only nice, pretty, healthy Minnesota girls can give. And to show no ingratitude and to avoid bringing too much "pep" back to town, they stopped at the county farm and unstopped at the county farm and unsame. May they live long and prosper—thus continually radiating Christmas cheer.

ICE CUTTING COMMENCED TUESDAY--HARVEST WILL ECLIPSE FORMER YEARS

The Red Lake Ice Company started cutting ice from the upper Red Lake river Tuesday morning. Two teams and a large number of men are on the job. The cut is expected to be unusually large this year as the demand for ice is increasing each year and there was quite a shortage of ice the latter part of the summer. The company has usually taken out about three hundred cars, but owing to the scarcity last summer and the fact that a large number of orders have been received from other towns that total will be multiplied several times before the cutting is over. The ice cut from the river near Thief River Falls is of unusual purity and thickness thus making it in great demand in other towns which have not our facilities.

SOWN RED CLOVER WHEN WORK IS SLACK

Red clover has been styled the corner stone of agriculture in the north central and eastern states.

Many farmers will begin laying the corner stone as early as February, when it is customary in many sections to sow red clover on the surface of the snow, so that it will sink into the snow with the first thaw in the spring. Red clover is hardy and is not injured by ordinary cold; and the fact that it can be sown at a season when work on the farm is comparatively light adds to the economy of its cultivation.

The first important point to be observed is the selection of good seed, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Considerable care should be used in this respect well in advance of the time of seeding. This is particularly true at present, when a large proportion of the red clover seed used in the United States comes from abroad. If poor seed is used the expected crop may be a partial or total failure.

Good red clover seed is plump or well filled, bright with a slight luster, the color of individual seeds ranging from violet to light yellow. The individual seeds should be at least medium sized and fairly uniform and free of adulterants of any kind and from seeds of noxious weeds.

Home grown seed is desirable, especially in the north, because it is almost certain to be adapted to local conditions. If it is not available, samples should be obtained from reliable dealers. These should be examined for adulterants, weed seeds and shriveled seeds. They should be tested for germination before purchasing in quantity.

In the absence of more accurate methods an estimate should be made of the proportions of true red clover seed and of weed seed and other impurities. From the red clover seed separated from all impurities a counted number, say 100, should be taken just as they come. These seeds should be placed between layers of moistened cloth of paper or merely covered in a bed of sand or light soil. A dinner plate covered with another is a suitable germinating receptacle. It can be kept in the living room at a temperature between 65 and 85 degrees. Between the third and sixth days the sprouting ability of the seed should be shown.

It should be borne in mind that the seeder's value of the seed is represented by the amount of true clover which will germinate with reasonable promptness. Thus, if four-fifths of a sample is pure clover and only three-fourths will sprout, then only three-fifths, or 60 per cent, of the original seed as offered will grow. Thus the germination test has an important bearing on the worth of the seed offered to the farmer.

A seed testing service is maintained by the United States department of agriculture, where 29,638 samples of various seeds were tested and examined in the last fiscal year—16,442 in Washington and 13,196 in the five branch seed testing stations. Similar service is offered by the various state experiment stations. The department also exercises a strict inspection service over field seeds brought from foreign countries, and last year 5,000,000 pounds of various seeds were rejected or held for cleaning before being allowed to be offered to American farmers.

Nevertheless the closest scrutiny is necessary on the part of the farmer who desires a good stand of clover, either as a forage crop or to turn under for the improvement of the soil.

It is important that the testing of the seed be done early enough that a sufficient supply of pure seed can be purchased in time for use; and if seed is to be sent to one of the government or state testing laboratories, at least two weeks should be allowed.

Commissioner Oscar J. Peterson offered the following preambles and resolutions and moved their adoption:

Whereas in pursuance of and in full compliance with provisions of Chapter 230, Laws Minnesota, 1905, and the several acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, such steps have heretofore been duly and legally taken that a certain public drainage ditch has been duly located and established originally within that part of Red Lake County which is now a part of Pennington County, known as County Ditch No. 35, and it has heretofore been definitely ascertained and determined in accordance with the provisions of law applicable thereto that the original cost of construction of such ditch was the sum of Ten Thousand Nine Hundred Seventy-five and 35-100 Dollars ($10975.35), and

Whereas, since the original construction of said ditch proceedings have been had for the repairing, deepening, widening and extending of the same to a new or different outlet, and it has been definitely ascertained and determined in accordance with the provisions of law applicable thereto that the total costs and expenses of so repairing, deepening, widening and extending the same to a new or different outlet exceeds the sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500.00), and

Whereas, there is not sufficient money in the treasury of this County to defray the costs and expenses incurred in making said improvements to said ditch.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by this County Board, that it is necessary for such purpose at this time to raise the sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500.00).

Resolved, further that the desirable coupon bonds of said County of Pennington be issued for said purpose in the aggregate amount of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500.00). ## NEW MAY CHASE... KEPT ON TRYING

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," has evidently been the policy of the new heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, Ed "Strangler" Lewis of Louisville, Ky. It was in the Strangler's fifth chance at the title, last week at New York, when he threw Joe Stecher, Nebraska farm boy, and took the title in one hour and forty-one minutes of grueling mat work. Lewis was twice defeated by former champ Earl Caddock and this was his third chance at Stecher. Lewis wore Stecher down with his famous "headlock."

WILDCAT OIL AND EXPORT SHARES.

If you feel a strong urge in your innards to buy stock securities, don't invest in oil shares. They may be "wildcat" and you may join innumerable thousands of rural citizens who collectively lost hundreds of millions in "oils" during the past two years.

If you feel the strong urge in your innards to buy stock shares, it is better to buy the "export" securities that are soon to be offered to the country by the big bankers' corporation that recently organized co-operatively and patriotically for the simple purpose of selling more of the products of America to Europe—especially farm products. Europe has not the money to buy; not right now. It needs credit and its credit is poor because its currency systems are strained to the utmost. Result is that although they are in great need of our corn and wheat and cotton and meats, they have cut down their orders and are getting along without.

The leading bankers of the United States met recently and subscribed one hundred million dollars for a corporation which will advance perhaps a billion of credit. When this begins to operate the foreigners will be able to order much more from the American farmer and pay him for it thru the "export corporation.

The interest this new "export" corporation will pay on its securities may not be large, but the securities will be safe. And if farm investors buy them they may be pretty sure of added interest from the increased prices they will get for their products, said increased prices being due to the greater demand. We do not advise anybody where to invest their spare dollars. We merely want to state that "export" shares, backed as they are by the nation's banks, are far better than "wildcat" oil stock.

A SUGGESTED NEW YEAR GIFT.

For Christmas we have given the gifts of our hearts—no matter then if they are not of much utility.

For New Year, let us think of happiness—not forgetting future happiness. Let us give presents that are well considered, that will be useful during the year and perhaps for years. Among such gifts are the savings securities of the United States government. From the 25-cent Thrift stamp to the $1000 Treasury Savings Certificate, they will carry with them not only the greetings of the season but happiness for years to come

In presenting the child a card with one thrift stamp affixed, or handing him a bank book that contains ever so small a sum, you bestow not only a present but a habit which will grow in value as the days pass, for he will wish to increase it. That little gift will have grown wonderfully before another Christmas comes around and the recipient will be on the way to a life of independence.

In recommending these lasting gifts the savings division of the United States treasury does not suggest that a single American curtail his giving of other useful things. It suggests only that he broaden it to include this present which will bring future well-being to those he loves.

Thrift stamps, savings stamps and treasury savings certificates will be on sale thruout the year 1921. Make New Year count for thrift in your home this year.

THE WEEPING OF CHILDREN.

The cry of the starving children in Europe brings to mind Elizabeth Browning's verse:

Do you hear the children weeping, O my brothers
Ere their sorrow comes with their years?
They are leaning their young heads against their mothers,
And even that cannot stop their tears.

There is in the world no sight so pitiable as a hungry, helpless little child, no agony in all the gamut of human suffering that so universally appeals to the hearts of men and women. The most hardened criminal feels that pang thru the induration of a soul an stepped and cruel. The very helplessness of a broken or starving babe is a key to unlock the thrice barred doors of a miser's hoard.

We are neither misers nor criminals. But we are a careless people. We seem oftentimes to need the impulse that the actual sight of suffering gives to charity. For we are all charitable, all willing when the need is brought thus directly home to us. We are not illiberal or stingy. Our very prosperity and general comfort render us perhaps not entirely careless, but neglectful.

Yet the voices of the little children are crying out for food, the hungry little children who lean their heads against the day bosoms of mothers who cannot comfort or relieve for the mothers are also hungry and cold and despairing. Their voices should and must reach across the miles to the warm hearths of American homes. The mothers whose babies thrive and laugh must hear the feeble wails of the children of other mothers whose babies starve in their arms.

It is a very little thing, this call for a few millions made upon us compared with the relief that the funds will give and the lives that our assistance shall save.

Let us then turn from our own happy and well fed children to the spectacle of starving innocence, to the picture of desperate and helpless mothers who watch their little ones die.

Listen: Hark, above the Christmas carols and the bells that ring in a happy New Year for America comes the cry of starving children and the weeping of mothers that bore them.

When your children or grandchildren climb upon your knees they make silent interrogation of you. All unknowing, their very presence asks "What have you done to save the children who pine and suffer across the seas?"

THE AUTO TRAILER AS A FOOD CARRIER.

We printed an editorial last week suggesting how the automobile truck and trailer would bring the food from the farm to the consumer. We showed that the rural mail carrier, driving a truck, could carry at least 1,500 pounds of farm products to the town and city every day and that if the postoffice department had 60,000 rural mail routes this would mean the delivery of 54,000 tons daily to the dealers and consumers of the nation.

A thoughtful colleage in the country newspaper profession has written to tell how that 54,000 tons a day could be doubled. Says Wm. P. Rose, editor and publisher of the Cambridge Springs (Pa.) Enterprise:

"Few men today realize the present advantages of the light two-wheel trailer and what it finally is going to do for general transportation in this country.

"The ton truck mentioned in the editorial can easily draw a ton trailer behind it at a saving of gas and power compared with results. Regular trailer trains are running on the Pacific coast today. The greatest power of a truck is in its draw-bar pull—a fact not publicly consumed today.

"On 60,000 routes at least 108,000 tons should be delivered per day.

"In time, by using light four wheel trailers that will track better than two-wheel trailers when two or more are drawn, a system could be worked out easily whereby a farmer could have his trailer with him to load during the day. It would be picked up by the train when the train came along daily. Tremendous, isn't it? Consider the railroad train. All we need to realize this great transportation development is roads."

THE FOLLY OF GETTING ANGRY.

The Tribune: Lincoln once said that no man, resolved to make the most of himself, could spare the time to quarrel or indulge in anger. He thought the consequences most too much in the vitiation of temper and loss of self control. It was his plan to yield larger things to which he could show more than equal right and to yield lesser ones which were clearly his own.

When a man gets angry he discounts his ability and judgment and he indulges in a folly that later fills him with remorse and anxiety. As Lincoln said, anger costs too heavily. How the crowd admires the man who controls his temper, when it is the natural and easy thing for him to lose it! On railroad trains, street cars, in restaurants the conductor, brakeman or waiter who handles himself well and keeps his temper when some irritable passenger or customer is attempting to cause trouble unjustly, always wins the sympathy of those around him. Conversely, when he loses his temper he loses sympathy.

What wear and tear to body and mind we should save ourselves if we heeded these two rules when tempted to "let go," "cut loose" or "have it out."

If I am in the wrong, I can't offord to get angry.

If I am in the right, I don't need to get angry.

The phrase, losing one's temper, is after all a misnomer. Why should one worry about losing one's temper? Why shouldn't one gladly lose it—for good?

A TRUCE TO IMMIGRATION.

The New Republic: Though we believe that there is no valid reason why a permanent dike should be erected against immigration, we cannot accept the laissez-faire view, that it is no concern of the American people what kind of immigrants come, what influences are at work to draw them to this country, what happens to them after they get here, how their coming bears upon our own current social and economic problems. America needs a definite immigration policy which shall make it possible to differentiate between those who have the intelligence and initiative to seek entrance to America on their own account and those who are recruited for emigration by the steamship companies, by employers seeking cheap and docile labor, by governments desiring to expel recalcitrant minorities, by philanthropic organizations that would solve particular problems of European poverty thru their removal to America. We ought not to tolerate any kind of mass immigration or subsidized immigration.

We are not now organized to receive immigrants properly or to distribute them in such a way as to insure ourselves against aggravation of the present increasing evils of unemployment and labor unrest. To work out a satisfactory national program will require months; but in the meantime multitudes, in almost every European country, are restless and discontented and the shipping companies are casting eager eyes upon the earnings to be had from mass emigration. What else can we do, in the national interest, but declare a truce to immigration? A year's suspension to immigration ought to suffice, if the working out of a national policy is undertaken in good faith. But such a truce will be of no value unless we actually use the time to overhaul our entire immigration policy. If we stop with the truce, the disadvantages of indefinite restriction will presently impress themselves upon us when our industry again takes an upward swing and we shall remove all barriers and let in a flood probably not so desirable in the constituent elements as that which it is now proposed to exclude.

There is always something to amuse a fellow most every day in life. This week this office had a call for some "birth announcements" and when the patron was asked whether it was for a girl or a boy, so the pink or blue bordered cards could be shown to her the lady said she didn't know—she wanted some of both. Whether it was twins or whether she wanted to have the cards ready for mailing right on the dot she did not say. Neither did we ask her.

Five hundred employes of a clothing manufacturing company in Chicago decided that wages should be reduced in order to bring clothing down and stimulate business so their employers could make enough money to pay them. If there are any Carnegie hero medals in stock we move a medal be given to each of those noble five hundred.

PAVING ISSUE AGAIN COMES UP AT COUNCIL MEET

The paving issue again came to life in this city and on Tuesday evening of this week there was considerable agitation created when it became known that the opposition were intending to appear before the council and set forth their objections in no uncertain terms.

As a result about twenty of those in favor of paving attended the council meeting expecting it to be a hot one and that a debate between the opposition and those in favor of the paving would develop. But such was not the case and those opposed to the paving failed to put in an appearance and as a result nothing of any consequence with regard to blocking the paving was done.

The council and a great many of the citizens are in favor of going ahead with the paving in the spring and want to see the work brought to a close during the next year. It would be extremely expensive for the council to attempt to kick out of the contract that is signed and conceded to be ironclad. The construction company which is to do the work has considerable machinery on the job and has ordered practically all of the material necessary for the work and doubtless would demand proper compensation were the contract cancelled and in this they would be perfectly within their rights. This would no doubt entail an expenditure of several thousand dollars by the city to cancel the contract, and nothing received.

In addition the storm sewer which was installed this summer would have to be paid for in three equal installments, whereas the city has a period of twenty years to take care of this work under the present contruct.

The council expressed themselves as being in favor of going ahead with the contract and bids for the acceptance of the city's bonds will be advertised for and if satisfactory arrangements can be made whereby the money for this work can be secured at a reasonable rate of interest, there is every likelihood that the paving program mapped out by the city council will be carried out next year.

The appearance of those in favor of the paving at the council meeting helped the council greatly in their decision. Up to the present time the council has not been encouraged one particle in their program, but have only been cautioned by those opposed to paving, and were beginning to believe the entire city was against the program, but the sentiment expressed last evening by those present helped the council to see their way out of the dilemma and it now looks as though the matter was again settled for a time at least.

Of course there is the possibility that something new may turn up most any day in opposition to the matter, and until paving is firmly planted on the streets of Thief River Falls it is practically impossible to state with any degree of accuracy just what the outcome will be.

Stores of City Are to be Closed all Day Saturday

The stores of Thief River Falls will be closed all day tomorrow, Saturday January 1, and the housewives of the city should attend to their shopping this evening. The closing of the stores means that shopping for Saturday and Sunday will have to be done this evening and as the stores all close promptly at 6 o'clock not much time is left for shopping.

It was presumed that everyone knew of the closing but it has since developed that a great many knew nothing of the closing or had forgotten the same and a last minute attempt is being made to acquaint everyone with the fact that all stores in the city will be closed all day Saturday.

Holding of Farmers' Institutes in County Program for New Year

County institutes among the farmers of Pennington county should become more popular and will no doubt in a short time prove to be the most interesting of any meetings possible for the farmers of the county to arrange.

County Agent McCann announces that the farm bureau is ready and willing to conduct these institutes in the county at any place and time the farmers may designate. There has not been one of these institutes held in the county this year and only one last year. That meeting was held at Goodridge and is proved to be very successful. These institutes are nothing short of a regular get-together meeting of the farmers and matters of interest to the farmer are discussed and considered. They are extremely helpful and should be held on regular schedule. No large successful business today is conducted without these meetings among those interested for the purpose of talking over the many angles of the business and planning better ways to accomplish the work. The farmers' institute is nothing else than a meeting of this sort and is conducted solely for the purpose of helping him meet the many perplexing problems that confront the average farmer daily.

More interest in the farmers' institute should be taken and arrangements made to hold them at stated intervals at different points throughout the county. They will prove a wonderful help and develop into invaluable clearing houses for the exchange of ideas.

Large Family Reunion.

Holiday reunions bring much joy and today many pleasant memories. In this day of small families when we learn of family reunions where sixteen people sit at one table, memories are stirred with a feeling of interest mixed with something akin to jealousy. Such a reunion is to take place on New Year's day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Pelchat, Sr., when seven children, three sons and daughters-in-law, and four grandchildren will be at home. Mrs. Harry Fredericks, of Bremerton, Wash., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Halgren of Rosewood will arrive in the city Friday night to participate in this happy occasion.

Legion Dance This Evening.

The local post of the American Legion are giving a New Year's dance at the Auditorium this evening and a big crowd is expected. Everything necessary for an enjoyable evening has been attended to by the committee in charge and the old year will be danced out and the new year in by a large crowd.

Many Enlistments.

Major R. E. Frith, in charge of recruiting in the state of Minnesota, states that in the month of December, more men enlisted in the army in this state than during any month in the history of recruiting during peace conditions. Over 600 were secured. During the year 1920, 3541 men entered the service from this state. The majority of these enlisted for the three Minnesota regular regiments—79th Field Artillery, 56th Infantry and the 8th Engineers, formerly stationed at Camp Funston, Kansas, but now at Camp Meade, Maryland, about 20 miles from Washington. These regiments are part of the famous Seventh Division, commanded by General Edward M. McGlachlin.

CONDITIONS IN STATE ARE ON UPWARD TREND

Bankers, business men and farmers thruout Minnesota intend to start the new year on a pre-war basis and a majority seemingly are certain that careful, conservative methods will successfully adjust business to such an extent that moderate returns can be realized.

This in substance is the keynote of nearly all the replies received during the past week to a questionnaire which the Merchants National Bank of St. Paul mailed to bankers thruout the state. It was noticeable that a very few bankers were intensely pessimistic and that a very few were extremely optimistic. In fact the number of bankers making these extreme forecasts were equally divided.

The questionnaire sent out was intended to obtain a broad range of opinion and bankers consulted depositors before making their replies. The questionnaire asked:

What are the prospects for 1921 in your territory? (a) with regard to merchandising; (b) with regard to farming; (c) with regard to banking.

Comparison of these questionnaires with similar ones sent out about two months ago on somewhat similar subjects disclosed the very interesting fact that agricultural pessimism has considerably been relieved. It was noticeable that the farmers who disposed of their potatoes shortly after harvest and others who sold their crops and took what they regarded as losses seem quite well satisfied with their luck. The keenest complaint made by farmers was the uncertainty of protective measures for 1921 and reading of numerous questionnaires developed the impression that grain men and cattlemen in common with country merchants are ready to take loss if they can be made to feel that such action will restore business to a stable basis.

Merchants in many cities bought practically no extra stock for Christmas sale, and many of them conducted a bare sales during the last half of December. They have been buying very cautiously and likewise informed bankers that this caution has given them confidence that conditions soon will be readjusted. It is also noted that in a number of cities the withdrawals during Christmas time from savings accounts were lighter since 1914. Bankers also forecast that farmers will not ask for important loans during the winter or in the spring and the possibility was cited as one reason for hoping that the money tightness may be relieved some time soon.

Not much grain has been sold. The farmers have dumped their hogs on the market. Hundreds of thousands of pounds of wool is in storage. Better prices are hoped for during January or February. Numerous sales of high grade cattle have been held, but the bidding as a rule has been extremely conservative and prices have been low. Continued high prices of meat caused a number of country bankers to forecast that farmers would not increase their herds until either the retail price dropped or the prices paid to them for cattle were increased considerably.

The Merchants National Bank of St Paul made this forecast: "With regard to merchandising, consumers generally, it is believed, will become purchasers in normal quantities of merchandise as soon as they feel that price readjustment has largely taken place. Farmers particularly are not making purchases that can be delayed, giving as their reason that merchandise prices have not yet been reduced in proportion to prices they are receiving for their products. It is the general belief that with the coming of spring and when price readjustment is in a more settled basis sales of general merchandise will assume the normal volume.

"With regard to farming, farmers generally have now accepted the idea that they cannot in all cases expect to get the cost of production for their 1920 crops. They accept this fact more complacently after realizing that individuals, firms and corporations in other lines of business also are suffering severe losses due to the general deflation process. On the other hand, they feel that labor, one of the biggest single items in their cost of production, is already considerably reduced and will be more so by another spring. General equipment required on farms already has shown some reduction with the exception of farm machinery. Feed and seed are on hand in generous quantities and at current market prices will go into the cost of producing a new crop at values a great deal lower than those of 1920. Further, congress is giving some attention to tariff legislation that should stabilize farm prices. In general these is a great deal to encourage farmers in the belief that when their crops are ready for marketing next fall the cost of producing them will be sufficiently low to enable them to make a profit.

"In regard to banking, if movement of crops in the northwest again reaches normal volume, some relief for banking circles in rural districts will be felt. Also the reduced prices on commodities will require smaller lines of credit for a given volume of business. On the other hand, banking institutions do not expect liquidation sufficient entirely to afford what might be termed 'easy money' until another crop is harvested and marketed."

PROMINENT YOUNG COUPLE ARE MARRIED

MISS RUTH BROWN BECOMES BRIDE OF CLARENCE ANDREWS LAST EVENING.

Miss Ruth Kathryn Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brown, was married to Clarence Edward Andrews on Thursday at 6:30 p. m. at the Presbyterian church, Rev. R. L. Barackman officiating. The ring service was used. The church was decorated with evergreen and holly, the altar being banked with greens, and having a large seven branch candalabra in the center and an electrically lighted star above. A prenuptial program was rendered, Mrs. Hilding sing "O Promise Me" and Carl Sundahl "Because." The bridal procession advanced to the altar during the playing of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus by Mrs. C. O. Erickson, and left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March. Little Jeanette Mogenson as flower girl was dressed in light blue and carried a basket of white flowers. Theodore Braggens of Warren, all in white, carried the ring on a heart shaped white satin pillow with flower decorations.

The bride was lovely in a gown of oyster white crepe with veil entrain, of point lace, the cap of which was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lillies of the valley.

The bridesmaids' gowns were made to represent flower petals and each carried baskets of flowers to match the gown. They were Lucile Burns, maid of honor, in a wisteria gown; Ruth Rafferty, of Minneapolis, in yellow, Milder Wood, of Warren, in apricot; Meta Kilard, in lavender, and Lucile Prichard, in pink. Norman Dybvik, brother of the groom, was best man.

The ushers were Robin Rasmusson, Roy Brown, Charles Prichard and Elinor Overland.

Mrs. Brown's gown was brown satin with all-over lace. She wore a picture hat of silver lace and brown plumes. Followipt the ceremony was a reception at the Evelyn Hotel, the dining room of which was made beautiful with a profusion of pink and white flowers. The centerpiece was a huge pyramidal bride's cake.

The out of town guests were Mrs. William A. Braggens and daughter, Grace, and son, Theodore, of Warren; Miss Zona Mae Rafferty, of Minneapolis, and Miss Mildred Wood, of Warren. The gifts were many and beautiful, cut glass and silverware predominating. Mrs. Andrews is going away gown was a brown kittens ear crepe with hat and oxfords also in brown. Mr. and Mrs. Andrews left on the 9:50 train for Minneapolis.

Get-Together Party.

The Community Girls gave a social evening on Monday to about 40 of their number, several of whom were home for the holidays. An interesting program was given.

Sunday School Class Meets.

The Dorcasis of the Presbyterian Sunday school met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Melvina Rupprecht on Duluth Ave. A social afternoon was enjoyed and the following officers were elected to serve for three months: President, Melvina Rupprecht, president; Dorothy Haney, treasurer, George Frizell; reporter, Muriel Loken.

To Meet Tuesday.

The W. C. T. U. will meet next Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Parbst on Main Avenue north, entertained by Mrs. Parbst and Mrs. Sandum. An invitation is extended to everyone.

Local Order of Elks Help Make Christmas Enjoyable For Many

The Erkkila family of seven children received a Christmas present of an order on Carlson's store for $25 worth of clothing, given by the Elks' lodge of Thief River Falls. These children are in effect orphans, their father having died four or five years ago from tuberculosis and their mother having been a hospital inmate for three years, afflicted with the same dread disease. Three of the children are being cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, while the other four are living with Wm. Talkari.

This Christmas remembrance to the family was obtained thru the recommendation of Arvid Carlson, who is a member of the Thief River Falls lodge of Elks.

It doubtless made the hearts of the children glad. The county nurse, Miss Hanson, who has visited Mrs. Erkkila at the sanitorium, reported that she is improving and will probably be able to come home next spring.—Middle River Pioneer.

Directors of Farm Bureau to Meet in City This Afternoon

The directors of the farm bureau will meet this afternoon in the office of the farm bureau in the Auditorium for the consideration of many matters of importance in connection with the local bureau.

This is not the regular annual meeting, but the purpose is practically the same and all matters of importance in connection with the organization will come up for consideration and many steps generally important will be taken.

The annual meeting of the organization will not be held until June, at which time the annual picnic is held. The meeting today is primarily to lay plans for the conductive of the bureau for the coming six months and to plan the activities the bureau is to assume during that time. The scope of the activities of the local farm bureau are ever widening and its work among the farmers of the county is assuming such importance that it must be handled in a business like and scientific manner, and for this purpose the directors are meeting to determine the course of action which shall be taken in regard to all matters during the next six months.

A Family Reunion.

Tuesday evening there was a family reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Lawson. It so happened that the "bunch" were detained at home for one reason or another, so only the immediate family was present. During dinner it was discovered that there were seated just as they used to be when children at home. Those who enjoyed this happy occasion were Mrs. Olaf Cronstrom, Mrs. Alfred Bjorkman, Mrs. Lawson, Miss Ella Olofson of Newfolden and Mr. and Mrs. Jo E. Hodgson of Minneapolis.

Woman's Club Meets Monday.

The next regular meeting of the Woman's Club will be held next Monday afternoon at the Commercial Club rooms at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Scott Laird is the leader on Current Events and Mrs. A. A. Bottelson will be the leader on lesson four. A good attendance is requested as this meeting will be decidedly interesting and many matters of importance will be discussed.

Progressing Favorably.

The seal sale in Pennington county is progressing very favorably in the rural districts as well as in the cities. Each school teacher has a supply of seals and judging from the reports coming in daily to the central office the returns will exceed last year's sales. All township chairmen as well as rural teachers are doing excellent work in the selling of the seals.

Basketball Game Saturday.

The high school basketball team will clash with the high school team of last year at the Auditorium tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The team of last year feel confident they can take the present team into camp and the present team feels the same way regarding the former stars. As a result a hotly contested game is looked for.

Here From Washington.

Mrs. John Burkee, of Tacoma, Wash., is visiting at the home of Mrs. Anna Langseth. The Burkees were former residents of this city. Mr. Burkee being engaged in the mercantile business. They left eighteen years ago and have made their home in Washington since that time. This is Mrs. Burkee's first visit to the old home town since leaving.

MANY NEW FARM BUREAU MEMBERS ADDED IN DRIVE

FARM BUREAU DECIDES TO END DRIVE FOR PRESENT—MAY RESUME LATER.

The drive for members in the Pennington County Farm Bureau is practically completed with a total of 229 new members added in four days.

Considering the short time the drive was conducted, this number of new members added to the local bureau is remarkable and proves conclusively that the farmers of the county are willing to co-operate and anxious to work for the betterment of every individual.

The drive would have lasted longer had the weather held good, but in view of the fact that the holidays were approaching and everyone connected with the drive had other matters of importance to attend to, it was thought best to call the drive off for the present and possibly take up the work again a little later.

The directors met out by the state federation returned home for the holidays and it is thought they will not be brought back, but that the drive will be conducted by Stuart McLeod and Paul Engelstad for a few days longer.

Both McLeod and Engelstad, being residents of the county, can finish the drive very well and will without doubt secure many new members from the fact that they are well acquainted over the county and are recognized by the farmers as being capable and efficient and knowing their ground in every instance. The local bureau is fortunate in having these young men finish the campaign and will certainly gain many new members as a result of the work being in their course.

The total membership in the county at present is 443.

Grygla Citizens Want to Know When Elwel Road is to be Improved

The following article from the Grygla Eagle of this week should prove of sufficient interest to the business interests of this city, especially as it concerns the business interests primarily and also means much to the people who are making the complaint and is directed to the roads leading into this city. The article is in no way to be considered a complaint but shows conclusively that the people of the Grygla neighborhood want to come to Thief River Falls and in all probability would come more often were the road improved in better condition. The article follows:

"Judge O'Gara, the selectmen of the Grygla road committee, was in Thief River Falls this week to endeavor to get to the condition of the Elwell road.

"He first went to Sewal Linquist, secretary of the Commercial Club. He was then accompanied to Judge Olson, chairman of the road committee from there he was referred to Robert McGinty, of the county commissioners, who were in session at the time. He was there referred to Mr. Hanson, county commissioner from that district, to whom he begged that road in a passable condition. After due deliberation, Mr. Olsson was promised that the road would be kept in repair so that the people of Grygla and vicinity would have no trouble in getting to Thief River Falls."

Married Yesterday.

Edwin P. Dahl and Miss Edith Boe, both of this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the Trinity Lutheran parsonage by Rev. T. E. Swegger. The young couple will make their future home at International Falls, at which place Mr. Dahl is employed as a paper mill. They left last evening on a short honeymoon trip, after which they will return to International Falls.

Pleasant Evening Party.

Miss Christine Clausen gave a party at her home Wednesday night, to fifteen girls. Cards, fortune telling and conversation furnished the entertainment, after which a bountiful lunch was served.

S. D. A. Mission, Library Basement.

You are invited to attend the service on Sunday evening, Jan. 2, at 7:45. Subject, "Those Disturbers of Peace." New Year's service on Saturday, Jan. 1, at 5 p. m., and Bible class at 2 o'clock.

SOUTH'S LANDS TOO HIGH PRICED

Northern Minnesota Offers Best Inducements to Would-be Farmers Seeking Locations.

As a result of the phenomenal advance in Iowa land values during the spring and summer of 1919, the United States department of agriculture, in co-operation with the Iowa state college of agriculture, made an investigation, which shows that the prices at which farm land sold in many sections of that state were too high to justify the returns which can be made from it. It was found that the average value of Iowa farm lands increased $121 per acre in the five years from 1915 to 1920, and that $63 of this increase occurred between March, 1919, and March, 1920, the twelfth month including the period of the boom. Over 65 per cent of the buyers and over 56 per cent of the sellers were farmers, while, contrary to general belief, perhaps, less than 7 per cent of the buyers and but a little over 11 per cent of the sellers were real estate men. The facts relative to the per cent of return on investment in these lands which were brought out make it clear that they are valued in excess of their earning capacity. The investigators point out that with land paying but 3 per cent on capitalization and loans running at 6 per cent or more, buying a farm on a large margin of credit is a difficult undertaking for the farmer of average ability as a manager.

The above from a press bulletin of the U. S. department of agriculture is emphatic testimony to the fact that northern Minnesota offers the most flattering inducements to home seekers. While land can still be bought here at from one-eighth to one-fourth the price of Iowa lands—and that is equally productive—there is no argument against the assertion that farm buyers should come here rather than invest in the exhorbitantly high priced Iowa land.

LIABLE TO BE HOT TIME OVER ROAD PLAN

A road conference by members-elect of the approaching legislature was recently held to consider details of administering the Babcock road law. There was a sharp debate over the proposition of whether the administration of the law be placed in the hands of an unpaid commission or left to one responsible paid man. The consensus of opinion so far as we have observed in our exchanges is in favor of the one-man idea. However, according to the report of the conference, this question is likely to prove the subject of the hottest debates in the legislature. But we believe also that the proposed scale of fees will also be a warm one in the legislature, as it appears that the schedule as advocated is so much higher than the public had been led to expect thru campaign pronouncements that there will be a strong sentiment in favor of scaling it down. It is suggested that automobiles and trucks pay on the following scale:

Cars weighing up to 2,000 pounds 50c per 100 pounds, plus 1 per cent of their value f. o. b. the factory; cars weighing from 2,000 to 3,000 pounds, 75c per 100 pounds, plus 1 per cent of their value; cars weighing from 3,000 to 4,000 pounds, $1 per 100 pounds, plus 1 per cent of their value; cars weighing from 4,000 to 5,000 pounds, $1.25 per 100 pounds, plus 1 per cent of their value; cars weighing over 5,000 pounds, $1.50 per 100 pounds, plus 1 per cent of their value. The value of the car is the list price f. o. b. the factory for the first year; second year, 80 per cent of the list price; third year 60 per cent of the list price; fourth year, 40 per cent of the list price; fifth and following years, 20 per cent of the list price; motorcycles, $10, sidecars, $5; no motor car less than $10; motor busses, $1.50 per 100 pounds, plus 1 per cent of their value. In the weight of automobiles and busses the passenger capacity at 150 pounds each must be included. Trucks are classed as of pneumatic tires or hard tires and pay up to 1 ton, $25 and $35 respectively; up to 2 tons, $45 and $70; up to 3 tons, $70 and $110; up to 4 tons, $95 and $150; up to 5 tons, $150 and $210; up to 6 tons, $170 and $300.

A car weighing 3,000 pounds carrying seven passengers and costing $2,000, on the above schedule would pay $40.50 for weight and $20 for value the first year, or a total of $60.50 license tax.

Hence, naturally there will be a strong opposition to such a schedule as this. Notwithstanding the fact that the expenditure of the entire tax as proposed on the roads produce more good roads in a shorter time than were the tax less, the contention will be raised that in putting thru the above schedule the powers that be are not playing fair with the thousands of autoists who supported the law thru a different understanding based on pre-election statements.

But, even tho the proposed schedule is adopted, the auto owners of the northern section of the state will have less to kick about than the more populous southern section, for there is a great preponderance of light cars here while in the bigger towns and cities farther south the big cars which will be the hardest hit prevail. If arrangements are made in this and adjoining counties for immediate road construction, as has been done in some counties, so that the autoists will see that their tax money, or its equivalent, produces roads where they can use them, there will be no real grounds for objection even tho the tax be higher than expected.

The Minnesota Public Safety Commission will be disbanded this month and some $60,000 left in the treasury will be returned to the state out of the $1,000,000 appropriated four years ago. The commission has not been active for the past year and a secretary and stenographer have been the only employes. About half of the appropriation went to pay soldiers stationed on the Mexican border when war with that country was threatened. During its existence the commission has done things both good and bad. Some of its acts were highhanded and arbitrary and there was much bitterness created for one reason or another. There will be small grief at its passing.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Lawrence Dagen had a scrap with a gasoline torch Monday night at which he came out second best. He was using the torch at the garage to heat up a frozen radiator and was holding it in his hands when it exploded. The torch flew out of his hands and hit the hind wheel of a Chev standing in another part of the room, bearking two spokes on the wheel. The pressure caved out the upper portion of the partition wall in the rdom and blew the doors out. Roy Dagen was in the room using a soldering iron and it was knocked out of his hands. Lawrence's hand was badly burned and he is off duty for awhile. The explosion shook Doc's house and rattled the doors at the light plant.—Karlstad Advocate

J. P. Easton returned home on Thursday of last week from Minneapolis, where he spent a few weeks taking treatment for the relief of rheumatic ailments. He feels greatly improved and his friends hope that he soon will be in shape to throw away his cane and scamper about as lively as in his younger days.—Warren Sheaf.

Farm Bureau-Bankers' Conference at Crookston.

At the joint conference of northwest farm bureau members and bankers at Crookston on Dec. 16th, Mr. Mosher of the Ninth District Federal Reserve bank, advised a 15 per cent liquidation of farm crops now in the hands of the northwest farmers. Banks of the twin cities and adjoining counties were well represented at this meeting and all presented a solid front of the need of relief thru even partial liquidation even with prices what they are.

L. E. Potter, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, exploded a bomb in the meeting just before adjournment when in the face of great odds he counseled that although he had no specific reason for thinking anything wrong, that he could not understand why big business intereests were continually advising the farmers to liquidate. He further advised the farmers to hold out a while longer where possible.—Warren Sheaf.

Amsterdam—A dispatch to the Handelsblad from Dusseldorf says the Inter-Allied Rhine commission is alarmed because of the spread of militarism in German schools and has issued an order forbidding the use of schools for military purposes.

Was Franklin Wrong?

But one of our depositors says this is not true—that Ben Franklin was all wrong.

He says:

"It is impossible to save all you earn. The average man earns $5 for every dollar he is able to lay aside. You might say that he has $4 expense to each dollar of profit.

"If then, it is necessary to earn $5 in order to save $1, don't you see that any plan that saves an extra dollar is as good as $5 earned? Or, to bring Franklin's famous saying up to date, we must say 'A dollar saved is FIVE dollars earned.'"

What do YOU think about it?

WE HAVE AND WE NEED.

The year 1921 is before us. What we of this town and community accomplish in the next twelve months will depend mainly upon us—upon the manner in which we grasp the opportunities that are before us. There is no occasion for becoming alarmed over the present decline in commercial activity. The country is undergoing a period of readjustment, which is quite necessary and for the best, but the old ship is not going to hit the rocks, or even cruise in dangerous waters.

Europe charges us with being a nation of commercialists and perhaps it is true—and to our credit. Commercialists are rather keen on annexing the coin of the republic and of other countries and are not given to asking other people to support them in idleness.

Throughout the coming year we should utilize our commercial instinct to the fullest extent. Our fertile soil is full of wealth and all that is required is to reach down and dig it out. Our factories and our mills and all of our varied yankee enterprises are capable of vast production of articles that are in demand the world over. We have more money than ever before in our history and are able to finance any undertaking. We have will power and the initiative to accomplish that which we undertake. We have health, and energy and perseverance and the knowledge necessary to the achievement of success in our undertakings. And we have opportunity.

But there are a few things which we need and without which our success will not be the marvel expected from American people. We need a greater business and commercial honesty. We need enhanced confidence one in another. We need to do a full day's work in exchange for a day's pay. We need a more direct market from producer to consumer. We need a rigid curb on profiteering and a complete elimination of all speculating in the necessities of life. We need to forego the insane desire to get rich in a day and learn to become satisfied with a fair and reasonable accumulation of this world's goods. We need to follow more closely the teachings of the Golden Rule.

In the year that is before us we of this community should use every effort to achieve even greater success than has come to us in the years that have flown, but those successes should be such as will redound to the credit of mankind and to the alleviation of the ills of humanity.

NO RELIEF IN SIGHT.

Newspapers over the country are looking in vain for some of the price cut lightning to strike some of the things that go to make up the cost of getting our newspapers.

The last number of the Inland Printer has the following satirical paragraph:

"If the price of paper goes any higher, they're going to make shoes out of leather again."

This witticism, while taking an unnecessary fling at the shoe manufacturers, points out a broad element of truth; paper is a costly commodity and prospects of its dropping in price are decidedly remote.

Statistics given to newspapers by manufacturers, who say that it will be many months before any reduction in the price of paper is possible, show that the present demand for paper is far greater than the output of the mills. There are hundreds of papers in this country that would use a great deal more paper now if they could get it. Even though paper mills are able to increase their output these papers will seize every bit that it is possible for them to seize. Newspapers generally are admitting that so long as the demand is greater than production there will be no relief in sight.

NOT NEEDED HERE.

It has been frquently said that old dogs cannot be taught new tricks, but a Minneapolis newspaper apparently thinks otherwise. A reporter for the paper spends each day in traveling about the city, accosting all sorts of people and testing their politeness. He finds means of coming in contact with the clerks in the stores business men in their offices, public officials on duty, fellow ministers, housewives, and the public generally.

So-and-so he is dressed in fine raiment and at others he is in rags, but always he is unknown. To the person who makes the most courteous replies to his inquiries he presents a check entitling the person to five dollars. The check is paid by the paper and the polite one gets a writeup in its columns.

Its effect has become marked even in a city the size of Minneapolis. Does anyone in this town want to contribute five dollars a day to a campaign of courtesy? If so come across. This paper will furnish the publicity. But then, perhaps it is not needed here. What think you?

NEPTUNE NEWS

The dance given by Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Baldwin for the benefit of the children's club at Neptune proved a great success. People came from many miles around and were glad to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin will give another dance Jan. 1st. Mr. Baldwin was sorry that there was not a school in the south side of the river so we could have had a program, but next year we will be prepared for it. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin thanks everybody for their kindness at the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lund of Wanke attended the dance at Neptune Dec 26th.

The music for the dance at Neptune was furnished by Arthur Arveson, violinist, and Mrs. Ben Rendall, pianist. Albert Arneson acted as floor manager. Everybody seemed to be glad to see Albert back at the old job, as he always makes things lively.

Thom Pifferenes, who attended the dance, in talking to Mr. Baldwin, thought the latter had a good plan for the children of this community and if things turns out as he said, everybody will be glad for his kindness.

The Indians will give an Indian pow-wow dance during the supper hour at the dance at Neptune, Saturday, Jan. 1.

Church Gone Wrong.

Hanford, Wash.—Fire which started recently in a church of Hanford was declared to have been caused by an overheated whiskey still which was in full operation in the basement. The basement had been rented to a butcher.

Negro Bandits Sentenced.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Four negroes, composing the latest band of highwaymen rounded up by the police, were given long penitentiary sentences as a warning, the court stated, to 300 unemployed negroes of the west side. Thomas ("Teddy") Reynolds, Milwaukee, leader of the band, was sentenced to twenty years. Two of the others were sentenced to fifteen years and the fourth to twelve.

Christmas Verdict to Widow.

Springfield, Ill.—A Christmas present to Mrs. Hattie Ghere of Decatur and her two boys, aged 6 and 10, was made by the federal court here, when Judge Fitzhenry approved a $10,000 jury verdict, granted because of the death of Fred Ghere, Mrs. Ghere's husband, brakeman on the Wabash railroad, who was killed on duty last January.

Advertising a Sale

You don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence-post to read a sale bill, do you. Then don't expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an advertisement in this paper, then regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach reads your announcement while seated at his fireside.

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your sale. One extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the advertisment, and it's a poor advertisement that won't pull that buyer.

An Advertisement in THE TRIBUNE reaches the people you are after.

Bills may be a necessity, but the advertisement is the thing that does the business.
